Ringwood is part of the County of Mornington. It was once part of the Lilydale Shire, but on the 24th of October 1924 it was created a borough, and proclaimed as such on the 13th of December of the same year. It was on the 19th March 1960 that it attained City status.

Ringwood is an important rail junction, to the east the line extends to Healesville, and to the south east to Belgrave.

The City covers an area of 2,276 square kilometres, and has a population of approximately 36,900.

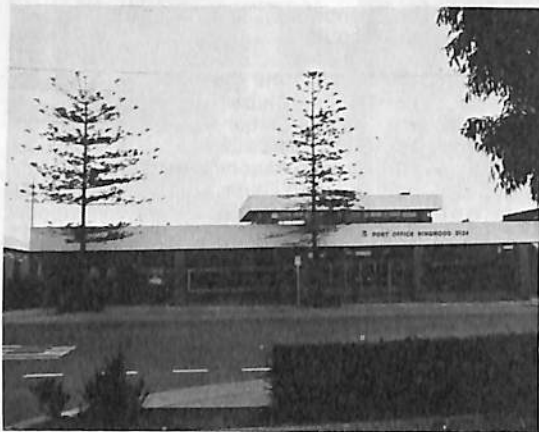

It is set in picturesque country, and is well suited to the residential area it has become. Water and sewerage are provided by Melbourne and Metropolitan Board of Works and electricity by the State Electricity Commission of Victoria. The telephone service is automatic. The highest priority of the Council is the construction of private roads, they hope in the near future to provide this amenity to all residents.

Ringwood is lucky to have approximately 400 acres of parks and recreational reserves, including a beautiful artificial lake, and a croquet lawn. There are adequate, up-to-date shopping centres too. Cultural activities have not been forgotten, in fact the city is flourishing in every way.

On the northern side of the Maroondah Highway is Ringwood Lake Park, a recreational area, where gas barbecues are provided and parking space is more than adequate. For Ringwood nature lovers, Wombolano Park's 25 acres of natural bushland, shows the splendour of Australia's flora and fauna. There is a picnic area and a playground for the kiddies too.

For the active, apart from the many clubs and organisations, there is an 18 hole golf course. It was formerly the municipal tip, but in March 1974 the first nine holes were opened, and the remaining nine were opened in June this year.

Two festivals are held in Ringwood, the Ringwood Highland Carnival and Ringwood Youth Day. The Ringwood Highland Carnival at Jubilee Park is a display by the Scottish communities of the Metropolitan area. Activities include highland dancing and pipe bands. The annual Ringwood Youth Day is held at Ringwood East Reserve. Many youth groups including the local soccer club, the Girl Guides, the Horse and Pony Club and the Little Athletics groups, display their skills. This year's Youth Day has already taken place, but the 1977 Youth Day is to be held on 27 March and promises to be an extremely entertaining day.

In the early days Ringwood was situated on what was then part of the Great Three Chain Road which led to Gippsland. It was a semi rural area which was largely covered in orchards. At their peak in 1925, before subdivision began in earnest carving up the land to provide housing estates, 54% of the area of the Municipality was under orchards, and it was famous for its apples, pears, quinces, cherries and plums.

Ringwood's real start began in 1869 when a high grade metal named antimony was discovered. It was worked successfully for about twenty years by several mines situated in the vicinity of the Ringwood Civic Centre. Today nothing remains of the feverish mining activity, but the large boulders at the end of the Plaza outside the main entrance of the Civic Centre, mark the head of the most successful mine which sunk to a depth of 372' with several drives in a southerly and northerly direction, reaching up to 485' in length.

An early 1870 primitive miner's cottage situated on the Maroondah Highway in front of the Civic Centre, was recently saved from demolition, and is being restored to be re-erected on the popular Ringwood Lake reserve as a Tourist attraction early in 1977.

Another important industry which successfully ran in Ringwood in the 1880's and 90's, were the several Brick and Tile Works which operated closely together around the Lilydale Railway line near the Dublin Road railway crossing, using the high quality clays and Kaolin for the area.

The only reminder of these large brickworks today, is the quarry holes filled in with water, which can be seen in the grounds of the Army Drill Hall in Dublin Road at the railway crossing. Several local buildings including the Ringwood Railway Station, are built of bricks from the Ringwood Brickworks.

A well-known land mark of Ringwood is the Memorial Clock Tower. Erected in 1928, this was originally situated in the centre of the Maroondah Highway, to ensure that the community could not forget those who had given their lives in the Great War. However, due to congestion of the Highway, it had to be re-sited, and now stands beside the Highway a little further west in more spacious grounds on the site of the large Ringwood Cool Stores — themselves a familiar land mark for over 50 years.

The Club Hotel, in Mt. Dandenong Road, was established on the present site in 1877, based on the clientele of the nearby antimony mines and brickworks. "A Mecca for the locals and the public", the two storey building erected in the 1880's can still be seen behind the new modern front.

The Coach and Horses Hotel, on the Maroondah Highway at the western entrance to Ringwood, was established as a stopping place for the coach services to rest weary passengers and horses in the early 1850's, and was one of the first buildings erected in Ringwood. The Coach and Horses was rebuilt on the original site in 1907, and with a new modern front this second building now serves the community as a group of small shops. To serve an expanding community a new Coach and Horses Hotel, was built in 1940 on the opposite side of the road to the original site.

THE MAROONDAH SOCIAL HEALTH CENTRE

The Centre was established 2½ years ago, with the aim of providing a facility for the care of psycho-social problems of the citizens of Ringwood and Croydon, two of the outer eastern Melbourne suburbs which have developed extensively in the past decade. Additionally, it was intended to provide preventive health education, and socio-medical research.

It was developed initially through the support of local churches and interested citizens, and was a very modest undertaking, operating in a small villa residence in Patterson Street, East Ringwood. Late in 1974, it became part of the Australian Government's Community Health Programme, and the additional funds then available provided the impetus for expansion of services and of staff and premises. The Committee took the bold step of purchasing two adjoining properties, which became available, thereby providing increased accommodation and development potential.

The past year has been one of continuing expansion to meet the ever increasing demands upon its counselling and therapy services, provided through a true multi-disciplinary team, ably backed and supported by a force of voluntary workers. The range of services provided to deal with a wide range of personal, family, and social problems is increased by other organisations providing regional facilities through the Centre; these include the Y.M.C.A., Victorian Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Adult Deaf Society, and the Rheumatism and Arthritis Association of Victoria.

Preventive health education programmes are being made available to local general practitioners, ministers, youth and welfare workers, school teachers, and to lay workers. Talks and films are provided for community groups, and a resource centre, offering books and audio-visual facilities covering human relationship subjects is a recently completed Centre project, made possible by Australian Assistance Plan funding.

A Student Unit provides in-service training for University Students in social work and counselling, whilst occupational therapy students experience a wide range of practical work in the many programmes which the Centre conducts for various groups.

Unfortunately the financial support provided by Government agencies is not sufficient to maintain these services, and the Centre is very dependant upon the generous support of donors in the private sector, and on grants from local Government, Trusts and Foundations, and other private funding bodies; the consolidation and growth of what has become recognized as an essential supportive health care system for the citizens of Ringwood and Croydon, as well as a model for many other areas, will depend on the extent to which essential financial support is forthcoming.

RINGWOOD CROYDON ADVISORY SERVICE

210 Mt. Dandenong Rd.
725 7920

Ringwood Croydon Advisory Service is a voluntary community organisation, staffed by trained welfare volunteers providing an information and referral service that is free and confidential.

Services

R.C.A.S. can help by:—

Providing answers to requests for information.

Provide information about organisations or services which can help people or families in any situation.

Provide a point of first contact to discuss problems and seek information about appropriate help.

Provide a "listening ear".

Volunteers refer those needing professional help to appropriate agencies, provide information on a wide variety of topics for those who ask for this, listen to those who need a "listening ear" for often people can feel that no-one has the time to listen anymore. R.C.A.S. also co-operate with other organisations helping people in need.

Funding

The administration and day-to-day running of a voluntary service of this magnitude, requires a considerable degree of commitment on the part of its members. Ringwood and Croydon Councils have provided accommodation and telephones, and some of the telephone expenses. The service is then dependant on subscriptions and donations from other community organisations, which support their work.

An "Access" grant in 1975 enabled publicity to be distributed more widely, and also contributed to the on-going cost of updating and gathering of directory information.

The communication of ideas, emotions and information is the most important aspect of living. . . and the Citizen's Advice Bureaux workers are daily conscious of the fact.

R.C.A.S. began in 1967 as the Ringwood Citizens' Advisory Service, being one of the first suburban C.A.B.'s in Melbourne; early in 1975 the Service expanded into the Croydon area and became the Ringwood Croydon Advisory Service.

R.C.A.S. is a member of the Victorian Association of Citizens' Advice Bureaux; and other Citizens' Advice Bureaux are listed in the telephone directory under this title.

C.A.B.'s are store-houses of information in the community: Government, semi-government, professional and voluntary agencies, information about people and groups in your area.

R.C.A.S. always welcomes news and information about new groups and organisations, change of aims, office bearers and so on.

EASTERN METROPOLITAN REGIONAL LIBRARY SERVICE

The Eastern Metropolitan Regional Library Service grew out of the Shire of Knox Library which was opened in August 1967, and now provides library service for the Cities of Knox, Ringwood and Croydon, and the Shires of Healesville and Sherbrooke.

The Regional Library has now, in 1976, five branches open to the public, and additional branch libraries are being currently planned.

The Library Service offers some 150,000 books for adults and children, including a good collection of Large Print Books for people who have difficulty with normal size print, and a varied choice of reading from a selection of over 230 periodicals titles. An interesting collection of photographs for loan is kept at Knox Central Library, but is available to all members of the Regional Library.

Trained staff are always ready to help in the selection of books, whether they be for recreational reading, for the purpose of study, or to assist people with their hobbies or their careers.

The special needs of children are not overlooked, and during school-holidays, activities of many kinds — story-telling sessions, painting and drawing, modelling, paper-crafts, poster, poetry and story competitions — are organized and are equally enjoyed by the children, their mothers and the library staff.

During the term-time, most branches have regular visits from school-classes accompanied by their teachers, and these visits help students with their studies and encourage them to read for pleasure as well.

All branches have a varied bookstock, but in addition, some branches specialize in a particular subject-field. At Knox Central Library there is an especially comprehensive collection of books on agriculture, gardening, livestock and domestic animals, and botanical sciences. At Ringwood Library, there is a large collection on the medical sciences, and at Croydon Branch, a wide selection of books on indoor games and amusement.

This service is free to all residents and ratepayers of the five municipalities, and also to those who work or attend schools in the area.
