

Mines would have to be removed to the Camp Reserve which it was said the Government was still ready to exchange for the present site of The School, but several gentlemen present thought the present site the most suitable for the enlarged undertaking. A number of side issues then arose and after a long discussion the representatives present agreed to report what they had heard in favor of the scheme in question to their various Committees, it being arranged that another meeting of delegates should take place afterwards, when something decisive could be done.
