

Butler - Are we entitled to speak as a committee any more than they Sir James Barrett told them to put it in writing and they have not done so, but how do we stand?

Middleton - This committee will make a report to the School of Mines Council and I take it that the Council will take the matter in hand

Darrow - The simplest thing for the Council to do would be to send to representatives of bodies interested in the Arts course to formulate a proposition to the department - As we have much of the equipment and staff that can be used it seems a very much simpler matter to press the Government for an increased grant for this special purpose than we are building ~~a~~ on sound foundation - It is quite clear that no new institution could be formed on account of the financial position of the University

Mr Maxwell - Do you suggest that the Mayor should do that?

Middleton - No that would come from the School of Mines Committee - There is room for number of good active members - we could make room for more than 6 as there are some who do not attend regularly and if the word was passed to them they would drop out -

Mr Martin - The position to me is that we already have more recognition than the University could give to say new body, - If we teach up to the standard of the University. We cannot hope to get any further recognition - We should first see that we get the student - ~~the~~ I would like to see the University not recognise any other body as they have one institution in this district that they recognise. One looks to the University if small for education of a high standard, and bodies throughout the state are formed they are going to reduce their standard - With the majority of the professions most of the people who go into them do so for the purpose of earning their bread and butter - If with the population we have in Victoria you are to multiply these small colleges the result will be lowering of the standard. I do not think it is going to act with any benefit if the University recognises more than one body in this district.
