

16-7-52 Pests shops were in good order and appeared to be well maintained. With repairs to rain water through the parapets on Gathing was particularly bad in the machine shop. In many places dry-rot could be seen where the flooring had become detached from the brickwork. There were shops for the senior technical student benches in the machine shop. There were two condenser units had been made in the kitchen. The plumber who had done an excellent job in the boiler and gauge room was awaiting a wall and a ceiling and they advised that several machines still had a counter shaft drive. The gardens and grounds were in good order for this time of year. The report was received and added. (Crosby & Kibson)
