

19-9-56 For lecture purposes. Generally, this department is well equipped, but Mr Hamilton had mentioned a number of engine parts that he would like for class work and he (or Wines) would endeavour to secure them through trade connections. In the Electrical Department they also found a satisfactory state of affairs. They would suggest that when the interior decorations and renovations are being done an archway could be removed and a fireplace bricked up.

The Pressmaking Department was then visited and found to be satisfactory. They found that members of the staff in the three departments visited were most co-operative and anxious to please.

The report was received and adopted
