

BIRNEY TRAM FOR BRIDE AND GROOM

FOR THE BIRNEY TRAM it was one of its last trips, for the bride and groom it was the beginning of a new life — together.

After their wedding reception on Saturday, Margaret Louisa White and Laurence John Fitzgerald took the tram from Eaglehawk to the Bendigo railway station, where they were farewelled on a honeymoon to Perth by rail.

The tram ride for the bridal party was organised by the Y.C.W.

Margaret is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

L. White, of Holdsworth Road, Eaglehawk, and Laurence is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Fitzgerald, of Campbell Street, Eaglehawk.

They were married in St Liborius' with Nuptial Mass by the Rev. Father F. Marriott, the Y.C.W. chaplain for the Sandhurst Diocese.

Margaret wore a gown of needlerun lace and chiffon with a bateau neckline and long sleeves edged with chiffon ruffles to match the edging on the redingote skirt which was worn over a fan of chiffon pleats in the centre panel. A double train fell from the back waistline. Her short embroidered veil was held by a top-knot of flowers.

Her attendants, Joanne Davidson, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Carmel Giri, wore orange chiffon gowns with high necklines and long sleeves edged with frills and a row of gold braiding to match the flounces on the hemlines of the softly gathered skirts. Westkits of brown chiffon laced with brown cord were worn over the frocks.

Best man was Philip Mace, and groomsman, the groom's brother, Ian.

Receiving guests at the R.S.L. Hall, the bride's mother wore an orchid-pink chiffon frock with a rounded neckline and long see-through sleeves. She added an edge to edge sleeveless coat in figured brocade and wild pink accessories.

The groom's mother wore a blue crimplene frock and jacket offset with navy and white accessories.

For travelling, the bride wore a purple coat-frock with white accessories.
