Make new Friends,
But keep the old,
One is Silver,
The other Gold.

The Re-Union.

In a quiet little village in a land that's far away,
'Tis there my thoughts are centred and my heart it turns to-day;
And so 'twill be with others, from north, south, east, and west,
For the land that you were born in is the one you love the best.

To where you spent your schooldays your thoughts will always cling;
In looking back in after years, what mem'ries it will bring!
I, in fancy, see a picture that is thrown upon the screen—
The re-union of old schoolmates upon the village green.

And what could one wish better than to clasp the hands once more
Of those who were your schoolmates in the good old days of yore—
To live one day together, a re-echo of the past?
If such be the re-union, then I pray that it will last.

For on the screen of mem'ry each may see a different view,
And you can picture yours to me, and I'll tell mine to you;
And others each may add a link that goes to make the chain
Of good old happy schooldays that will never come again.

Till incidents come trooping up, like soldiers at review,
And the years become the companies that they are drafted to;
And sound of mirth and laughter, a kind of music plays,
Which re-echo the re-union with the joys of other days.

In fancy I can see them—hear the tales that they would tell—
See breathless youngsters running when they heard the second bell;
And good old games together, that now we never see—
That grand old game of "chibby-chibby," one—and two—and three!

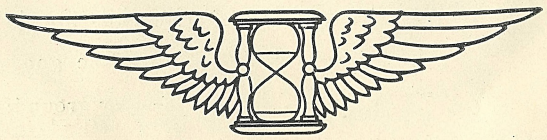

Or, when we used to play "the wag," bird-nesting in the bush,
And the doings of the "Curlews" and the good old "Rooney" push;
Or down by Jerry Mitchell's, that old familiar ground;
How many school-time quarrels were settled in the Pound!

But I must cease surmising the tales that would be told
Of boyish fun and frolic in the good old days of old,
But fain would touch some hidden chord in others far away;
And turn their hearts to Buninyong for next re-union day.

To live your schooldays over, see your schoolmates once again,
Now that the girls are women, now that the boys are men;
Then try and save throughout the year each holiday that's due,
And spend it back in Buninyong with schoolmates that you knew.

For, tho' you've climbed the ladder, or are on the bottom rung,
An equal welcome waits you when you're back in Buninyong;
So let us all foregather in re-union once a year
In the place where we were schoolmates, in the land we love so dear.
