COMRADES OF MINE.

Comrades of mine, when my day is done,

When the last sun sets for me,

Oh! bear me forth in an old bush cart

Till you come to a tall gum tree.

And lay me deep in its leafy shade

Where the great roots twist and twine,

Oh! leave me there to my long, long sleep,

Comrades, comrades of mine!

Comrades of mine, in my dreaming there,

I shall hear the whip-birds call,

And the hot winds pass through the grasses grey

And the beat of the rains that fall!

I shall hear the tramp of the cattle there,

And the stockmen riding in line,

I shall live all the old days over again,

Comrades, comrades of mine!

Comrades of mine!

Words by Richard Baylis.

Music by William G. James.
