Langton Medical Centre

Ever wondered where the experienced family GPs from days gone by went to? You will find them at Langton Medical Centre, they have been there all along. In fact, the doctors and staff at Langton Medical Centre have been caring for the Dandenong community since the practice opened in the 1960's and while they have seen many changes since then, some things like the personal approach to family healthcare never change.

The experienced GPs and dedicated staff for many years have prided themselves in providing excellent service and high professional standards to their patients. The centre provides a wide range of services to patients 7 days a week such as minor operations, ante-natal care, treatment of fractures, sports medicine, pap smear tests, travel immunisations, chronic disease management and children's health. Translation services during the consultation can also be provided when required upon request.

Conveniently located in Langhorne Street the practice is easily accessible in the central business district of Dandenong in Langhorne Street, not far from the Plaza. The modern, purpose-built facility provides an integrated range of medical care under one roof where the GPs and registered nurses team work alongside allied health professionals, licenced pathology collection centre and on-site pharmacy.

Recently, Langton Medical Centre's longstanding doctors have been joined by additional experienced GPs in an effort to ensure patients calling for an appointment can see a doctor that day, and urgent medical appointments can be prioritised appropriately.

The reception staff can also provide information on concession fees that apply for eligible pension and healthcare card holders. Honorary life member of the RACGP Dr John Meaney has been a part of the practice for more than 40 years.

When asked what are the most important aspects of providing medical care to the people of Dandenong he stressed "The continuity of care is very important with respect to total family care. We have been doing it for decades and intend to do it for decades to come. Our aim is to provide a healthcare service that is available and accessible consistently, now and in the future".
