

NEWS

Burger bar a big success

An idea for a late-night burger bar three years ago has grown into an incredible business success, with people travelling from all over Melbourne to get a feed.

Burger Stop – an add-on to the Dandenong Pavilion – opens at 9.30pm and has become a foodie hotspot for the hungry hordes who fancy a late feed.

Venue manager Kevin Pham said the burger bar, which was its own separate eatery attached to the popular Pavilion, owned by Joel Maroun, offered gourmet burgers, fries and dessert.

Mr Pham said diners were travelling far and wide to grab a late-night feast.

“Our burgers are cooked with quality beef and made by the chefs from our

SPRUIKER

Local Business News

Email us at dandenong@leadernewspapers.com.au restaurant’s kitchen – people keep coming back because they’re so filling and fresh,” he said.

“The McDowell is our most popular burger – it has two Australian beef patties, melted double cheddar, Swiss cheese, lettuce and special sauce in a white bun.”

He said the burger bar also offered vegetarian and vegan options.

“We also have churros and waffle sticks for dessert.”

Burger Bar is open from Wednesday – Sunday from 9.30pm – late.

Andrea Iacovou trying one of the burgers from Burger Stop.
Picture: Julian Smith