

A memorial to ^A Robin Boyd

21/10/77

SIR, — That the untimely death of Robin Boyd has led to the hasty, ill-conceived proposal to bless as a memorial an architecturally second rate old church hall of limited use, I personally feel conveys a complete lack of understanding of what the man stood and fought for and therefore an insult to his memory.

Surely his devoted contribution to the cause of architecture and related environment is the measure of this man, and therefore his memorial.

LINDSAY ANDERSON (Architect, Glen Iris).
