Kew, a prettily situated postal, money order, savings' bank, and telegraph township, suburban to Melbourne, about $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles E. It is a very favourite place of residence for the merchants and upper tradesmen of the city, and is dotted with their elegant houses, cottages, and villas, and well-kept gardens. Some parts of the locality are very elevated, from which fine views can be obtained. The town has 510 dwellings. The Metropolitan Lunatic Asylum is situated at the extreme north-western corner of the borough on a reserve of 400 acres, and being bounded on two sides by the Yarra is as little seen or noticed by the burgesses as if it were in any of the adjacent boroughs. The Literary Institute has a library of 546 volumes. It has a State school; also, a Roman Catholic college, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier. Cars and omnibuses run frequently to the city. The railway reaches as far as the town of Hawthorn, one mile distant.

Kew, a prettily situated postal, money-order, savings bank, and telegraph township, suburban to Melbourne, about four and a half miles E. It is a very favourite place of residence for the merchants and upper tradesmen of the city, and is dotted with their elegant houses, cottages, and villas, and well-kept gardens. Some parts of the locality are very elevated, from which fine views can be obtained. The town has 510 dwellings. The Metropolitan Lunatic Asylum is situated at the extreme north-western corner of the borough on a reserve of 400 acres, and being bounded on two sides by the Yarra is as little seen or noticed by the burgesses as if it were in any of the adjacent boroughs. The literary institute has a library of 546 volumes. It has a State school; also, a Roman Catholic college, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier. The Melbourne Omnibus Company have a line of buses to Kew, which with cars and waggonettes run frequently to the city. The suburban line reaches as far as the town of Hawthorn, one mile distant.

KEW.—A prettily situated municipal township, suburban to Melbourne, $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles E., with post, money-order and telegraph offices and savings bank. It is a favourite place of residence for the merchants and upper tradesmen of the city, and is dotted with their elegant houses, cottages, villas and well-kept gardens. Some parts of the locality are very elevated, from which fine views can be obtained. The township has over 950 dwellings, and substantial shops are being built on main road. The Metropolitan Lunatic Asylum, situated at the extreme north-western corner of the Borough on a reserve of 400 acres, is bounded on two sides by the Yarra Yarra river, and as little seen or noticed by the burgesses as if it were in any adjacent municipality. The literary institute has a library of over 5000 volumes. There is a State school, Methodist Ladies' College, Roman Catholic College, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier, and five churches. The Melbourne Omnibus Company run a line of buses from Kew to the Hawthorn Bridge, and from thence connects with the Richmond tramway line on to the metropolis. Waggonettes run frequently to the city, via Victoria-street bridge; fare, 6d. The town hall and municipal offices is a handsome and substantial building. The new commodious post and public offices being erected at the junction of Bulleen and Cotham roads, at a cost of £10,000, are to be finished early in April, 1888, and will be an ornament to the District. Studley Park reserve, the most picturesque in the colony, within the borough, is bounded on both sides by the Yarra Yarra river. It is within easy distance of Melbourne, and very suitable for picnic parties. The railway line passes through the Hawthorn Borough, one mile distant, right into the centre of Kew Borough and was opened on 19th December, 1887, terminating in the recreation ground. Victoria bridge opens up a direct route to the city via Barker's-road and Victoria-street. There is a sub-surface cable tram line from Spencer-street to the Victoria bridge, and thence a horse tram line to the corner of the Bulleen and Park Hill roads, Kew, now being constructed and will be opened about 1st January, 1888. The Boroondara General Cemetery is very pleasantly situated on the Bulleen road, and the grounds are very tastefully laid out with shrubs and flowers; the horse tramway line stops near the gates. The Outer Circle Railway will traverse the northern part of the Borough from east to west, and two stations are to be erected within the municipal boundary.

KEW.—A prettily situated municipal township, suburban to Melbourne. 4½ miles E., with post, money-order and telegraph offices and savings bank. A favourite place of residence for merchants and upper tradesmen of the city, and dotted with their elegant houses, cottages, villas and well-kept gardens. Some parts of the locality are very elevated, from which fine views can be obtained. The township has over 1430 dwellings and substantial shops are built along High-street. The metropolitan lunatic asylum, situated at the extreme north-western corner of the borough on a reserve of 400 acres, is bounded on two sides by the Yarra Yarra river. This valuable area the Government have decided to subdivide and sell, reserving portion for recreation purposes; and remove the asylum. The literary institution has a library of over 6000 volumes. There is a State school, Methodist ladies' college, Roman Catholic college, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier and five churches. The town hall and municipal offices is a handsome and substantial building. The commodious post and public offices, situated at junction of High-street and Cotham-road, cost £10,000, and is an ornament to the district. Studley park reserve, the most picturesque in the colony, lies within the borough and is bounded on both sides by Yarra Yarra river and is within easy distance of the metropolis and very suitable for pic-nic parties. Victoria bridge opens up a direct route to the city, via Barkers-road and Victoria-street. Cable tram line from Spencer-street to Victoria bridge; thence by a horse tram line to corner of High-street and Park hill-road, Kew; fare, on each line, 3d.; with 1d. transfer tickets from each line. Boroondara general cemetery is pleasantly situated at the corner of said road; the grounds are tastefully laid out with shrubs and flowers; the horse tramway line stops near the gates. Outer Circle railway traverses northern part of borough from east to west and two stations are within municipal boundary. George Matear, postmaster.

RAILWAYS—Terminus of Melbourne (Princes Bridge) to Hawthorn and Kew railway; fares, 5½d. and 4½d.

TRAMWAY ROUTES—Fares, 4d. week days; 6d. Sundays; horse tram from Victoria-street Bridge to Boroondara Cemetery. See pages 89-91.

KEW—A prettily-situated municipal township, suburban to Melbourne, 4½ miles E., with post, money-order and telegraph offices and savings bank. Some parts of the locality are very elevated, from which fine views can be obtained. The township has over 1430 dwellings and substantial shops are built along High-street. Metropolitan lunatic asylum, situated at the extreme north-western corner of the borough on a reserve of 400 acres, is bounded on two sides by the Yarra Yarra river. The literary institute has a library of over 6000 volumes. State school, Methodist ladies' college. Roman Catholic college, dedicated to St. Francis Xavier and five churches. Town hall and municipal offices—a handsome and substantial building. Commodious post and public offices, situated at junction of High-street and Cotham-road (cost, £10,000). Studley park reserve, the most picturesque in the colony, lies within the borough and is bounded on both sides by Yarra Yarra river and is within easy distance of the metropolis, Victoria bridge opens up a direct route to the city, via Barkers-road and Victoria-street. Cable tram line from Spencer-street to Victoria bridge, thence by a horse tram line to corner of High-street and Park hill-road, Kew; fare, on each line, 3d.; with 1d. transfer tickets from each line. The Boroondara general cemetery is pleasantly situated and the grounds are tastefully laid out with shrubs and flowers. Joseph Parry, postmaster.

RAILWAYS—Terminus of Melbourne (Princes Bridge) to Hawthorn and Kew railway; fares, 5d. and 4d.

TRAMWAY ROUTES—Fare, 4d.; horse tram from Victoria-street Bridge to Boroondara Cemetery. See Melbourne Tramway Company, pages 30, 31.

KEW.—Kew's history may be said to commence from 8th February, 1803, when Charles Grimes, then Acting Governor-General of New South Wales, and his party reached what was to be later known as Dight's Falls on the Yarra River, and explored the surrounding country. The first land sale in Kew took place on 22nd January, 1845, and it is said that an early settler in the area declared, "Kew in England is near Richmond, this place is near Richmond; why not call it Kew?"

Location and Character.—The City of Kew is located 6 km east of Melbourne and is predominantly residential in nature. Major shopping centres are located in High Street at Kew and East Kew, and in Burke Road adjacent to Stradbroke Park.

Parks and Gardens.—The Council provides and maintains 57.5 hectares of public open space for both active and passive recreation, the major areas being Victoria Park (7.9 hectares), Alexandra Gardens (2.5 hectares), Stradbroke Park (8.3 hectares) and Willsmere Park (12.5 hectares). Yarra Bend Park, a magnificent area of some 125.4 hectares administered by a Government-appointed Trust, also lies within the boundaries of the City.

Recreational Facilities.—Some 40 sporting clubs are established in the City of Kew and all major sports are represented including football, cricket, golf, tennis, athletics, bowling, hockey and soccer. The municipal swimming pool is located in High Street adjacent to the Council Depot.

Educational Institutions.—Many leading educational institutions are located in the City including Xavier College, Trinity Grammar, Carey Baptist Grammar and Genazzano Convent. There are also two State primary schools, and the Kew High School to which is attached a Community Theatre.

Health Services and Institutions.—Two Health Inspectors and three Infant Welfare Sisters are employed by the Council and regular immunisation campaigns are conducted for residents of the municipality. Public hospitals, Henry Pride Geriatric Centre, St. George's and the Royal Talbot Rehabilitation Hospital are located in Kew together with six private hospitals and several special accommodation houses for the elderly. Kew is also the headquarters for the Guide Dog for the Blind Association, Institute of Early Childhood Development, Willsmere Psychiatric Hospital and the Kew/Hawthorn Citizens' Advice Bureau.

KEW—Kew's history may be said to commence from 8th February, 1803, when Charles Grimes, then Acting Governor-General of New South Wales, and his party reached what was to be later known as Dight's Falls on the Yarra River, and explored the surrounding country. The first land sale in Kew took place on 22nd January, 1845, and it is said that an early settler in the area declared, "Kew in England is near Richmond, this place is near Richmond; why not call it Kew?"

Location and Character—The City of Kew is located 6 km east of Melbourne and is predominantly residential in nature. Major shopping centres are located in High Street at Kew and East Kew, and in Burke Road adjacent to Stradbroke Park.

Parks and Gardens—The Council provides and maintains 57.5 hectares of public open space for both active and passive recreation, the major areas being Victoria Park (7.9 hectares), Alexandra Gardens (2.5 hectares), Stradbroke Park (8.3 hectares) and Willsmere Park (12.5 hectares). Yarra Bend Park, a magnificent area of some 125.4 hectares administered by a Government-appointed Trust, also lies within the boundaries of the City.

Recreational Facilities—Some 40 sporting clubs are established in the City of Kew and all major sports are represented including football, cricket, golf, tennis, athletics, bowling, hockey and soccer. The municipal swimming pool is located in High Street adjacent to the Council Depot.

Educational Institutions—Many leading educational institutions are located in the City including Xavier College, Trinity Grammar, Carey Baptist Grammar and Genazzano Convent. There are also two State primary schools, and the Kew High School to which is attached a Community Theatre.

Health Services and Institutions—Two Health Inspectors and three Infant Welfare Sisters are employed by the Council and regular immunisation campaigns are conducted for residents of the municipality. Public hospitals, Henry Pride Geriatric Centre, St. George's and the Royal Talbot Rehabilitation Hospital are located in Kew together with six private hospitals and several special accommodation houses for the elderly. Kew is also the headquarters for the Guide Dog for the Blind Association, Institute of Early Childhood Development, Willsmere Psychiatric Hospital and the Kew/Hawthorn Citizens' Advice Bureau.
