

Sunday a Day of Din

SIR, — THE CORRESPONDENCE in "The Age" about noisy motor mowers on Sunday is much to the point.

Our own quiet suburban backwater is now made hideous from dawn till dark on Sunday by the do-it-yourself brigade, banging, sawing, hammering and using power tools, as well as lawn mowers, with complete selfishness as regards the feelings or rights of others.

Along with them are the people who park cars on footpaths and leave commercial vehicles in the streets.

Should not the municipal councils intervene, before life develops completely into a rabble in the so-called residential suburbs?
