Thursday September 24, 1981

The Queen is the Patron of the Victorian Racing Museum, and will officially open the Museum on Tuesday.

The Victorian Racing Museum was formed in 1974 to establish and conduct a Public Museum containing objects that reflect historical matters connected with racing.

At the time of the official opening the Victorian Racing Museum will be one of only six such Museums in the world, and is believed to be the first of its kind in Australia.

As such, it is worthy of the support of all persons associated with the racing industry.

The Committee of the Victorian Racing Museum is representative of the racing industry in Victoria with the Victoria Racing Club, Victoria Amateur Turf Club, Moonee Valley Racing Club and the Country Racing Council all being represented.

The Museum aims to collect items for display in order that they will be preserved for posterity, thus enabling visitors to the Victorian Racing Museum to gain a deeper appreciation of the extent and importance of the history associated with racing.

The response to date has been most enthusiastic and an impressive display is being arranged for the official opening.

Initially, it is planned that the Museum will be open to the public on Caulfield racedays. Subsequent development should ensure that it becomes a significant tourist attraction.

A stroll around the famous Longchamp race course provided the inspiration for the museum.

Victoria Amateur Turf Club committeeman, Mr Bill Adams, arrived particularly early for a Sunday meeting at Longchamp and wandered into the museum at the course.

That was back in 1972 and on his return to Melbourne, Mr Adams suggested an Australian Racing Museum be established.

A committee was formed in 1974 to develop the idea.

Now the long wait is ending for Mr Adams, who is the foundation chairman of the Victorian Racing Museum committee.

The museum, incorporating a racing Hall Of Fame, is being prepared on the ground floor of the new office complex at Caulfield race course.

The response to the idea of the museum has been overwhelming.

Mr Adams said: "Everybody in Australian racing seems to be interested.

"We already have some magnificent displays organised including a complete showcase of trophies won by Manikato.

"I don't have any doubts that the museum is going to prove very successful".

Among the items on display will be a painting of the great Manfred, the 1884 Caulfield Cup won by Blink Bonny, the 1948 Caulfield Cup won by Red Fury, a sketch of the immortal Carbine and a replica of the 1942 Melbourne Cup won by Colonus.

Items promised to the museum include the Washington International trophy won by Sailor's Guide, an honors board of leading trainers and jockeys and a display of the development of the TAB in Victoria.

There is also a comprehensive library of Australian racing history.

The museum will also have a thetrette where films of Caulfield and Melbourne Cups, Phar Lap's major wins and the running of other feature races will be shown.

The museum committee secretary, Mr Dale Monteith said: "We are still seeking the assistance of all the sections of the industry in the collection of items associated with the history of racing.

"The response so far has been little short of amazing and we are very pleased, but we would still like people to consider donating or loaning items to the museum.

"We are hoping that, eventually, the museum will give visitors, whether they be race-goers or not, a deeper appreciation of the extent and importance of the history of our great sport".

Auxiliary success for year

The Royal Women's Hospital, Caulfield Auxiliary has had another good year.

A total of $1800 was raised during the year, $1410 of which has been given to the hospital towards the purchase of diathermy equipment for use in the operating theatres.

The ladies of the auxiliary were saddened at the death of their President, Mrs Bessant and are grateful for the years of service she has given.

Three more members of the group have now been presented with long service badges by the hospital and the new President of the auxiliary is Mrs Morling.

Big bin fame spreads far

The news of the success of Caulfield's garbage collection system has spread far and wide.

Wagga the number one country city of New South Wales is to commence with the same system in January, 1982.

Visiting the Caulfield Council Depot for further information was a representative from the NSW transport workers union and waste disposal experts.

But please — we need your help . . .

Residents are being asked to put only household garbage, garden refuse and other light items in the bins.

Heavy materials that have been put out have been causing damage to the collection trucks.

Your co-operation is requested in this area. Any such large unburnable items can be retained until the hard garbage collection or taken to the tip.

Any enquiries may be directed to the Waste Management Section at the Town Hall on 524 3240.

Street closure

AT the August meeting of Glenhantly branch the following resolution was passed: "That Glenhantly branch of the Australian Labor Party commends the Caulfield City Council for its plan to close off permanently those parts of Station Place and Watson Grove adjacent to Neerim Road in order to form a small park. With the growth of blocks of flats, breathing green spaces such as this become ever more necessary".

Glenhantly ALP has a long-standing commitment to increasing the number of community parks, particularly in areas with a high density of flats and units, to increase the aesthetic quality of the municipality and provide open spaces close to all residents.

Yours sincerely,
Tony Lupton,
Assistant-Secretary,
Glenhantly Branch.

Evening helps the disabled

A Wine and Cheese evening has been held at the studio of the State Artist Mr Harold Freedman, where a film was shown of the creation of the murals, completed by the State Artist, and his assistant artists, which include "The History of Transport" at Spencer Street Station, "The Regional History of Geelong" mosaic, and the current project, "The Legend of Fire" for the Metropolitan Fire Brigade.

Discussion followed with Mr Freedman, appointed by the State Government in 1972 to establish and develop a Studio of State Art, with the aim of producing a series of murals which would be a permanent record of the history of the State.

The current mural, when completed in January 1982, will be 25 metres high and 15 metres wide. The process involves the painting of a cartoon (1/4 scale) and a gigantic cartoon in charcoal to scale.

The final process is the matching and glueing of thousands of small Venetian glass tiles, of which there are 22,000 different colours available. The mural tells the story of an updated version of the Greek legend of fire involving Phaeton, Zeus and Prometheus who stole fire from the heavens. The lower two pictures depict hope and despair.

The studio shows a traditional Renaissance situation of an artist working on a grand scale, producing monumental works of art, of an historical nature for the community.

Works of art are structured from the co-ordination of researched material, to the development of symbols into abstract patterns, and then finally the completed visual symbol.

Proceeds from this interesting and entertaining evening amounted to over $300 for the International Year of the Disabled, donated by Caulfield Quotarians and friends.

Taking a firmer shore

A collection of stories "ON FIRMER SHORES". Winner of the Alan Marshall Award 1980 by Serge Liberman.

Seventeen stories in which the author adopting various roles — immigrant child, doctor, deserted wife, tourist, jester — tells of adjustment and maladjustment of Jewish migrants in a new land, of conflicts between the generations, of individuals and communities doomed by time and by their own natures, and of obsessed artists, rootless philosophers, and of impossible friendships and impossible loves.

"Human relationships are the author's chief interest; and the interdependent worlds of persons come to life in the stories. The author never forgets that human beings do not exist in a vacuum; some of the best writing is concerned with setting and environment and both of these elements are established in vivid and compelling prose... Utilisation of prose rhythms is outstanding. The writer fully exploits the resources of language."

From the citation accompanying the Alan Marshall Award.

Serge Liberman was born in Russia in 1942 and came to Australia in 1951.

Gifts from 'father'

At the Caulfield Rehabilitation Hospital Dr Bruce Ford, the Victorian "Father of the Year" for 1981, presented gift parcels to patients in Ward 10.

These long term patients are a special interest to Dr Ford as he is the Specialist in Charge of Rehabilitation an Geriatric Services at the Caulfield Hospital.

In 1968 Dr Ford was awarded an M.B.E. for his work for the aged and disabled while living and working in Canberra.

Apart from being the father of two daughters and grandfather to three grandsons, he is an author of a book titled "The Elderly Australian" which is available in Melbourne bookshops and highlights his knowledge and speciality of gerontology.

Dr Ford's award of "Father of the Year" for 1981 is particularly appropriate in this International Year of the Disabled People, because he has been disabled from birth.

However, his disability has not prevented him from pursuing a medical career and making a significant contribution to the Australian community.

Dr Ford was born in Sydney in 1926 and studied medicine at Sydney University, graduating in 1951.

After serving as a resident medical officer in several Sydney hospitals, he moved to Canberra in 1953, and went into general practice.

In 1961 he was appointed as medical officer to the rehabilitation service at the Canberra Hospital, and developed a Department of Rehabilitation of the Disabled and the Aged, which now operates from a large rehabilitation and geriatric unit at the Woden Valley Hospital in South Canberra.

In 1965 he began studying for his masters degree in sociology at the Australian National University, and presented his thesis — "A study of the dependent aged in the A.C.T.". He was awarded the Masters Degree in 1969.

He was awarded the Diploma of Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine in 1971 for a thesis entitled "The Rehabilitation of Blind People".

He is a Fellow of the Royal Australian College of Physicians, of the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners, and of the College of Medical Administrators.

In 1971 he took up the position of Director of Rehabilitation Services at the Alfred Hospital in Melbourne, based at Caulfield Hospital, which operates as a regional service for the aged and the handicapped in south eastern Melbourne.

He still holds this position. "The Elderly Australian" was written while on sabbatical leave as a visiting fellow at the Department of Sociology at the A.N.U.

While not elderly himself, he says he can feel the waves of old age splashing about his feet, but is sustained by his wife Clare, two daughters, and two grandsons.

THE mayor and Doctor Ford talk with one of the elderly patients of the hospital during the special visit.

Police seeking greater safety with bicycles

The Victoria Police Force has begun a concentrated program aimed at improving cyclist road behaviour and making roads safer for cyclists.

The "Bicycle Enforcement Program", as it is known, resulted from a trial study in the Geelong police district over a three-month period, from November 1979 to March 1980.

The state-wide program started in December 1980.

The trial in Geelong was conducted as part of the police contribution to the Geelong Bike Plan, which is a program designed to look at all aspects of bicycle use.

Following success of the trial the program is now being conducted Statewide.

Cyclists comprise a significant section of the vehicles using the roads in Victoria and, as a consequence, cyclists are involved in road accidents.

During 1979, at total of 44 cyclists died on Victorian roads and approximately 1000 suffered injuries which were reported to police. While figures for 1980 are still incomplete, it is known that at least 30 deaths were recorded.

To reduce this road toll and reinforce the enforcement program the Victoria Police Force is also involved in bicycle education programs.

For a road safety program involving cyclists to be successful it is necessary that the cyclist must be educated at an age level when he is most receptive to learning processes.

Children in the age group seven to 17 years comprised the largest group involved in accidents — or 72 per cent of the total — so, any campaign at cyclists must initially concentrate on this group.

To achieve this the Education Department, RoSTA and the Geelong Bike Plan Committee combined with the Police Department to introduce an education program into schools, which initially will be aimed at children in the Year 4 to Year 7 school group (mainly nine to 13 years).

The education program — called "Bike-Ed" — is a special instruction safety kit to assist teachers in the instruction of bicycle safety.

The kit consists of a series of prepared lectures, colored slides, blackboard teaching aids and a sound tape recording. It is designed to take the children through a planned progression of lessons on cycle safety.

The lessons cover five basic units—

- Sharing the road with

- Bike mechanics — Maintenance of cycles
- Riding skills — Creating competent riders
- On the road — Practical application under control of teacher, and
- The road test — Assessment of skills learned.

The lessons learned from the Bike-Ed program are then reinforced in a practical situation on the road, by the Bicycle Enforcement Program.

This program is primarily designed to identify cyclists (regardless of age) who are persistent traffic offenders, with a view to educating them on the need to comply with the law, for their own welfare and the safety of others.

As most youthful cyclists will eventually become motorists, it is hoped that by educating them at an early age on the need to comply with road laws, buy the time they reach the age of being able to obtain a driver's licence they will be better educated to the rules of the road and have more regard for their fellow road users, particularly cyclists.

Foundation thanks from the heart

The President and Directors of the Victorian Division of the National Heart Foundation express their gratitude to residents of Caulfield for their interest and support in last year's Appeal which resulted in total Caulfield contributions of $7,200.

The 1981 Appeal weekend is to be held on 24 and 26 October with a door-knock in Caulfield on Sunday 25 October.

Joint Chairmen of the local campaign, Councillors Geoff Patience and Jack Campbell also express their appreciation of the wide-spread support given by the community and those who volunteered to help in the door-knock appeal.

Anyone willing to give an hour or two in door knocking is invited to contact Jack Campbell at 523 9228 or Mrs Polglase on 524 3224.

Scholarships

EVERY Year the Council gives $250 in scholarship money to each of the secondary schools of the City. These funds are then distributed at the discretion of the school.

Rodney Frost a year 8 student from Caulfield High School has been awarded a scholarship this year as has Janina King from Murrumbena School.

Conveniences

AT last month's council Meeting, Cr Russell McKimm enquired whether Council had a policy of installing hooks on doors in public toilets.

No such policy exists. However, the Manager-Operations Mr Ian Cairns advised that he would arrange for the installation of suitable hooks in the public toilets of the city.

Objections

FOLLOWING the application by Reg Hunt Rhodes to extend its sales area, objections were received by residents and discussions were held.

Agreement has been reached and the application withdrawn.

The Council will proceed to widen the nature strip along sections of Oak Avenue and amend the planning brief for the area that was adopted in May, 1980 as part of the Gardenvale Neighbourhood Traffic Study.

Salmonella

DURING the recent outbreak of Salmonella poisoning, two Caulfield residents were suspected of having the disease.

The Council's Health Surveyors purchased many samples of the suspected salami for bacterial analysis, but only one was found to be defective.

All Tibaldi salami was withdrawn from sale at the time and clearance has now been received from the Health Commission for sales to continue.

Recyclable material

THE collection and disposal of recyclable material is causing a large headache.

Trials are at present being undertaken to establish a more economical and efficient method of collecting and disposing of paper, glass and aluminium cans.

It has been found that this program has been labour intensive time consuming with little return on the goods and has therefore been a very costly service.

Another roundabout

THE Council will proceed with the installation of a roundabout at the intersection of Poath and Kangaroo Roads.

This follows a petition signed by 395 residents of Oakleigh and Murrumbena requesting the installation of traffic signals at the intersection.

Following the installation of the roundabout the treatment will be monitored and the need for signals will be re-assessed if traffic flows increase in the future.

Road closure

APPLICATION will be made to the Minister for the permanent closure of Watson Grove and Neerim Road.

This follows a successful trial road closure. Residents of the area are mostly in favour of the proposal.

Application will be made to RoSTA for angle parking at the south end of Watson Grove to assist with the parking for the Glenhuntingly shopping centre.

Holiday Program Successful

UP to 190 children attended the Recreation Centre each weekday of the August school holidays for a program of holiday activities.

Children took part in sport, drama, craft and other activities. This program has been running for many years and has established itself as a worthwhile Council service.

Students

TWO final year Social Work students from Monash University will be a part of the Community Development team until the end of the year.

They will be gaining experience in child care, residential care and domiciliary care and will be looking more closely at some of these Council activities with a view to general improvement in the services.

Audio visual installations

THE Council Chambers are taking on a modern look as the installation of its video system nears completion.

Television monitors have been installed to allow for the replaying of video tapes of some agenda items. This will enable Councillors to actually see particular applications and items and therefore aid the decision-making process.

More after-school activities

A PUBLIC meeting was held at Caulfield North Central school with the objective of establishing an After School Program.

Attendance was very good, and there seems to have been good support from many areas of the school community. It is hoped this program will commence in late October.

By the end of the year there looks like being a network of five such programs operating within local schools on every school day and a further two at the Recreation and Arts Centres on a three and two day per week basis respectively.

Supervisor retires

MRS RENE Phillips, Supervisor of the Camden Court Hostel since its opening, retires on October 10.

Residents are planning a farewell function and will miss her personalised attention and care.

Mrs Phillips also enjoys painting and many of her works have been hung around the hostel.

As the first signs of spring are evident around us so is a project which has been taking shape during the first part of 1981 and is now ready to begin again.

The project is a refuge for homeless teenagers in the Southern Region. With the withdrawal of the existing house at the start of this year and the search for suitable house parents, the project is now bursting to begin again, refreshed with reviewed vigour and vision.

Di l'Anson is to take up one of the staffing positions, however, we are still seeking another person to work with her as co-house parents for the young people coming through the refuge.

Oakleigh and its neighbouring southern suburbs are not untouched from the plight of young people, who for various reasons, find themselves homeless. It is a growing problem among all sectors of society and one that demands a response from the community in which we are a part.

Any social issue has its complexities.

Spring, and a 1981 project wakes up from winter

Young people are finding themselves with no permanent place to live, more often than not, because of the pressures of being unemployed and because of recurring incidences in family breakdown.

It is then a case of suffering from an inadequate income and lack of access to low cost housing.

In the Southern Region there are presently only two organised groups providing services for homeless young people in the form of Refuge placements and placements within families in the community. These two groups — Fusion and B.U.S.H. (Bayside Unemployed Self Help) are Christian communities serving and responding to the needs of their local communities in Murrumbidgee and Mordialloc - Mentone, respectively.

The refuge situation offers short-medium term accommodation for young people. It is hopefully a time in which a young person can be part of a stable, and warm family environment. During the time spent at the Refuge a young person is encouraged to develop personal goals so that they might be better equipped to handle their independent situations on leaving the refuge environment.

Spring is a time of new beginnings. The young people who are placed in the refuge have an opportunity to reassess where their lives are headed and begin to experience a process of renewal so that over time, they are better equipped to confront life and all its challenges.

Di sees it as crucial to develop more support, links and understanding with the community. If you have any questions or comments please don't hesitate to contact Di or Faye at Fusion on 568 4949.

Time to think about citizenship

The date of the naturalisation ceremony at the Caulfield Town Hall has been changed.

Instead of being held on November 5 it will now be held on December 2, but it will still be held at the Town Hall.

When you become an Australian citizen, you are required during the citizenship ceremony to renounce all other allegiance. But not everyone making the renunciation automatically ceases to be a citizen of another country. You may find that you remain a citizen of another country at the same time. This is called having "dual citizenship" or "dual nationality".

It comes about because Australia has no control over the laws of other countries. Throughout the world each country is free to decide for itself who its citizens will be. Each country is free also to decide under what conditions citizenship is given or lost. This may not affect you while you remain in Australia.

But if you have "dual citizenship" it may affect you when travelling overseas or in your dealings with other countries. You may find that you still have certain obligations to another country. You may be subject to all the laws and requirements of that country, including military service and the need to obtain an exit permit before leaving.

In some circumstances, the local authorities may not allow Australian representatives to give consular or diplomatic protection. That could be so even though you are an Australian citizen travelling on an Australian passport.

Some countries which could possibly retain claims over Australian citizens, even including some born in Australia, are Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, United Arab Republic, the German Democratic Republic, Eire, France, Greece, Hungary, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Lebanon, Poland, Romania, Syria, Switzerland and Yugoslavia. Citizens of Britain, Canada and New Zealand also retain their citizenship on becoming Australians.

This is not a complete list. If you are uncertain of your status, you should seek advice from the appropriate authorities.

You will benefit from:

- entitlement, under Australian law, to the same rights as people born in Australia;

THE date of the Naturalisation ceremony at Caulfield Town Hall was changed so that the Federal Minister for Immigration and Ethnic Affairs, Mr Ian MacPhee, could attend.

- the right to apply for appointment to any public office or to stand for election as a member of parliament;
- the right as a voter to help elect Australia's governments; and
- the right to apply for an Australian passport and to leave and re-enter Australia without applying for a re-entry authority.

Acquiring Australian citizenship does not mean that you immediately qualify to receive an Australian pension. Even people born in Australia have to fulfil certain residence qualifications before they are entitled to receive pensions and you should check with the Department of Social Security about your Australian social security entitlements.

If you receive a pension or allowance from the government of some other country, you should ask the authority from whom you receive the benefit whether it will continue to be paid if you become an Australian citizen.

Application forms and other information are available from offices of the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs. You should fill in an application form and take or post it to any office of the Department.

When your form is received the information you provide will be checked. This will include a police check about your character.

You will be invited to attend an interview with an officer or representative of the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs.

At the interview you will need to produce evidence establishing your present nationality, the date and place of your birth and the date of your arrival in Australia. You should take with you any passports, travel papers or other documents providing this information.

If you are married to an Australian citizen you should also have your marriage certificate with you and proof of the citizenship of your marriage partner. This could be a birth certificate or certificate of Australian citizenship.

Any information you provide will be treated as private and confidential.

The interviewing officer will answer any questions you may have. You will be asked whether you want to attend a public citizenship ceremony in your district or one arranged by the Department of Immigration and Ethnic Affairs.

Lions clubs to collect old drugs

Lions clubs throughout Caulfield are taking the fight against accidental drug abuse into the home.

From September 28 to October 12 they are running a pill pickup service for those unwanted drugs and medicines which mount up in the family medicine cabinet.

Deteriorating and contaminated antibiotics, cold tablets, analgesics and a host of other medications which are not in current use are being stored for the next bout of self-diagnosed flu, headache or cold.

The effectiveness of many of the pills, capsules and mixtures has expired long ago and they have deteriorated to such a degree that they would now have a completely different effect when taken than that for which they were prescribed.

The soggy aspirin you redeemed from the bottom of the bathroom cupboard could, depending on the length and conditions of storage have degenerated into an acidic substance which is used in the treatment of warts, according to Mr Andrew Weiss.

As a pharmacist at the Royal Melbourne Hospital, Mr Weiss is well informed about the dangers of people storing medication beyond the natural expiry time.

The Lions clubs will conduct a campaign which they hope will result in the disposal of all unwanted and unused medicines, pills and tablets in the homes throughout the area.

Mr Weiss says the clubs hope the campaign, which has been authorised by the State Health Department will lead to the destruction of all unwanted, unused and potentially dangerous medications.

"Our aim is to get rid of all medication not in current use," Mr Weiss said.

According to Mr Weiss most people are ignorant of the dangers involved when pills, tablets and medicines (whether prescribed or bought over the counter) are stored and administered at a later date.

Some of the 20,000 cases reported to the Poisons Information Centre at the Royal Childrens Hospital in one particular year would have been people who had taken medication which reacted with a condition they had.

An example is a diabetic accepting cough mixture from his next door neighbour, who knows nothing of his condition. The cough mixture could have a heavy concentration of sugar.

Many of the accidental poisonings of small children could be avoided by safe disposal of these unused items.

The Lions clubs are giving you the opportunity to dispose of your unwanted and dangerous medicines in the safest way.

If you are in doubt about any of your medicines you should contact the Health Commission.

Learning to use the law

THE law protects — but few people really know how it does so and what needs to be done to obtain its protection, says a Melbourne lawyer.

This is true for the citizen as well as for people, who, by occupation or by chance, find that they are called upon to offer advice on the law, according to Mr Charles Aitken, Community Lawyer with the Caulfield Institute of Technology.

Common topics are legal aid, tenancy and consumer problems, credit law, social security, family law, Wills and the function of the Public Trustee.

To meet the demand for better education in these areas, CIT and the Australian Legal Workers Group has now organised a six week course entitled Law for Advisors. It is aimed specifically at people who give initial advice to others.

The course is conducted by people with a working knowledge of the areas involved, and concentrates on the practical administration of the law, and the capabilities and limitations of various agencies,' Mr Aitken said.

These include representatives from Community Legal Centres, the legal Aid Commission, the Tenants' Union, the Department of Consumer Affairs, the Department of Social Security, the Public Trustee's Office and the Victorian Council of Social Service.

The program begins on 14 October at the Malvern Library Auditorium, and runs a night a week each Wednesday thereafter from 7.30 to 9 p.m. The cost of the course is $15.

More information on the course may be obtained from CIT Counselling Services on 573 2500.

Delegation visits hospital

A delegation of Labor politicians, met with Caulfield Hospital staff, to ascertain the future needs of the hospital.

The delegation on September 4, included Mr Tom Roper, Labor

Spokesman on Health, Dr. Gerard Vaughan, member for Glenhuntly, and Labor Candidate for Caulfield Mr Jack Diamond.

They met with Medical Director, Dr. Bruce Ford, hospital manager Mr Garnet Edwards and acting Deputy Matron, Miss Jacqueline Dick.

The delegation were shown plans for the new rehabilitation building which had been reduced from its original intended size due to costs.

He said he, Dr. Vaughan and Mr Diamond would continue to press the Government to release its forward building program to see what the Government promises were in reality.

The group also visited the hospitals cardiac area, which had impressed all the group. Mr Roper stated that "this area is a good example of bringing existing buildings into the twentieth century."

Women facing bigger tasks

Today's woman is faced with challenges once known exclusively as "men's work" — choosing a career, raising and financially supporting a family, planning for the future. This new independent role, though exciting and fulfilling is often stressful and difficult as well.

But there is a new programme in the community that can help ease the inevitable stress brought on by increased responsibility.

Effectiveness Training for Women (ETW) offers the information and skills to help today's woman ease her anxiety, solve her problems, say

"no" when she really wants to, and stay in control of her life.

Women who have taken this course have become aware of their needs and values and learnt how to be assertive in positive ways, reducing excessive stress caused by communicating ineffectively with family, friends and co-workers.

Shirley Ernest will be conducting classes at the Community Care Centre, 240 Kooyong Road, Caulfield, starting Wednesday 30th September. There are 10 sessions of 3 hours each and the cost is $75 including books.

For information ring 528 5705.

Good year for history

It has been an excellent year for Caulfield Historical Society, many new members have joined, and more important, most have continued to attend our meetings, which are held on the third Wednesday of each month, December and January excepted, at the Caulfield Town Hall.

The society said: "We are entering a new era for interest in local history, not only in Caulfield, but throughout the State of Victoria."

"Until a few years ago, we, as Australians showed little or no interest in our past. This country, everyone said, was too new, in a history sense, we had no heritage, and insufficient time had elapsed since our first beginnings for any appreciation of our history to be formed."

"This idea has now, fortunately, changed — there is a great awakening to our National Heritage and under the guidance of the Royal Historical Society of Victoria, Historical Societies are being formed throughout the State."

"The history of any Nation, State, City, Shire or Town consists of the individual lives of its inhabitants, and records of these should be preserved and recorded for posterity."

"The Caulfield Historical Society was formed some ten years ago for just this purpose, to record the lives, and deeds — good or bad — of our forebears."

"Remember always what we as citizens of Caulfield do, and how we act today, will be of interest, and recorded by our descendants, fifty or one hundred years from now."

Don't miss this fascinating and enlightening experience.

This pre-school recently received a substantial grant from the Caulfield City Council which has enabled them to retain the services of an extra assistant/co-ordinator for their multicultural programme.

This has given the programme a substantial boost — a programme which is more extensive and demanding, in resources, time, effort and finance than a normal programme.

Caulfield community service

Caulfield Community Service, CCS, in the past year failed to satisfactory implement its Budget Advisory Service for lack of clients, it conducted a seminar to look at social service needs and of course continued to support services already introduced in association with Caulfield Citizens Advice Bureau, CAB.

The most notable of these existing services is the free Legal Advice Service, thanks to dedicated volunteer solicitors, the Architects Advisory Service and the Early Planning for Retirement Group.

Following receipt of a $250 FACS grant in 1980 and the training of volunteer counsellors, considerable difficulty was experienced in finding clients for this service.

After many frustrations including the loss of some counsellors, discussion with Caulfield Council resulted in some clients being referred and these people were assisted.

It appears, however, that to be fully effective, some recourse to financial aid and/or debt consolidation is a necessary adjunct. It is understood that such a service is being contemplated by CAB.

On Caulfield Community Day CCS again participated by selling Big 'M' milk and endeavouring to obtain public comment on needs in the community.

Proceeds of milk sales, $125, were donated to The Ladies Benevolent Society in Caulfield.

Needs identified were for more volunteer visiting to the frail, aged and domiciliary library service.

In the Community Garden Scheme: As a result of this proposal from Mr D. E. Kent, a public meeting to discuss prospects was called in conjunction with Caulfield Contact.

Caulfield Council officers are preparing a report on the availability of suitable land.

Many private gardens, however, held by the elderly, or people now incapacitated for gardening are in need of voluntary garden help. Publicity is to be given to this need.

Angling to beat the age limits

A 15-YEAR-OLD fisherman has swept the pools at the Oakdale Angling and Fish Protection Society to become the champion of champions.

It is only the second time in the 25 year history of the club that a junior has won the title, but Andy Rabli (pictured right) has managed to take it in his stride with all the other fishing awards he has collected.

The club was formed in 1956 because at the time there was very limited provision for family and junior involvement in angling and it was felt there was a need to provide this facility.

Since then it has grown into one of the biggest fishing clubs in Australia with 410 members.

The club president Mr Tony Minear said that the club had its own facilities at Waratah Bay and was aiming to expand its facilities to give even greater service to its members.

He said the concept of getting more family involvement in fishing had been the basis for the success of the club.

As well he said that as the name of the club implied there was a strong emphasis on conservation of the Australian fish varieties.

So much so that the former junior who had picked up the champion of champions title had taken a senior position with the Fisheries and Wildlife department.

Greens ready to go

After the winter break and following the Official Opening on Friday, September 4, all is in readiness for a bumper year.

Members, associates and new members will be anxious to participate in bowling on our tip top green.

Caulfield Socials club needs players

CAULFIELD Socials Cricket Club was formed in 1950-51 season by Mr Jack Lidsey and Mrs Pat Lidsey and some interested people and the club functioned for the first season with only nine players.

The first venue wicket was in Darling Park in Glen Iris, and no winning games were recorded, although there was some excellent performances with two players winning Association averages (K. Burns batting, L. Hyde Bowling, and Mrs Pat Lidsey winning the special award for the Best Kept Scorebook for the whole of the Association).

Players in the inaugural team were: J. Lidsey (capt.), T & W McKerchar, K. Downard, K. & A. Lidsey, E. Sherwood, K. Burns, L. Hyde.

Mr W. McKerchar was the first President and served for about seven years in that capacity until his death.

Mrs Lidsey served as Secretary/Scorer for 23 years continuously. Mr J. Lidsey served for 20 years as Treasurer until resigning to accept the position as Secretary of the Caulfield District Association.

Recruiting for the next season resulted in acquiring the services of Ken Morgan an all-rounder, who won the Association batting with an undefeated record of 135 for the home and away games, however the averages at that time carried into the final series, and Ken made 45 & 43 to reduce his average to 99.7.

Our second season saw a change of venue to East Caulfield Park, 3 years, then Caulfield Park and success came immediately, in playing in the Semi-Final. For the next seven years, the Club played in the semi-finals being defeated each time.

In 1960-61 a second team was entered by the Club and in 1961-62 a junior team was entered.

Mr Len Ferris (L/H batsman and bowler) was selected as Club Captain in 1962-63 and led the team to its first Premiership. In 1965-66, Mr Jeff McSwain (Bomber) was selected as Captain on the retirement of Len, and another premiership resulted.

Members who attained higher levels in Cricket were: Mr R. McKenzie (St Kilda), Mr N. Lidsey (Collingwood).

Mrs Lidsey is currently scoring for the Collingwood 2nd XI and Mr J. Lidsey is currently Secretary of the Collingwood Cricket Club.

Mr Lidsey was the inaugural secretary for the amalgamation of the Mercantile and Caulfield District Association, and was given Life Membership for services.

Messrs Fred (Batsman/Bowler), John (Batsman/Bowler), Fitzgerald, and N. Lidsey (Batsman/W/keeper) represented the Association in the under 21 V.C.U. (now the C.U.O.V.) series on three occasions.

After winning six premierships in the Mercantile Caulfield District Cricket Association, Caulfield Social entered the City of Moorabbin cricket association in 1978, and was runner-up in the 1979-80 grand-final.

Caulfield socials cricket club plays at Caulfield Park, Balacava Rd., Caulfield and requires players.

The club trains on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Anyone interested in playing can contact Mr Fred Fitzgerald on 578 5749, or come to the ground and you will be most welcome.
