It's a dog's life for Eric

Life is tough with a bucket over your head. But when you have an ear infection something is the only thing that will silence the scratching of the damn thing.

"Contact" caught Mrs Sally Fleming out walking with her dog, Eric, in Ormond recently.

Mrs Fleming's other dog, Phoebe, took a liking to Eric and kept biting it; resulting in an ear infection.

New Housing Plan for Caulfield

Caulfield Council's "Housing in Caulfield" study was initially intended to be implemented by the end of 1982 according to Forward Planner Mr John Riley. The study has been accepted by the Council and is now being considered by other authorities concerned with the proposals, said Mr Riley.

The study outlines proposals for improving housing opportunities for the community as well as revitalising the type of housing in the city. The proposals are acting upon include providing a greater variety of housing types, dual occupancy of a single house and supporting the concept of the Building Subdivisional Act for freehold subdivisions.

Other proposals include permitting town house developments in any part of the city and a more flexible approach to court and semi-detached dwelling density.

Low Rental Plans

A breakthrough in low rental accommodation is likely with the development in a Caulfield area of a new type of low rental or emergency accommodation.

The Council will also encourage the Melbourne Regional Housing Authority to set up a freehold subdivision in Caulfield to supplement the local stock of low cost rental housing.

Mr. Thomas, one of the tenants, said an executive from the Y. M. C. A., another big agency in the Caulfield area.

He denied that rents would rise by 20% in the Caulfield area. According to him, the rise would be slightly more than 10 per cent. He did not expect the government's measures or the interest rate ceiling to have an immediate impact on the housing shortage though they could be beneficial to tenants in the long run.

Waste Paper Collection

There appears to be some confusion among tenants regarding the reasons for the increased charges for waste paper collection. The tenants are hardly in a position to resist the increases since shifting would only be a more expensive alternative.

Some elderly tenants have been known to object but they accept the increase as inevitable.

One agent explained that the increase was worked out on a reasonable level. "Although we stand to gain more by letting out vacant accommodation because we can ask for a rent higher than the increased rent, we prefer to keep our existing tenants to stay on. However, a tenant on a fixed income would never expect to be exempted from a rent increase "because that would be unfair to other tenants."

Rents increase are determined by the market rate and the landlord's outgoings in the property. "Landlords have to pay on their extra commitments to the tenants," said an executive from the Y. M. C. A., another big agency in the Caulfield area.

Tests carried out by a Weight and Measures Union show the consumer is being "cheated off" when buying frozen scallops.

The weight of scallops when thawed was considerably less than when frozen. In other words the consumer is paying for water as well as scallops when buying the frozen packaged product.

Tests were carried out last year on three types of scallops - a frozen "wet pack", "dry pack" and "wet pack" scallops.

All suppliers were advised of this decision and that the得分 system of collection will be re-instated after that period of time.

Dental Clinics

Madam,

As a former parent trained school teacher and a very young and have trained school teacher, I am most surprised that some arrangement be made for free Dental Care had not been considered.

Caufield Council has many facilities for its children and day care, mind nursing agencies, day care centers and playgroups - for free Dental Clinic to be considered.

The parents of children attending the Murumbeena School would certainly welcome this additional service for their children and all the young residents of the City of Caulfield.

I am writing on behalf of the Mayor included nine original Anzac who were members of that ill-fated Rosstown Court and of the Mr. Clyne's suggestion that we should tax more heavily the massive pay-out of the superannuation funds is quite ludicrous considering legislation would be required to do this, and politicians are the most powerful group of beneficiaries of these settlements.

I would commend Mr. Clyne on his funding arrangements for the Rosstown Court Hospital, where many of the present residents have sold family homes in order to provide an interest free loan to the Hospital.

The peer group he mentions in the previous issue, concern with the manner in which public funds are used.

The concert also accompanied the Victorian Welsh Singers and Jo-anne Rone - in the Annual Red Shield Appeal.

Concert success

Madam,

On April 17, the Ladi's Auxiliaries of the Royal Southern Memorial Hospital held a Concert in the Caufield Arts Centre. This concert was certainly a wonderful Festival of Music.

The Artists were the Victorian Welsh Singers - a group of 30 male and female professional singers, many popular and well known Welsh songs, some unaccompanied - and also Jon Davey, soprano with a voice and Alison Comarr and Keith Allen on piano.

The concert also included items by the Caulfield City Band - which accompanied the

Thank-you

Madam,

I am writing on behalf of an elderly lady, Mrs Bell, Ormond, who recently had a short stay in the Caulfield Community Hospital.

She would like to thank everyone concerned at the hospital, and thought that the best way for everyone, would be through your paper.

"It is a tribute to Ward 5, Caulfield Hospital, thank you to medical staff, day and night, nursing staff, all other staff, Occupational Therapy, and Jan and staff of Physiotherapy.

God Bless."

I would appreciate it if you could print this for Mrs Bell. She is 88 and recently had a fall, broken a bone in her leg. However she is now up and about again.

Francis Hanrahan, Glenhuntly.

CAULFIELD REMEMBERS

Anzac Day in Caulfield again brought a flood of memories to the many residents who joined with the Mayor and Counsellors in a remembrance service at the Caulfield Cats Paw Park.

Special guests of the Mayor included nine original Anzacs who were members of that ill-fated Rosstown Court who had landed at Gallipoli.

Prior to landing the men were assembled on the island of Lemnos off the coast of Greece. Troopships were still landing men to be replaced for the early morning landing of 25th April, 1915 - 47 years ago.

Due to this landing HMS Elizabeth had been bombarding the shores of Gallipoli to gain an advantage, against the Turks, for the Anzacs and others.

It did not take long to discover that Gallipoli was from being an ideal landing point. The Turkish Army was entrenched on high ground and the result was that the beach found to be impossible to advance from their position.

The story of the Gallipoli add their stories to the saga.

Mr. J. C. Stedman attended Caulfield's ceremony with his daughter. He is now 89 years of age and was in one of the first wave of reinforcements units to land at Gallipoli - he was 21 years of age and was later evacuated to Lemnos, suffering from jaundice.

After his discharge from hospital he served in Egypt near the Suez Canal awaiting the second night at Gallipoli he was sent on patrol and later served in Egypt and France. Mr. Kirfield was wounded in France and became the first Australian soldier to be treated at the Ortafa Hospital, Rome.

Mr. P. C. Bland is now 88 years of age. On his second landing he was sent on patrol with Captain Jacka V.C. They were trying to deter some who were doing damage to troops landing on the beaches.

Mr. Bland says Captain Jacka certainly inspired him to war service and he never spent a more terrifying night before or since.

We need considerable assistance to have these envelopes delivered to every household during the school holiday Break.

Concentrations in this way will be an important and tangible means of helping refugees.

Gerald Vaughan and Ted Tanger, State Members of Parliament representing 70 percent of the City of Caulfield, are signatories to the appeal letter and will be co-ordinating the envelope drop.

THE NEXT THREE YEARS - Chances for Caulfield

Government has indicated that promises which will require thousands of millions of dollars to implement. Many of these promises on Caulfield will be assessed by time and charges will be met by the local community. However, the government has committed to its Caulfield residents, as to all residents of Victoria, that there will be a limited amount of money available for public transport systems in existing areas such as Caulfield.

Therefore, one of my priorities for the next three years is to see how the government will respond to the extensive debate on the provision of public transport in Caulfield.

I would like to see the government review all government legislation, regulations and executive actions to attempt to minimise any adverse impact in terms of additional taxes and charges, or reductions or limitations upon funds available for existing services and facilities in the Caulfield area.

As Shadow Minister for Transport and Labour and Industry, I have a strong opinion on the employment opportunities for Caulfield residents, as well as the training opportunities for Caulfield residents, to help improve people's job prospects. Although we usually think of training in terms of young people, there is an urgent need for retraining programmes for Caulfield residents to upgrade their skills and enable them to acquire new skills and new employment opportunities.

I believe that growth of job opportunities must be a priority for Caulfield through an expansion in employment and training opportunities. However, there is a need for Caulfield residents to take advantage of a system of self-help and self-training. Many Caulfield residents have already been trained in self-help and self-training programmes. Caulfield residents should be encouraged to undertake existing skills to meet an urgent need for retraining programmes in the Caulfield area to upgrade their skills and enable them to acquire new skills and new employment opportunities.

I would like to see the government adopt initiatives to provide more initiative, efficiency and opportunities for Caulfield residents. I would like to see Caulfield residents elect an initiative, efficiency and opportunities for Caulfield residents.

I think the people of Caulfield, as well as the residents of Caulfield, are entitled to their own political representatives. A self-help scheme to generate new jobs has started operating from 842 Glen Eira Road in Caulfield.

Called "Employ", it was initiated five months ago by a group of unemployed graduates and has already started yielding results.

"Employ" not only seeks to create jobs but to open up new opportunities and harness existing skills.

According to Libby Stewart, the driving force behind the group, most people are "under-employed" and the scheme provides them with the opportunity to exploit their potential fully in novel ways.

Thus, "Employ" has turned beachcombing into a job opportunity for zoologists and botanists and explains the flora and fauna of Melbourne's beaches for a small fee. These weekend Seaside Safaris have already become popular at a number of bayside beaches.

Other "Employ" projects include a herb garden, a directory, an audio-visual service for hire, furniture restoration and a monthly newspaper to serve the interests of the unemployed.

Projects are set up after proposals have been received and their viability examined. A task group is responsible for each project. Anyone interested in the project is welcome to attend the monthly general meeting and, if interested in a particular project, can volunteer to participate in it.

The projects are designed to impart training and preserve expertise, but it is possible to pick up new skills through involvement in a project. "Employ" gives priority to unemployed skilled personnel to utilise their skills effectively.

Nonetheless, participation is encouraged to ensure that all have the opportunity to be gainfully occupied. It is the primary aim to employ that is attracting new members every day. At present the membership stands at fifty and includes lawyers, teachers, engineers, journalists, financiers, executives and musicians.

"Employ" is being considered as a cooperative and will soon have a computer system.

To meet the increasing demand for new projects, "Employ" is seeking funds to expand its operations and will soon have a computer system.

The informal meetings are held at 760-744 Dandenong Road, opposite the Caulfield station.

The annual Southern Fisheries Development Conference, held at the Caulfield Hotel, was initiated five years ago by a group of fishermen and is now in its third year.

The conference is a meeting place for fishermen and government officials to discuss fisheries problems and the development of fishing industry in Victoria.

The conference is supported by the Victorian Government, which contributes financially to the event.

The conference is held annually in September and is attended by fishermen, government officials, and other interested parties.

The conference aims to provide a platform for the discussion of issues related to the fishing industry and to promote the development of sustainable fisheries in Victoria.

The conference includes sessions on topics such as fishing regulations, fish stock assessment, and market trends.

The conference also includes a trade exhibition, where fishing equipment and services are showcased.

The conference is an opportunity for the fishermen to network, share knowledge, and exchange ideas on issues related to their profession.

The conference is an important event for the Victorian fishing industry, as it provides a forum for the discussion of issues related to the fishing industry and to promote the development of sustainable fisheries in Victoria.
