sion has just released its latest proposals for alterations to the Municipal boundaries of the Bayside Melbourne area. In the three options put forward, it would seem that a Caulfield/Malvern amalgamation is the preferred option of the tive boundary changes, but the latest report of the Comission has restricted fact that Malvern has been their options to amalgamaexamining all the alternation with Caulfield or amalgamation with a small part of Oakleigh.

"It is now time to seriously talk about the most obvious course of action for us both"

Caulfield is in an enviable position in that the restructure process has not, at any stage, threatened any intrusion into its existing boundaries.

Cr Blair believes that an amalgamation between Caulfield and Malvern would be beneficial, "Both municipalities are similar in kind and nature. They enjoy a high standard of service delivery and a low rating structure", he said. "The facilities of each City would be complementary and there would be greater opportunities for economies of scale".

The City of Caulfield as it presently exists is an efficient and modern Council. It has a reputation as an innovator within the sphere of Local Government and has successfully introduced a number of unique services.

With a combined population of around 130,000, the new Council would have the resources and political strength accruing to one of the largest Local Government Authorities in Victoria

"I would like to see an amalgamation between Caulfield and Malvern", said Cr Blair. "I believe it is time for the Councils to meet together and discuss the proposal positively".

vantage to the City. Council studies have also shown the need for the facility in terms of consumer demand and an attraction in the Elsternwick Shopping precinct. Every effort will be made to minimise the impact of the supermarket on the surrounding area, including substantial landscaping and traffic treatments. Mr Aylen pointed out that the Council decision was only the first step in a long process. Further discussions will be held with the developers, Consulere Pty Ltd, to address some of the specific concerns of the residents in relation to traffic, landscaping, use of the roof-top carpark, and building design. Four properties will need to be acquired on the south side of Maysbury Avenue.

Mr Aylen said that resident input had certainly tested the viability and quality of the proposal, and had been valuable in identifying areas where improvements could be made to the development. In the planning processes to follow, the residents will have many opportunities to put their case to independent authorities. Mr Aylen said that the Council would put its best case for the development and willingly accept the decisions of those authorities.

AMALGAMATION - The Story So Far

When the Local Government Commission decided to investigate municipal boundary changes in the Bayside Melbourne area the Councils involved were invited to make submissions.

In its original submission in December 1985 Caulfield's preference was to remain as it was, within existing boundaries.

However, if at that time, the Commission felt that it was necessary for Caulfield's borders to be extended then the preference was for amalgamation with Malvern or an expansion in a southerly direction along Nepean Highway, Centre Road and Warrigal Road.

The southerly expansion was ruled out in the first options paper published by the Commission. It now seems that there are three possibilities for Caulfield.

OPTION A — The municipalities of Caulfield and Malvern become one

 $\begin{array}{l} OPTION \ B- \ As \ well \ as \ joining \ Caulfield \ and \ Malvern \ this \ option \ would \ include \ a \ portion \ of \ the \ City \ of \ Oakleigh \ bounded \ by \ the \ Mulgrave \ Freeway, \ Huntingdale \ Road, \ the \ northern \ boundary \end{array}$ of the Huntingdale Golf Club, Windsor Avenue, the northern boundary of the Metropolitan Golf Club to Golf Road, Golf Road, North Road, Poath Road, Princes Highway and Warrigal Road (this is called the "Oakleigh Area").

OPTION C – Would include the area from Option B plus the portion of the City of Oakleigh north of the Mulgrave Freeway. Caulfield's City Manager Doug Aylen said, "In the event that amalgamations become necessary we would see a union with Malvern to be an ideal solution.

"The two communities have a great deal in common and would function well together. Caulfield has been the pioneer in a number of areas in local government administration and would continue to provide a broad range and variety of services to the community", he said

He continued, "The City of Caulfield is already a viable municipality and able to stand by itself. But residents from both communities would benefit greatly from the sharing of both resources and experiences".

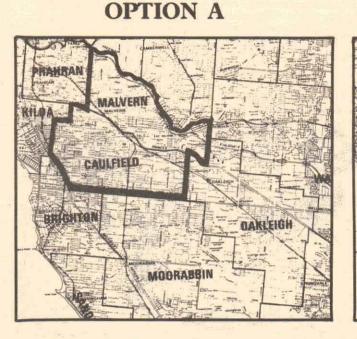

Public Comment

In releasing its latest options the Local Government Commission has said that it will receive submissions on its proposals, from those likely to be affected, until 4.00 p.m. Wednesday, July 30th, 1986.

People intending to do so are requested to provide 10 copies of the submission. These will be available for public inspection from Thursday, July 31st, 1986.

A public hearing will also be held at the M.M.B.W. Theatrette, 1st Floor, 625 Little Collins Street, Melbourne on Monday, August 4th, 1986, commencing at 10.00 a.m. Those likely to be affected by the proposal may appear to make oral submissions. Notification of any intention to make an oral submission should be lodged with the Commission's Secretary (telephone 617-1206) no later than 4.00 p.m. Wednesday, 30th July, 1986. The division will determine the order and times for oral submissions and announce them at the commencement of the hearing.

Changes to the Act

A number of amendments have been made to the Local Government Act. These amendments are in keeping with the Government's policy of providing less restrictive and more general powers for local government. The amendments are intended to . . .

- · Give Municipal Councils more discretion Remove or amend items which prevent the efficient
- exercise of certain functions by local government Increase penalties
- Generally keep Local Government Acts as up-to-date as possible.

THE BILL AMENDS THE FOLLOWING ACTS

The Dog Act 1970 - amended to remove the special restrictive provisions that apply to German Shepherd Dogs and it makes special exemption for dogs trained to assist deaf people.

The Hawkers and Peddlers Act 1958 - amended to allow Municipal Councils to make By-laws relating to Hawkers and Peddlers without Governor in Council approval. The Litter Act 1964 - amended to increase penalties under the Act and to allow for "on the spot" fines throughout the state.

The Local Authorities Superannuation Act 1958 amended to remove certain scriminatory p and to bring the benefits of the scheme into line with other public sector superannuation schemes.

The education group of the Caulfield Festival Committee will try to involve as many schools as possible in the 10 days of activity that it has planned for Festival time.

Whilst not wanting to interfere with the school's curriculum or create excessive work for teachers, they would like to bring "the community" into the schools.

They would like to also see a number of interschool activities, combining both primary and secondary schools and will encourage schools to participate on internal and external levels.

The group will probably try to make contact with sympathetic teachers or parents from each Caulfield school sometime in the near future - so expect a call and have your ideas ready. (The education group has a lot of good ideas.

This picture was taken on the last occasion that the 3rd Ordinance Services Unit of the Royal Australian Army Ordinance Corp. was granted freedom of entry to the City of Caulfield in 1983.

How time flies. It doesn't seem that long ago. Cr. Brian Rudzki, who was Mayor of the day, is pictured here inspecting the parade.

If you missed it in 1983 you have a further opportunity in 1986. On Sunday, July 13th, after a short ceremony in Caulfield Park (commencing at 11.30 am.), the unit will march down Hawthorn Road to the corner of Glen Eira Road. It will there be challenged by the City Marshall.

The unit, after declaring its right to the freedom of the City and being allowed to pass by the Marshall, will turn right into Glen Eira Road where the salute will be taken by the Mayor.

This tradition dates back to mediaeval times when fortress walls provided protection to the Cities within.

The granting of permission for a formed body of armed men to enter the City became a mark of the trust and confidence with which that body was held by its citizens.

You are invited to join with the Council on July 13th for what has now become a traditional event in Caulfield.

Win some, lose some

Earlier this year the Council approved an application for the erection of 5 townhouses in Narong Road.

An objector appealed against this decision, but the Planning Appeals Board upheld it and a permit will now be issued.

The Council's decision to refuse an application to install advertising signs at a petrol station in Hawthorn Road was overturned. Although the plans have been modified somewhat, the Board has permitted the signage to go ahead some time ago from the Municipal Association of Victoria in favour of membership in the fledgling Metropolitan Municipal Association. At that time a nominal joining subscription of $1000 per annum was charged.

M.M.A. Growing The Caulfield Council withdrew its membership

Since then the organisation has grown; an administrator has been employed and an office has been established in Balaclava. Accordingly, the subscription has also grown and for 1986-87 it will be $2500. It is interesting to note that at the time of leaving the M.A.V. Caulfield's annual subscription to that organisation had reached $13,640.

Overwork

The Council has refused Thirsty People

The size of the bottle-bank in Neerim Road has been increased to cope with its popularity. It seems that there are many people who prefer to leave the bottles at the bank rather than leave them in embarrassingly large stacks on the naturestrip.

The bottle and glass recycling programme continues to be successful. Over 6900 dozen beer bottles and 790 dozen stubbies alone were collected last month - it must have been a thirsty month.

Budget Looking Good - But . . .

The monthly budget report of the Council shows a net operating surplus.

It has been helped by the fact that the timing of award increases in wages and salaries has been later than anticipated. This has resulted in considerable savings in this major item of expense.

An on-going cost that just won't go away is the amount spent on property repairs necessitated by increased vandalism in the city. Already this year the annual budget of around $26,000 has been exceeded by over $5,000.

The household refuse collection is also costing more than anticipated. It should be possible however, to maintain an overall surplus until the end of the financial year, with continued control of expenditure in other areas.

Disagreement on Land Values

The Council is normally happy to accede to requests for the closure of right-ofways, especially where there is no objection from abutting land owners.

In the request that came to a recent meeting of the Environment and Community Development Committee there was disagreement on the price that should be paid for the land.

The Council has a policy of charging current market value for right-of-way land, but in this case the parties were not willing to pay this amount — the right-of-way will remain open.

Disabled Integration

A number of children with disabilities have been integrated into Council programmes. In-service training provided for staff has enabled them to feel confident with the situation.

A survey of the needs of children with disabilities is nearing completion. The information will not only provide the Council with a register of such children but help with plans to cater for their future needs.

An Extra Bus

The two community buses operated by the Citizens Advice Bureau are being very nearly used to capacity.

Many times these buses are used for Council sponsored activities, taking hostel residents shopping or children from the neighbourhood centres on an excursion.

If there were an extra bus, specifically for use by the Council, this would make more time available on the other two buses. Community groups with reasonable requests would no longer have to be turned away. It would also allow the Council to extend many of its outreach programmes.

The Council resolved therefore to invite service clubs within the city to contribute towards the cost of a third bus. The two other buses were sponsored in a similar way.

Any community organisation interested in such a project should contact the City Manager.

NEW STANDING COMMITTEE The World's First Personal Copier

Over the years the time commitment of Councillors to the municipality has become more onerous.

Not only are they re-quired to attend Council meetings, but also rep-resent the City at various community committees and statutory organisations.

In the past, to overcome some of these problems, the Council committees called for the attendance of the Mayor (as an ex-officio member of all committees) and six other Councillors. Some committees had an even smaller membership. Only one committee called for the attendance of all Councillors.

THE GARDEN GATE by Chester Eagle

The Garden Gate takes as its starting point a historian's invitation to his family and friends to celebrate the completion of a biography of Ferdinand Von Mueller. The venue is the Royal Botanic Gardens and it is through the several gates of this famous garden that the characters enter our consciousness. The time is the late seventies - the place Melbourne, and the members of the group, having dispersed before the party has properly begun, are followed through their intertwining lives until the book returns to where it began. A fascinating novel by Chester Eagle who recently spoke at the Caulfield Library as part of the writers at the Library Series.

WELCOME, JANICE!

With the appointment of talented dancer Janice Burgess as Caulfield's first Dancerin-the-community, Council's Community Arts program has taken a giant leap forward.

Council leads the way in Health and Safety

Council has engaged consultants to implement a Risk Management program in conjunction with statutory regulations brought about with the new Occupational Health and Safety Act.

Designated work-groups have now been adopted and four Health and Safety representatives have been elected, covering City Hall, Parks and Gardens, Works Maintenance, and Meals on Wheels, Hostel and Home Help. An eight member Occupational Health and Safety Committee has been established and will meet monthly with a three-day training course for all Supervisors being planned for July. Duties of the committee will include to initiate or review and monitor health and safety policies, procedures, rules and practices and to recommend solutions or further action to management.

Health and safety responsibilities for all members of Council staff have now been developed and adopted.

Janice, whose six month appointment has been made possible by a grant from the Australia Council's Community Arts and Theatre Boards, is keen to initiate and develop people's access to, and involvement in movement and dance, particularly by forming experimental workshops in movement. "I believe people should feel comfortable with their own movement and express and enjoy this as a viable part of their culture", Janice said.

A free workshop is being set up in July with the aim of forming an experimental movement/dance group, and Janice would like your participation.

She will also be working in schools and with local community groups, so if you would like her to visit your school or organisation, please ring 524-3333.

At the same time, Janice will be liaising with all known dance groups from ballet to folk - in the area, in an effort to help them link with the new experimental group to choreograph a major 'Caulfield on the Move' dance spectacular for the Caulfield Festival.

Not only will residents be provided with more palatable and healthy meals, but production costs will be reduced. There will no longer be any need for cooks and kitchen staff to start work before the sun rises so that meals can be ready on time. They will be able to work normal hours.

Another New Face

Following the resignation of Brian Logan in February, Neil Arbuthnot was appointed to the position of Manager Engineering and Development, a title change which more closely describes the duties he will undertake.

Neil, who comes from Mildura, is married and has two children. He took up the position at Caulfield on 9th June. His qualifications include a Diploma of Civil Engineering, Municipal Engineer's Certificate and Graduate Diploma in Local Government Management.

Neil's career started as an Engineer at the Shire of Lillydale. He then moved to the Shire of East Loddon as Assistant Engineer, to the City of Springvale as Deputy City Engineer and finally to the Shire of Mildura as Shire Engineer/

Building Surveyor/Town Planner.

His position at Caulfield is at the head of the Operations Department, which handles road construction and maintenance, refuse collection and other engineering functions. However, Neil will also be charged with the responsibility of guiding approved development projects through to construction. These include the Hawthorn Road office block and the mezzanine floor in the City Hall.

Barry Boyle, Manager Health & Legislation, was part of the Australian Medical Team sent for relief work to the Solomon Islands.

He was part of a medical team put together by the Australian Overseas Disaster Response Organisation which included a team of two doctors, two male nurses and an administrative officer. They spent two weeks on the Solomon Islands carrying out emergency work associated with medical health and general sanitation.

The Australian Medical Team worked on Guadacanal which is the main island of the Solomon Islands group. During their stay over 500 residents were treated. Some 50 villages were visited and given assistance with the establishment of water supplies, sanitary facilities and personal hygiene.

The devastation caused by cyclone Namu resulted in over 100 fatalities and some 90,000 people being Ethiopia. left homeless throughout the Island group.

Vegetable and fruit crops were destroyed or severely damaged in virtually all villages visited. This was caused by the flooding and resulting inundation of mud to an average height of one metre.

A Message from the Bicentennial //

Bicentennary Goes Multi-lingual

The Authority has initiated a special programme to encourage non-English Australians to also take part in the 1988 celebrations.

The first step in this programme was the issuing of an invitation to Ethnic groups around Australia to suggest ways in which they might participate in the Bicentennary.

This has been followed by the production of an eleven minute video pre-viewing some of the major activities that would take place during 1988.

The audio-visual programme is available in fourteen languages — Arabic, Bahasa Malaysian, Cantonese, Croatian, Greek, Italian, Macedonian, Mandarin, Polish, Portuguese, Serbian, Spanish, Turkish and Vietnamese. Its title is 'Living Together' which has been adopted as a theme for the bicentennial celebrations. People interested in obtaining a copy of the multicultural video should write to the Australian Bicentennial Authority, G.P.O. Box AUS 1988, Sydney, N.S.W. 2001.

The review of the national programme for the Bicentennary, which was carried out from November last year until March, not only caused a lot of media coverage, it also helped a lot of Australians to think about what they would like to see happen to mark 1988 in our nation's history.

It also provided a timely reference point for the Authority to move from its planning stage - begun in 1979 - to the exciting implementation stage.

Now that we have received all the necessary approvals, it will be full steam ahead from here. I was thrilled about the way the national and state/territorial plans have taken shape, and the way local Bicentennial Community Committees have started things buzzing all over the country.

My aim is to make sure every Australian has the opportunity to get involved in our national celebration. The way things are shaping up it seems certain that aim will be achieved.

The next stop will be to fine-tune the details of our national programme, tie it all in with the states and territories and provide every support for B.C.C.'s to run the most exciting projects and events ever in their communities. Whatever criticisms have surfaced about the Authority or the national programme I think most Australians are now well aware that 1988 is just around the corner and they are keen to jump in and give it their best.

Yes, we are in difficult times with our economy and job prospects for many people. The activities underway for 1988 are already reflecting an optimism and determination about Australia's future which remains true to the spirit of this nation.

Keep up the great work and urge your peers of all ages to join the ground swell of activity that promises to make the bicentennary a truly historic contribution to and recognition of Australia's unique place in the world.

Bicentennary Planners Remember the Disabled

Disabled people are often unnecessarily excluded from the normal activities of work, school, shopping, entertainment and sport. Yet about 2 million Australians, or 13% of the population have some form of disability.

Sometimes the exclusion is because of insurmountable physical barriers, such as steps, narrow doorways, restricted spaces and inaccessible facilities. In other cases negative social attitudes to people with a disability or who are elderly can be a barrier.

The Authority's philosophy is that participation by all Australians is essential to the success of the celebrations in 1988. So access guidelines are being circulated to planners of bicentennial activities at every level, from major events like the Australian Bicentennial Exhibition through to Local Bicentennial Community Committees. The guidelines contain a wealth of practical information.

Here are some examples:

 Identification — providing facilities such as reserved parking, wide entrances, ramps, toilets, public telephones and lifts that can be used by people with diabilities in the context of the second se disabilities is not enough. Clear identification of such facilities is essential.

Parking - a level surface near the entrance to the venue will reduce the problems of transferring disabled people from cars to the event.

Resting places — at exhibitions, seating or low walls and rails should be provided at regular intervals.

Crowding - pathways, circulation and viewing areas should be wide enough to permit access by people in wheelchairs.

Eating facilities - turnstiles and cafeteria self service should permit wheelchair access.

Staff training - all staff, including attendants and ushers, should be aware of the special needs of disabled people. Special training sessions may need to be organised for this purpose.

These guidelines should probably be used in the planning of all community activities. Maybe we should not wait until 1988 to remember to include disabled facilities in all our plans. Copies of the guidelines can be obtained from The Programme for People with Disabilities at the National Office of the Australian Bicentennial Authority, G.P.O. Box AUS 1988, Sydney, N.S.W. 2001.

A HERITAGE STUDY PLANNED FOR 1988

Preparation for Australia's Bicentenary celebrations are getting under way in Caulfield.

The Caulfield Festival Committee of Management has accepted the responsibility of forming a subcommittee to oversee these celebrations.

The Bicentennial Authority is providing dollar-fordollar funding along with a per capita grant towards the City's chosen Bicentenary Project. The first responsibility of the Community Committee was to support the Council recommendation for this project. A heritage study has been proposed. It will consist of five volumes covering Caulfield's building heritage, a cultural history, famous residents, a history of the Council and a look at the recreational assets of the City. Each volume will be around 100 pages and they will be in a sketch book style. These five volumes will be bound separately but presented in display boxes

This work will not conflict with the already published history of Caulfield,

The Bicentenary Authority is now assessing the Council's project submission. If approved, it will have to be completed in the Bicentennial year and is estimated to cost $70,000 to publish ($35,000 will be provided by the Council).

The patience of local governments across the world with dog owners and their best friends who 'foul footpaths' is wearing thin.

Each day, millions of ratepayers must try to avoid standing on these canine deposits, but often it is too late.

But what can a Council do? To give you an idea of how other local governments are handling these canine deposits, we scanned the globe, . . . eh footpaths.

In California, many districts carry the message "Dogs shall commit no nuisance" on every tele-graph pole. This has led to owners pushing their dogs behind trees when the "coast is clear" and has prompted the refined owners to carry piles of tissues or one of the many, would you believe it, "Pooper Scoopers" available. Californian highways sign has been placed around the beaches, parks and footpaths of the seaside resort of Teignmouth. It is based on an international traffic symbol and should make things clear even to French Poodles, German Dachshunds and Pekinese. The London Borough of Islington is stencilling some of its footpaths with bold, yellow reminders that "doing what comes naturally" needs to be done in the gutter.

Back home in Australia the Queensland State Government recently approved new ordinances at the request of the Brisbane City Council authorising

(The Australian Municipal Journal)

Advice has been received that agreement has been reached between Local Government Unions and the State Government in regard to an employment protection package to apply to Councils affected by municipal restructuring.

The main points of the package entitled 'Municipal Restructuring (Victoria) Award 1985' are ...

- The jobs of employees affected by municipal restructuring are protected for a period of 24 months following an order under section 24B of the Local Government Act and no positions are to be made redundant during this period.
- An employee's salary and other benefits are to be maintained for a minimum period of 12 months, after which the employee would only be entitled to the allowances applicable to the new position.
- If an employee is subsequently retrenched, that employee would be entitled to receive two weeks normal pay for each completed year of service, plus all other normal superannuation and annual and long service leave entitlements.

The agreement provides a good basis upon which employees can rely on continued employment where Councils are affected by restructuring.

FOCUS ON THE ARTS MINISTER TO OPEN EXHIBITION SCULPTURE

The Minister for Art, Heritage and Environment, Mr Barry Cohen, will officially open an exhibition of paintings and lithographs by world famous Israeli painter Baruch Nachshon at the Caulfield Art Centre on Tuesday, July 1st.

Reaching Out; one of 55 oil paintings and lithographs in the Nachshon exhibition.

The exhibition, which is part of Jewish Renaissance 5746, will run until Sunday, July 13th.

Mr Nachshon will be accompanied by his wife Sara, who will deliver a major community address at the Art Centre on July 2nd and will be a keynote speaker at a day-long Women's Conference on Sunday, July 13th. The conference will discuss issues facing Jewish women in the Australian community. A Renaissance Fair, which organisers call a "kaleidoscope of Jewish arts and entertainment" at the Arts Centre will be held on Sunday, July 6th. For further information ring 527-4551.

An exhibition of sculpture by Loretta Quinn will open at 6 p.m. on Wednes-day, July 16th. The work, covering four years crea-tivity, features paper, mesh and materials which have been stretched over wooden and wire frames, and then coloured with varnish and paints.

Take an enthusiastic cast of secondary students from Sacre Coeur, Glen Iris and De La Salle, Malvern, mix them with a script that has stunned millions on its official Broadway opening in the 1950's (and has subsequently stunned millions more over the years), throw in a Pot-pourri of musical and dancing talents that has to be seen to be believed, and decorate with outrageous skill, determination and humour, and you have the perfect recipe for a brilliant night out at the theatre.

July 23rd, 24th, 25th and 26th, at 8.00 p.m. is the time for a combined schools' production of "The Boyfriend" and it will be shown at the Camberwell Civic Centre for a season of stunning entertainment.

As the leading couple, Polly and Tony, Nick Wil-liamson and Samantha Downey, take the audience for a romantic, lighthearted romp along the French Riviera during the 1920's, ably assisted by Nick Harrington, as Bobby Van Husen, and Rachael Friend, as the bubbly Maisie.

Mark Sheedy and Pip

Lyons, as the indomitable Lord and Lady Brockhurst show the lighter side of long-term marital bliss, while Weslie Turnbull and Liz Cosgrave as Percival Brown and Madam Dubonnet prove that it is never too late to fall in love. These characters and many more provide a worthwhile night out for all the family.

Tickets are on sale now at De La Salle College, telephone 509-3011, or Sacre Coeur, telephone 25-5989 and door sales will be available. Adults - $7.00, Children/Pensioners - $4.00.

Industry must go international

The future of Australian industry lies in being international, according to Mr John Gough, Managing Director of Pacific Dunlop Ltd.

He made this claim in the inaugural Sir Phillip Lynch Lecture delivered on Tuesday, 24 June to the David Syme Business School of the Chisholm Institute of Technology.

However, Mr Gough said it was easier to say 'become international' than to achieve it. He believes it takes three essential ingredients for success: a distinct technological advantage; a recognised brand name supported by a good product range; and the ability to be the most efficient low cost producer.

Mr Gough said it was only by being international that business executives could understand and meet the real competition from other countries.

He sees an increased role for manufacturing and service industries in the push to gain exports and reduce our trading deficit, saying:

"It is now becoming recognised by some of our leaders that one of the key answers to Australia's serious current trading position and the restoration of our comparative declining living

It doesn't matter whether you are married, single, working part or full time, unemployed, young or old. The important thing is to be able to provide a stable and loving home for the child.

Marriage Education

The Marriage Education Institute, which was founded in 1978 is a non-denominational community agency approved and funded by the Federal Attorney-General's Department for providing programmes on marriage education.

These education courses are designed for couples who value their relationship. They are for people who want to keep going through marriage so they can deal with whatever the future may hold.

Who are these courses for . . . any couple, no matter what their age, social, educational or religious background or affiliations. People who have a partner with whom they want to share their life. Couples who want a course which is based on their own experiences and will also provide some new experiences.

Coping with Cancer – A support group for adults with cancer and their families

Chadstone Community Health Centre is offering a support group for adults with a diagnosis of cancer, and their families and friends.

It will commence on Friday, 11th July, 1986 from 10.00 a.m. to 12.00 p.m. The aim is to provide participants with information about cancer and its treatment and to gain mutual support in sharing and learning of ways to live and cope with cancer, thus enabling people to have more control over their future.

Those interested in joining such a Group should contact the Centre on 568-2599 for further information. This service is free.

RECREATION AND LEISURE PRYME BALL TEAM NEEDS NEW MEMBERS

Caulfield's recently established Pryme Ball team is keen to hear from potential members.

Pryme Ball, introduced to the community thanks to an initiative taken by Penny Paxman, Council's Recreation Officer for Older Adults, is a game devised, played, refereed and controlled by people over 50 years old.

Training sessions are held at the Caulfield Recreation Centre on Fridays at 3.30 p.m., and all you need to do is to come along in comfortable clothes (tracksuits and sandshoes are ideal).

The only pre-requisites are that you are over 50 and active!

Whilst the Council accepts that it must provide SOME services which will not necessarily pay their way, it should also be recognised that there needs to be a reasonable use of the pool to make it a viable proposition.

So, over to you. If you want to have a pool in Caulfield — use it.

warm water swimming without the hassles. See you there.

The best ideas are always the simplest. I was recently researching the literature on solar heating in order to determine the feasibility of solar heating the Caulfield Swimming Pool. While I was reading, I came across a simple but effective propose that would be of interest to anyone installing a Tennis Court and a solar heating system for their swimming pool. Given that the number of new, private tennis courts in Caulfield is small, the idea will only be of value to a few, however, the simplicity

Solar heating systems for swimming pools are very different in design to solar heating systems for hot water services. Solar systems for pools operate at significantly lower temperatures than hot water systems therefore the technology and the system itself is much simpler. The majority of new solar collectors for swimming pools are made from extruded synthetic rubber or PVC. The collector strips are normally installed on the roof, because the roof provides a convenient support structure, however, it is not essential to use the roof. Any convenient flat surface that receives full sun would be suitable. Under normal circumstances nobody wants hundreds of feet of black plastic pipe lying around the back yard, unless of course, you propose

As I mentioned earlier, it is normal practice to install the collector strips on the roof, however, the strips do not have to be directly exposed to sunlight in order to work efficiently. The important function of the collector strip is to heat the water in your swimming pool. It would therefore be possible to set the collector strips in concrete that was directly exposed to sunlight. The concrete would then act as the main collector and would function as a heat bank transferring heat to the water circulating through the strips. It is the same principle, but in reverse, to the concrete

The benefits of this system are considerable, firstly, your roof is not cluttered with black plastic tubing. Secondly, the concrete acts as a heat bank and stores heat more effectively so this would make it more efficiently than the roof and finally, the beauty of the system is that you end up with a cooler tennis court, so that your tennis shoes

Another idea, for people who already have solar full heating systems, but find the water in the swimming pool can get too hot (yes, this can happen in Melbourne) is to shed heat by running the system in reverse at night. This will cool the pool water by running it back over the roof.

Of course, if you don't have a pool, a tennis court and a solar heating system then you can always come to the Caulfield Swimming Pool and enjoy the benefits of
