

NEW PARK FOR GARDENVALE

The Gardenvale area is top priority for a new local park under the Council's draft Local Parks Strategy.

Council is looking at the Elster Avenue area as a possible site for the new park and is hoping to purchase some properties there in the future.

"It should be pointed out that Council will only purchase the necessary properties when the owners are willing and openly ready to sell," said Planner, Jodie Gardiner.

As properties come on the market, Council will be attempting to buy those that fit into its plans for new open space in Gardenvale.

The Minister for Planning and Environment will be approached with a view to reserving appropriate sites in the area as land suitable for public open space.

"Such action would cement in place the commitment to establishing a park whilst at the same time allowing the existing owners of those properties to remain as long as they desire," said Jodie.

The park may include road closure and therefore any people who are affected should take this opportunity to provide initial comments about the proposal.

If the road closure proposal does proceed, though, there will be an official process whereby residents can formally object to it.

The Local Park Strategy itself is on exhibition for two months until August 12 and Council would be pleased to hear comments from residents relating to the strategy.

Copies can be obtained from the City Hall, or read over in the libraries.

The strategy itself, prepared by the Council's Planning Unit, evaluates needs and desires for local parks as well as looking at leisure trends and examining current and possible future sites for parks.

The Gardenvale area was chosen as having the highest priority due to a number of factors.

Gardenvale is one of the three areas that is underserved in terms of park facilities, the others being North Caulfield and the area around the City Hall.

Residents of Gardenvale, though, were seen to have the greatest need for access to a substantial park, the other areas being somewhat catered for by Caulfield Park.

Other factors such as age structure of the population, availability of public transport and access to existing parks were also considered.

Council will, over time, attempt to redress the other imbalances of local open space, but creating parks in urban areas is a costly and time consuming action, and the emphasis for other areas is on the long term.

The Strategy is designed to give the City of Caulfield an overall plan for the creation of parks, to avoid ad hoc decisions which can leave some areas forgotten.

It states that in an ideal situation, a network of local parks of reasonable size with good facilities and landscaping should extend throughout the municipality, with a park within five hundred metres of every dwelling.

Other ideas include that Council develop smaller parks within some of the larger parks in Caulfield to emphasise and improve on the local park element and to complement their use by sporting clubs and large groups.

Analyses of existing parks in the area showed that Caulfield Park and Harlston Park were the best utilised parks of their kind in Caulfield, and Harlston Park is seen as an ideal model for the type of local park Council would like to see developed.

Skipping their hearts out!

The whole population of Caulfield Primary School turned out last Thursday to skip for the Heart Foundation. They performed a variety of skipping styles during their lunchtime, with sponsors donating money for the amount of time they skipped. The children have been in training for three months, and have collected sponsors over the last four weeks. They hope to raise at least $200 and get fit in the process!

News from Council

Red Light Cameras

Drivers who are accustomed to running red lights in Caulfield may be in for a shock soon. The Road Traffic Authority has asked and received permission from the Council for the installation of four more 'red light cameras' to be installed in the area.

The cameras are proposed for the following corners: Hawthorn Rd and Inkerman Rd, Kooyong Rd at the corners of Balaclava and Glen Eira Roads, and Hotham St and Glen Eira Rd.

It is proposed that the work will commence "in the near future", but residents will be informed when the cameras are operational.

Housing Study

To provide proper planning and services, Council must have correct and up to date information.

To ensure accurate knowledge in the area of housing, Council's Planning department has commenced with a review of the 1981 "Housing in Caulfield" Study.

The original study was a well prepared, informative, and respected document, but is now in need of updating.

The study will aim to evaluate housing needs and opportunities in the City of Caulfield; to examine and if necessary, recommend amendments to the City's current housing policies and controls; to evaluate the City's current role in the provision of housing; and to examine the need for conducting a Residential Conservation Study.

Older Pedestrians

Did you know that about one in five road fatalities is a pedestrian, and that forty per cent of pedestrian fatalities are people over sixty years of age?

These were some of the findings of a Report presented to Council on "Safety of Older Pedestrians", researched by the Federal Office of Road Safety.

The report noted that the number of people in the sixty years plus age group is rising faster than any other, so the issue is of growing importance.

Run for Home!

Caulfield Council has entered a team in the Charity Bicentennial 200 kilometre run organised by the DOXA Youth Welfare Foundation.

The Council is able to nominate the charity it chooses to benefit from the run, and the Council has selected the Caulfield Nursing Home fund to receive the benefit.

The fund for the Home will receive three thousand dollars from the exercise.

Pedestrian Lights

The long awaited pedestrian lights for Glenhantly Road are finally to go ahead.

Pedestrian operated signals will be located east of Manchester Grove, near to the eastern boundary of the Safeway supermarket on one side of Glenhantly Road, and near to the western boundary of the liquor store on the other side.

Council has been battling a long time to get lights installed in this area - Road Traffic Authority approval was first requested in 1977, and the matter formed part of the deputation by Council representatives to the Minister for Transport in November 1986.

Finally, the RTA has confirmed that installation of the crossing will form part of its current program - so Glenhantly shoppers will be able to move around the area more safely.

Flag Protocol

Council is currently examining the protocol surrounding the flying of national flags other than the Australian flag.

Some residents express concern at the flying of other flags from the main flagpole over the City Hall.

One option being considered is the use of the front flagpoles at the Hawthorn Road/Glen Eira Road corner of the grounds, but with the building of the sculpture garden these may be removed. Also there have been problems with vandalism and theft of flags that have been flown there.

Another option is a yard-arm arrangement at the top of City Hall, but some Councillors have expressed doubts about the viability and aesthetics of this option.

Proper protocol and other options are currently being considered.

Special Accommodation House

Council has approved alterations to existing flats in Alma Road North Caulfield, to allow their conversion into a Special Accommodation House.

The building is registered as "historic" with the Historic Buildings Council, but the applicants have received permission from them to make the necessary alterations.

Five Units Rejected

Council rejected an application from the Director of Housing to allow five units to be built in Pelling Rd, Murrumbena.

Only three car spaces were provided in the plan in lieu of the eight required. Though Council accepted that because they would be elderly people's units they may not require the full amount of car spaces, the feeling was that at least one per unit should be provided.

Five units on the block was also seen as an over-development of the site.

THE GRASS IS ALWAYS GREENER...

If You Don't Park on the Naturestrip

With the onset of winter months, residents are reminded again that the practice of parking on naturestrips is illegal.

The damage that this practice causes can lead to naturestrips becoming "quagmires in winter months and perpetually barren at other times", according to the Senior Transportation Engineer.

As well as acting as an attractive green area between the bitumen and concrete, naturestrips serve practical purposes.

They provide a safety barrier between pedestrians on the footpaths and cars and trucks on the roads, and provide access to public utilities such as water mains, gas mains and underground drainage systems.

Parking on naturestrips results in damage to kerbs and drainage channels, obstruction and possible danger to pedestrians and can damage underground services.

Council also receives many complaints from people about cars parking on their naturestrips, turning them from pleasant bits of green into muddy puddles.

The issue is covered by State Road Traffic regulations and Council is required by law to issue parking infringement notices and to prosecute if residents fail to obey the regulations.

When discussing the issue, Council accepted that some areas that had through traffic and insufficient parking could be examined for alternative arrangements, such as creating indented parking, but that parking on the naturestrips was not an acceptable practice.

A Reply to the MMA

The article in Caulfield Contact, 30/4/1987, "From the MMA" needs comment.

Mr Keating's Mini Budget contained a modest cut in its fiscal deficit and spending, which includes reduced allowances for the states. Therefore their borrowings and outlays must be restricted as well.

Obviously, the Premiers at the Canberra Conference on 25/5/87 have reluctantly accepted for their states.

Since these facts may cause a diminishing share for Councils, the Metropolitan Municipal Association has to reduce various non-essential expenses as well, and there are areas where these reductions can be achieved.

Quoting "Editorial Opinion: Forcing restraint on the states",

"The Age" 21/5/87, Mr Jim Dominguez, investment banker, states: "The state and local government sector is the prime area which needs the greatest amount of pruning."

Although both sectors may not agree with this statement, yet if they seek to compensate beyond the consumer price index by loans, taxes and yearly rising council rates, then the public sector problem grows further. Apart from this, we cannot ignore MMBW charges, pending third party, insurance, Telecom and postal rises.

Mr Adrian Pennell, manager of the MMA, and Councils, should not consider rate increases as a first-choice solution; there are certain areas in every council where cuts can be made - and, prevent rising inflation.

Racetrack Gets Safety Lights

Jockeys and horses using the Caulfield racetrack for early morning training will soon be able to ride much more safely, as the VATC will be erecting lights around the course.

Permission was requested from Council to erect two light poles and four floodlights around various parts of the race-track, after jockeys had complained about the lack of light during early morning work and the subsequent danger to both themselves and their mounts.

After advertising the issue, Council received several objections from people living in Queens Avenue, opposite the race-track.

Residents were concerned about the unsightliness of the light pole intruding into the landscape, and the possibility that they would be disturbed by the lights being turned on in the morning.

They expressed doubts about the necessity of the lights, given that the race-course has been operating successfully for so long without them.

Other fears included that the lights may be the first step in a VATC plan to introduce evening race meetings.

In reply, Mr Wallish, speaking for the VATC, said that there would be no evening races as the jockeys would not ride under those conditions, and the TAB would not be open for betting.

The need for lights after all these years of racing is because 'horse traffic is now a hundred times what it was', he said.

It was noted that a letter had been submitted from the Victorian Jockeys Association, stating that members had been complaining about the danger and that accidents and near accidents had occurred.

The letter urged Council to treat the matter urgently and expressed surprise that residents would object to the installation of a safety measure.

Council considered the application and gave approval under the conditions that the hours of use of the lights were restricted to between 4.45am and 7.00am, Monday to Saturday inclusive, and that the lights be fitted with baffles or shields to ensure that the amenity of the surrounding area was not affected.

TRIESTE EXHIBITION

The launching of the "Trieste — Past and Present" photography exhibition at the Arts Centre on June 17 was a gala event, attended by the Consul-General of Italy in Melbourne, the Mayor and Mayoress, several Councillors, members of the Italian community, Caulfield residents and photography lovers.

The Consul-General, Dr Diego Lorenzo Longa said that the members of the Italian community would be able to "recapture in these beautiful places the fond memories of their childhood and youth, while we rediscover this magnificent city."

He thanked Caulfield Council for their "proud history of supporting the Arts".

The exhibition is open at the Caulfield Arts Centre, 441 Inkerman Rd, until July 5 and is sponsored by the Gruppo Gioliano Cronisti, Trieste.

Chisholm Tower Debate

Caulfield Council has again found itself caught between local residents and the Chisholm Institute of Technology, as the Institute attempts to let out the upper seven floors of its new tower as office space.

Chisholm has advised the Council that "a recent review of the space requirements on campus ... revealed that there is not the need for increased floor space of the magnitude previously expected".

They propose that as a temporary measure, the space created by the new tower be let out for offices until the Institute needs it for educational purposes.

Mr Barlow, speaking on behalf of Chisholm said that the offices would be let out selectively to organisations that would be able to assist the Institute by, for example, providing lecturers in business or employing students.

As the need for campus floor space increased, the leases would lapse back to Chisholm for use in educational purposes.

Objections were received from residents and businesses close to the Institute, arguing that the ad hoc nature of the decision was not consistent with good planning, and was a completely different use than what the original plan proposed.

Fears were also raised that the venture would increase noise and parking problems in the vicinity, which residents claim are bad enough already.

Mr Lauritz spoke on behalf of his parents, saying that they had been 'done over' by Chisholm on numerous issues, and that he felt this was the last straw.

His parents have lived in the same house since 1924 and have experienced problems with parking and traffic, overshadowing and noise from concerts at the Institute.

Mr Lauritz said that he understood that education was a high priority, but felt that the Council should serve the needs of the ratepayers, and had no obligation to serve the State education system.

Council members discussed the problem from both sides, with Cr Bloom arguing that there was a need for an overall plan for the area.

Councillors eventually decided that they needed more time and information before they made a decision, and the item was deferred to allow them to examine the original planning brief and consultant's reports.

GARBAGE PROBLEMS — NOT OVER YET!

As the result of a recent industrial dispute involving the dismissal of a Council garbageman the matter was taken before the Arbitration Commission where it was decided that the dismissal was not harsh, unjust or unreasonable.

However the decision also proposed that the employee concerned be re-engaged under certain conditions. The Council and the Municipal Employees Union have been negotiating over this proposal but have not come to an agreement.

The Municipal Employees Union has now advised of the following work bans in support of its position:

1. Members employed in Parks and Gardens not to mow the roadside nature strips at all parks.
2. No decorations to be arranged and delivered at Town Hall or other functions in the City of Caulfield.
3. No garbage to be collected at Town Hall or offices.

4. No work to be performed in main shopping areas in North Road between Booran Road and Grange Road, Carnegie Shopping Centre.

5. All complaints received by phone over bans be re-directed to Town Hall.

6. Members have banned entry, crossing or work in Glenhuntly Road between the Nepean Highway and Truganini Road.

Unfortunately these bans may cause some inconvenience to residents and traders but the Council will be taking appropriate action to ensure the dispute and bans are cleared up at the earliest possible time, bearing in mind that the conclusion of the negotiations must reflect the interests of the Council and the community.

The matter is going before the Arbitration Commission this week for a further hearing. Lifting of the bans will be the prime goal of the Council.

The persons affected by the bans are requested to bear with the Council during this continuing difficult period.

Library to Introduce Fines

Yvette Coult and Soula Chrysostomou at work behind the library counter.

In attempting to absorb cutbacks in library funding by the Government, Caulfield Libraries will be forced to introduce fines for overdue books, as of October this year.

"It is a measure forced on Council by the State Government's insistence that it will cut library funding by $2 million," said librarian Jim Badger.

"We are assuming the cuts will be equally distributed across the board — if not, things could be even worse.

"We have looked at ways this shortfall could be addressed, and this is the least unpopular."

Caulfield anticipated the cuts, and as part of a general resident survey, people were asked which measures they would prefer for increasing library revenue.

The least popular was an increase in rates for residents, and proposed fines were the preferred option by a large percentage of those asked.

Mr Badger assures library users that the fines will not be introduced until October, allowing plenty of warning for patrons to adjust to the new system.

When introduced the fines will cost $2.00 for the first notice, $4.00 for the second notice and $6.00 for the third.

The libraries are currently undergoing a stocktake, and people with overdue books are being urged to return them during the 'amnesty' period until October, with no fines incurred.

This need for funds was researched as part of the Library Services Review which was presented to Council.

The report states that Local Government has increasingly borne the burden for the provision of library services.

In the last forty years, the percentage of people living in a municipality with a subsidised library service has risen to nearly a hundred per cent, as opposed to fifteen per cent in 1947/8.

The State Government made a commitment to pay fifty per cent of library costs, but that has fallen to 32%, and is falling further. (A large majority of people surveyed believed the government should restore its funding to fifty per cent.)

Further financial burden is placed upon libraries with the fall in the Australian dollar making overseas purchases increasingly expensive — the average cost of books has risen from $25.00 to $40.00 in one year.

Given these constraints, the review concludes that the libraries are functioning well as a community resource, with a high percentage of people aware of the service and a large number of users. The Carnegie shopfront library in Koornang Rd opened in 1983, was seen to be doing particularly well, due to factors such as its 'newness', its visibility and the funds put into it at the start.

Elsternwick, on the other hand, was the least successful of the branches, due to difficulty in access and lack of visibility.

The resident survey found that a high percentage of people were satisfied with the service the library was providing.

People who did not use the library generally had reasons such as being too busy or not interested, rather than because of dissatisfaction with the service.

Grant to Chisholm

Chisholm Institute has received a Commonwealth Grant for a special project to provide a tertiary studies preparatory program for disadvantaged students.

The project is aimed at helping students from disadvantaged backgrounds participate successfully in higher education.

Students will participate in seminars on study skills, literacy skills, numeracy skills, the role of the tertiary student, and specialised studies relating to the course being undertaken by the student.

On the completion of these introductory seminars the needs of the participants will be evaluated and arrangements made for individual study programs.

Assistance from peers and special tutorials may be part of the individualised study programs.

It is an excellent project and will enable the Chisholm Institute to focus on the particular needs of the disadvantaged students in their community.

Chisholm Institute hopes to reach out to a broad range of students in their community. It is anticipated that the participants will be drawn from the following groups:

• Those who did not complete year 12 studies and were not admitted under normal entry requirements.

• Entrants whose basic skills have been impaired

LIBRARY CLOSED

Please note: From Tuesday July 21 to Friday July 24 Caulfield Branch Library at Maple St will be CLOSED for stocktaking.

We regret any inconvenience this may cause, and take this opportunity to remind patrons that Carnegie Resource Centre (130 Kooyong Rd) and Elsternwick Branch Library (Staniland Grove) will be open as usual.

by inadequate schooling facilities.

• Students whose atypical primary and/or secondary education may have adversely effected planning in those areas which are prerequisites of tertiary success.

• Overseas students whose schooling in Australia has been and is disadvantaged because of their poor mastery of the English language.

• Those students who, because of social disadvantage, lack the necessary personal or social skills required for normal progress through tertiary course.

Chisholm Institute of Technology has received a grant of $30,000 from the Commonwealth Government for the special project.

"Closing down" . . . after 70 years

There is a definite old world feel about Ron Summers' shop. Customers are greeted by name, old friends drop by, people who work in the area pop in for a chat. The pace is casual, the emphasis on courtesy, and there is no plastic razzamatazz about the displays.

This shop, though, will soon be closing its doors as the Elsternwick Furnishing Company, and the family that has run it since 1918 will be operating a more limited business from home.

Ron Summers, the current owner and head of the family, said "It is the closing of an era . . . a very happy era", but that it would be a "sad, sad wrench" to leave the shop.

His father, Bert Summers, came back from the First World War an invalid, and looked to setting up his own business.

He originally rented the shop, but after eighteen months he "sold everything he had" to buy it.

Ron speaks highly of his father's honest attitude to business: "He never did a wrong thing in his life — that carried him on from success to success."

In 1938 his son joined him in the business — but only after he had insisted that Ron complete two years woodwork studies and five years work experience in a wholesale firm, to give him a good overall grounding in the trade.

After Ron, in his turn, served five years in World War II, he returned to enter a partnership with his father.

Sadly, Bert Summers died in 1961, so Ron's wife Mary came to help out in the shop, and then their younger son Greg joined the business in 1975.

Greg gradually took over the physical work such as carpet and vinyl laying and putting up blinds, and has developed his own loyal clientele in this area.

The Summers made the hard decision to sell up for various reasons. Ron had open heart surgery eighteen months ago, and though he is fairly fit, now he has imposed some limitations upon himself.

The overheads and pressures of running a small business take their toll, and Ron and Mary want the chance to "float along for the rest of our lives and do whatever we want to do".

Not that it is likely the Summers will sit around twiddling their thumbs — they have always been prominent members of the Caulfield Hospital Fundraising Committee. He has been a member of Rotary for twenty-one field's first Citizen of the Year after his efforts which included chairing the Caulfield Hospital Fundraising Committee.

Ron was elected Caul-

He has been a member of Rotary for twenty-one years and he and his wife are still very involved in work for the Uniting Church.

Mary Summers feels she will miss the contact with people the most:

"We like the children and the older people — we feel we are doing a service for them."

She, too, is looking forward to doing what she wants to do, which includes singing and keeping up with her six grandchildren.

There are still some relics of the old shop around — the sales books that go back to the first year of operation, some old hurricane lamps — and perhaps also the Summers' belief that honesty, courtesy and service are worth more than any gimmick.

TRAFFIC PLAN REVISED

Council is looking into the possibility of using raised pavements or other devices to reduce the traffic problems in Leila Road, rather than the roundabouts originally proposed.

Leila Road forms part of Local Traffic Management Area No. 42, and the plan put forward at the previous Council meeting had included roundabouts at the corners of Leila Road and Kooronga and Wild Cherry Roads, as well as Neville St and Albert Rd.

While the majority of people in the area were in favour of the scheme, objections were received from people whose houses were in the immediate vicinity of the proposed roundabouts.

Some residents were concerned that the roundabouts would create problems such as cars swerving almost into their yards, headlights shining directly into their windows and increased noise.

They stressed that generally they were in favour of the proposal as a whole but objected to the roundabouts in what they saw as unsuitable places.

Council debated the concerns involved and suggested that the Traffic Engineers could look into other options at those particular intersections.

It is likely that raised pavements may be used for the Leila Road intersections, but at the Neville Street/Albert Road corner it is unlikely that a more appropriate alternative can be found.

Residents of the area on the whole have been supportive of the plan as proposed.

Though only ten per cent of the residents replied to the survey issued to discover people's ideas on the scheme, 74% of those who did reply were in favour of the proposal, with 21% against and 5% neutral.

After the objections were received most residents of Leila Road were contacted and of the ninety seven that commented 72% were in favour, 25% opposed and 3% were neutral.

It is envisaged that a suitable compromise will be achieved to the satisfaction of most residents.

New Look Building Dept.

Well, we asked you to be patient and you were. No longer will visitors to the Building & Health Departments have to queue up in that tiny corridor. Renovations have left a wide foyer and greater counter area for the public's convenience. It is hoped to make the area even more attractive in the future.

SUPERMARKET SCHEME DROPPED

The supermarket project planned for the Maysbury Avenue area of Elsternwick has been dropped by mutual agreement between the Council and the project developer, Consulere Pty Ltd.

The move follows a letter from Consulere stating, "that negotiations with the private land-owners have proved to be quite difficult with unrealistic values placed upon the properties, rendering the development unviable."

As a result the Council has now withdrawn its application to rezone properties on the south side of Maysbury Avenue from residential C to restricted business.

Cr Campbell reiterated his respect for residents wishing to retain their homes and expressed disappointment that his factual reporting of the Council's position on the project had stimulated a personal attack on him in the Southern Cross.

On a positive note the Council will look at a similar development involving Council-owned properties between Staniland Grove and Orrong Road.

Mayor Jack Campbell announced that the investigation will incorporate a program of consultation with the Chamber of Commerce and other interested persons.

"This is in line with council policy which supports public participation," he said.

RELOCATION OF MURRUMBEENA GROUPS

Despite the excitement over the Nursing Home project, the needs of the community groups who currently use Murrumbeena Hall (the proposed site for the home) have not been overlooked.

The announcement of the site caused some concern from people who hold meetings and use the facilities of the hall, and also from people who use Murrumbeena House, where the Infant Welfare Centre will be relocated.

Groups that may be affected by the changes include Murrumbeena Playgroup, a parent's co-operative that has been operating for ten years and uses the rear of Murrumbeena Hall; Murrumbeena Occasional Care, another parent's co-operative which operates out of Murrumbeena House; Murrumbeena Spinners, a craft group which was instrumental in the development of Murrumbeena House as a community venue; a Greek Women's Support Group, an Elderly Women's Discussion Group, a Local Neighbourhood Watch, a Family Day Care Scheme and a few other occasional users.

Consultations between representatives of the major groups involved and Council Officers will take place and groups will be given advice and assistance in the relocation of their services.

Meanwhile, Council is investigating alternatives such as the development of Murrumbeena House site to ensure that all users of both sites are adequately catered for.

All groups will be kept informed of the progress of discussion regarding the sites and every effort will be made to accommodate them.

While the Nursing Home is a major project of the Council, it recognises that other groups should not be forgotten in the eagerness to get the home underway.

Cr Ford NOT Retiring

It seems that comments from an interview with Cr Ford in last month's Contact have been misconstrued by some readers.

The reference to Cr Ford being retired (from the workforce) was taken by some as an indication that the Councillor will retire from Council.

Cr Ford had advised that this is not so, and rumours that her daughter will be standing for her seat on Council are completely unfounded.

YOUR REPRESENTATIVES

COUNCILLOR:
Jack Campbell
(Mayor)
WARD: North
ELECTED: 1978

Caulfield's Mayor, Cr Jack Campbell, has been with Council for nine years, during which he has developed many interests and watched many projects go through.

He has a wife, Felicitie, who many people would know through her functions as Caulfield's Mayoress, five grown children and two grandchildren.

Even before his election to the Council, Jack Campbell displayed a concern in the City's affairs, including being part of the residents group which first proposed a Council newspaper — which eventually, of course, took the form of the "Caulfield Contact".

On Council, Cr Campbell has been keen to see good planning which includes, to him, well-planned housing and streetscapes as well as good financial control.

He was a member of the joint Library Committee when Caulfield was linked with Malvern Library, and is interested in areas of Youth service such as the new Youth Resource Centre.

He is also interested in the development of parks in Caulfield, and Caulfield's involvement with the Arts.

Off Council, the Mayor is the long-time Honorary Treasurer of St John's Uniting Church, a member of Chisholm Institute Council (including chairing the Staffing Committee) and involved in numerous Caulfield community groups such as the Early Planning for Retirement Association and the Caulfield Choir.

He is retired from the workforce but does some private consulting work as a "paid hobby".

Other hobbies include the occasional game of golf when he gets the time, some gardening and a little photography.

COUNCILLOR:
Brian Rudzki
WARD: West
ELECTED: 1974

A 'family man' with two daughters at University and a son at High School, Cr Rudzki has lived in the Caulfield vicinity most of his life, and has been a Councillor for twelve years.

In his years as a Councillor, Brian Rudzki has gained experience in almost all facets of Council operations. He has been Mayor twice, a committee Chairman for eight years and has served on all committees of Council.

He has seen a number of changes in his time, having been involved in initiatives including the instigation of the Big Bins, Corporate Management and entrepreneurial policies and activities.

The Councillor has represented Caulfield on various bodies including the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Board and the Melbourne Metropolitan Board of Works.

Cr Rudzki has "always been involved with people and community activities", and some of his positions based in the community include being a Trustee of the Caulfield Racecourse Reserve, Vice-President of the Royal Southern Memorial Hospital and Citizens' Representative on the Princes Park Committee of Management.

An accountant and management consultant, Cr Rudzki says, "My financial skills have allowed me to participate in the vital issues affecting Council," listing particularly the cutting of government funds (brought about by the May Mini-Budget), leading to the need for greater financial management.

Other areas of interest on Council include the provision of open space, particularly in the Elsternwick/Gardenvale area, and Council support for the Neighbourhood Watch programme.

In between his Council and community duties, Cr Rudzki lists his interests as tennis, skiing, music, theatre and walking.

HOSPITAL PROGRAMS

ANTE-NATAL EDUCATION CLASSES

The Royal Southern Memorial Hospital's Community Care Centre are preparing to hold the first evening series of Ante-Natal Education Classes. The presentation of the first evening classes coincides with another significant event, the one-hundredth series of day-time classes.

This scheduling has been decided upon to provide all women with the opportunity to attend Ante-Natal classes. It is important to begin preparation early in their pregnancy and many women are unable to commit themselves during the day due to work commitments, for instance.

Although it is not necessary to attend with a partner, it is hoped that the evening sessions will make it easier for women to attend with their partner or support person.

Another feature of this ten week series of classes is that they are presented totally free of charge.

Also, the classes are conducted by a range of health professionals: physiotherapist, dietitian, community health nurse, social worker and psychologist, giving a comprehensive view during the course.

Some of the topics delivered in the program are nutrition needs; basic ante-natal education and exercise; early parent and child relationship; what your partner can do to help, and social issues associated with parenting.

The classes will begin with an informal meal when participants will have the opportunity to meet each other and also to meet the people who will be presenting the various sessions.

The small size of the classes allows a personal approach and more individual attention. The emphasis is to help the prospective parents have a happy and healthy pregnancy through to helping them prepare for the early stages of parenthood.

The series of classes is not directed solely to women and recognises fully that there is a shared responsibility in having and caring for a child.

The pilot program commences on Tuesday, June 30 and is a total of ten weeks. The sessions run from 7.30pm until 9.00pm and are free.

As numbers are limited, bookings are essential. Please contact Sue Brick, Liaison Officer, Community Care Centre, telephone 523 6666 (business hours) to register your attendance.

STEP/TEEN

The Social Work Department of the Royal Southern Memorial Hospital's Community Care Centre are again presenting their popular STEP/TEEN (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teenagers) Program.

This program is designed to help parents improve communication with their teenage children. The participants become involved in discussion groups, role plays and alternative problem solving.

The hosts of the program are Liz Corbett and Sharon Caris, Social Workers at the Centre. This series of ten sessions begins on Thursday, July 16 and classes will run from 10am until 12 noon.

The total cost of the program is $14.00 and this includes a copy of the manual 'Parent's Guide'.

Class sizes are deliberately kept small so there is more opportunity for involvement at an individual level. For further information and enrolments please contact Liz or Sharon, telephone 523 6666 (business hours).

DOULTON COLLECTING

Lyndel Walker examining a 'Groucho Marx' Character Jug.

Collecting Royal Doulton china is a hobby enjoying great popularity at the present time in Australia and worldwide, with collectors clubs in most Australian states. The Victorian one, formed just over a year ago, meets on the 3rd Saturday of the month at Bri-Phil House, 80 Gardenvale Road, Gardenvale at 1.30pm. Each of these monthly meetings has a 'theme' with a short talk and members display pieces from their collections. Future themes include 'Bunnykins', 'Dickens' and 'Royalty' to name a few.

Founder of the Victorian DOULTON COLLECTING, Lyndel Walker, has been interested in Royal Doulton for many years. In 1985 she joined a group of collectors on a Doulton Tour of the UK visiting their factory at Stoke-on-Trent, the annual London Doulton Fair and viewing many fine pieces of private and public collections.

Anyone interested in joining DOULTON COLLECTING can contact Lyndel on 670 0086 during business hours, or write to GPO Box 1982R, Melbourne. Membership is $16 a year, including monthly newsletters.

Caulfield Carers

The Caulfield Carers Support Group is a group of people who share the common problems associated with the care of an elderly or confused relative.

The group was first established in January 1986 with the assistance of Caulfield Council and Caulfield Hospital, and with the aim of providing ongoing support and information to the Carers as well as fostering community awareness.

A series of six information sessions for carers are planned to commence early September. These will be held during the evening to enable those people who work or who have other commitments to attend. The sessions will cover a wide range of topics associated with caring for the confused elderly.

The Caulfield Carers Support Group meets on the second Thursday of each month between 2.00pm and 4.00pm at South Caulfield. If you require further information about the group or the evening information sessions please contact Lorraine Le Clerc on 524 3333.

Stress Management

St Michael's Grammar School, with the help of the Royal Southern Memorial Hospital is taking the stress out of year 12 for forty students who have elected to participate in a three-week Relaxation and Stress Management programme.

The programme, which was piloted by the hospital in 1985 for the International Year of Youth has been refined and is now being offered to a select group of schools as an extra-curricular programme.

Each programme consists of three one-hour sessions held over a three-week period. Subjects explored during the three weeks include a definition of tension and stress, environmental and ergonomic factors relating to study and stress, body care focusing on sleep, diet and leisure, time management and stress and tension related to study.

Each session also involves a practical demonstration and student participation in progressive muscle relaxation techniques, breathing and autogenic relaxation.

Because of the student response to the course, two programmes of twenty students each were held at St Michael's, during May.

Caulfield Cuisine

Angela's Greek Tavern
677 Glenhuntly Rd,
Caulfield. Ph. 528 3908

When you go to a Greek restaurant and it is three-quarters full of people of Greek descent, you can be fairly certain that the food is authentic.

This was the case at Angela's Greek Tavern on Saturday night, and the food proved not only traditional but delicious and reasonably priced.

Angela's has a set menu on Saturday night, providing a large range of dips, seafoods, meats and salad for $25.00 a head.

After we were seated, an array of dips was brought out — caviar, eggplant, and yoghurt and cucumber. These were accompanied by fresh hot bread, more of which was brought when we had consumed the rest. A word of warning though — don't gorge yourself too early, or you will never be able to fit in the rest of the meal.

After the dips, we were served a slice of grilled salted cheese (I won't try to reproduce the Greek names for these things). It was unusual and tasty, but with the strong taste the small serve we got was more than adequate.

There was a small pause, then a basket of fried whitebait was produced. The small, tasty fish were freshly cooked in a crisp batter and piping hot.

I was definitely beginning to slow down at this point, so I was grateful for the short break before the 'piece de resistance' was delivered — two huge platters, one bearing an assortment of meats, the other seafood, accompanied by a large Greek salad.

The seafood platter contained calamari, a barramundi fillet and two whole whiting. The meat selection had quail, sausage, lamb, shish kebab potatoes and more.

My partner and I disagreed as to which platter was the best — I found the delicious quail, crisp lamb and spicy meats superb, while he preferred the fish dishes. Not that it really matters — both were excellent. Even my partner and I, with our combined voracious appetites, couldn't get through it all — so the cat was presented with a 'kitty bag' of leftovers later that night, and agreed that the meal was delicious. (She preferred the fish).

The salad that came with it consisted of crisp lettuce, cucumber, peppers, onions, fetta cheese and olives, and was very refreshing on the palate.

It would be a very brave person indeed who could ask for more after this. We were left in peace to digest our meal for a while before being offered coffee.

Angela's has both a BYO licence and a bar, so you are catered for either way. It also has Greek music and a dance floor, and watching some of the Greek patrons doing traditional dances to the bouzouki was a highlight of the night.

The restaurant is very large, suitable for big groups or functions, but the care taken in arranging the tables, placing the larger groups and organising the lighting and settings all ensure that two cosy diners are as comfortable as a family party of fifteen.

Angela's does have A La Carte menus on some nights — it is best to ask while you are booking to ensure you will not be surprised. It also caters for any sort of functions.

All in all, the night was very pleasant — and with the bill for food and drink coming to a mere $57.00, we agreed it had been good value indeed.

WINTER GARDENS

In any great garden, seasonal changes are part of its continuing appeal and at Rippon Lea now the vistas seen from the picture windows of the house have changed to winter, some bare branches, leaves on the grass, birds a little quieter.

There is still colour to absorb, ducks to watch, eels for children to count as they look down into the lake water from the bridge, acres of garden to wander through.

Inside are the lofty rooms of one of Melbourne's splendid Victorian mansions to observe and on weekends and Public Holidays Devonshire teas are served in a warm room.

Rippon Lea is now on winter timetable, closed on Mondays and Tuesdays, but open 11.00am to 3.00pm Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and 10.00am to 5.00pm Saturday and Sunday.

Normal opening hours will be resumed on August 24.

WEEKEND PLAYGROUP

Playgroups provide a much needed service for parents to get together and discuss the joys and pitfalls of parenting (amongst other things) and for children to interact.

Until now, playgroups have generally operated mainly during weekdays, which has tended to exclude working parents and parents with limited access.

However, now that problem has been solved by the formation of a weekend playgroup operating on Saturdays and Sundays.

Parents — married, separated, divorced, single, custodial or access — of children any age can get together at Caulfield Community Centre, 721 Inkerman Rd, Caulfield on the weekends.

On a trial basis, the group will alternate between Sunday 10.30am on one weekend and Saturday 2.00pm the next. It is advised that people check the current days and times before attending.

Enquiries should be directed to Rob Salter on 578 1301 or Laurel Smith at Caulfield Council on 524 3311.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Chadstone Community Health Centre is looking for Volunteers to assist in the running of a number of its programmes.

In particular, the Centre needs people able to spare a few hours a week driving clients to various activities at the Centre, either in their own cars or the Centre's minibus.

Other volunteer work is available for people interested in assisting in the running of groups for the elderly, caring for children whilst their parents are attending activities, or helping some isolated clients with their shopping or friendly visiting.

People with or without such experience who are interested in becoming involved in the work of the Centre's auxiliary are also welcome.

Contact Bob Klepner at the Chadstone Community Health Centre on 568 2599 to obtain further details about these satisfying and really worthwhile activities.

GRIEF LINE

The Little Company of Mary Hospital (formerly Bethlehem Public Hospital) is to establish a home-based Telephone Counselling Support System — in brief a "Grief Line".

The hospital itself offers a comprehensive range of services provided by skilled health personnel to care for the terminally ill and for people with disabling neurological diseases.

It also provides support and counselling services for patients' families and is involved in the education of medical students, nurses and health professionals.

The proposed 'Grief Line' will allow people within a 12km radius (to begin with) to phone in and speak with a trained volunteer in the areas of loss, grief and bereavement.

An outreach programme and bereavement support service already operates from the hospital in this area, and the phone system will extend the programme.

The hospital will soon advertise for and select suitable people to undertake a Volunteer Training Programme which will commence in late July this year and will consist of three hours one evening a week for ten weeks.

For further information please contact the hospital on 596 2853, ext. 390.

Parenting Skills Group

"There's less fighting and more talking in our house now."

"I have found I don't have to yell at my kids now in order to gain cooperation."

These are some comments made by two parents who participated in the last session of the Chadstone Paramedical Community Health Centre's parenting skills group.

The program is based on "How to Talk so Kids will Listen", and the objective is to introduce parents to some specific practical skills which other parents have found useful in understanding and bringing up their children.

The next program is due to commence on Monday July 13 from 12.30pm to 2.30pm. Evening sessions will start at the end of July and will run from 7.30pm to 9.30pm.

Parents may attend this group to improve their parenting skills or to work on particular parent/child problems.

The Centre also plans to run a day time group at a later date.

Firewood Sale

Buying firewood can achieve more than simply keeping you warm this winter — it could help someone recovering from a heart attack.

The Lions Club of Carnegie is selling firewood to help raise funds for the Cardiac Support Group which is an association of ex-patients of the Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit of the Caulfield Hospital.

A member of the Group, Mr Bill Dean said the Rehabilitation Unit has an extreme shortage of various types of equipment and urgently requires funds.

The firewood is being sold for $6 a large bag which the President of the Carnegie Lions said is excellent value for money, as well as helping people with heart problems.

If you would like to purchase some of this wood and help the Caulfield Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit, ring Ken Limbrick on 568 7911 or Ted Terry on 523 8028.

Jewish Welfare Women

Organisers of the Jewish Welfare Women's Day (L to R) Judy Krape, Pauline Rockman, Susie Ivany and Aura Levin.

Jewish women from all over Melbourne are invited to be part of the first Australian Jewish Welfare Women's Day.

The aim of the day is to provide an opportunity for Jewish women to get together to explore ideas and issues of relevance to women in the 1980s.

The program consists of workshops on a wide range of topics including Women Wanting Change, Career-Family-Motherhood Conflict, Women and Finance, and Stress Management. Participants will be able to attend two workshops led by experts in their field.

"This will be an exciting event for the Jewish women of Melbourne," said co-organiser Pauline Rockman. "We so seldom have a chance in our busy lives to pause and think about our needs. "We are looking forward to the day as a self-enriching experience — a time to reassess our lives as women today," she said.

The day will be opened by Joan Dwyer, Chairman of the Equal Opportunity Board.

The Jewish Women's Day is on Sunday July 19th, from 10 am to 4.30 pm, at the Betty Day Care Centre, 67 Argyle Street, St Kilda. Childcare is available on request.

For further information please phone: Helen Stiglec (B.H.) 266 3727, Susie Ivany (A.H.) 529 7624.

WIRE

The Women's Information and Referral Exchange (WIRE) is a free telephone information service for women, giving practical information with particular emphasis on local services.

One of WIRE's goals is to link individual women more effectively with their local communities and to increase awareness of services available.

Enquiries are discussed and options presented in a non-judgemental manner and all calls are confidential.

If required, referrals are made to other individuals, organisations or groups. WIRE has a Telephone Typewriter phone for deaf women, a toll-free line for country women and bilingual workers for non-English speaking women.

The most often asked questions are on law, health and accommodation, but WIRE has information on a large variety of subjects.

When someone rings WIRE, the woman who answers listens to the problem and uses WIRE's resources to find information, supplying names, phone numbers and addresses of people who can give facts and support.

The hours WIRE is available are 9.00am to 9.00pm weekdays and 1.00-5.00pm weekends. The phone numbers are 654 6844 (6 lines), 654 7970 (administration) and 008 13 6570 (toll-free country line).

CHAMPION LACROSSE TEAM

The Caulfield Women's Lacrosse Team shows the pace and action of the game.

Unless you are an avid follower of the sports section of the Sunday papers, you may be unaware that Caulfield has the Victorian champion women's lacrosse team in its midst.

Caulfield's women's A Grade team last year defeated Newport to win its first Grand Final, making it the top team in Victoria.

Last year six players from Caulfield were selected for the Victorian State team, and two made up part of the Australian team that won the World Cup.

"I think within the next few years the sport will really go places," said Linda Roylance, the team's publicity officer.

"It was an Olympic sport in 1936 but has gradually faded out. Before the war there was a team in every state. It is quite big in England and America now, and I'm sure it will be here, too."

The game is played by teams of twelve players for two 25 minute halves. It is a non-contact sport played with a long stick with a net attached and involves skills of running, catching and throwing.

"Sort of like aerial hockey," Linda said.

Queen Victoria is quoted as having said: "It is the most graceful game played on two feet."

Given its success, Caulfield's club has not been around very long — it started formal competition in 1984.

The team is always happy for new players of any age to come along, but it is particularly trying to build up junior sides — Under 13 and Under 16.

According to Linda, the older girls are more than willing to help new players master the game.

One of the National side stars from Caulfield, Heather Basset, spends a lot of her own time promoting the sport amongst younger school girls.

Heather was badly injured in one of the World

Cup games and told she would never play again, but has worked her way back into form.

She has again made the State side and is again a contender for the National side, despite doctors predictions.

The women's team trains at Caulfield Park, on Mondays and Wednesdays at 7.00pm, and their next match is at Caulfield on July 12 at 12.30pm — so anyone wishing to get an idea of the game could go along to a training night or see their form in the match.

Any beginners or young girls interested in adopting the sport should contact Linda on 598 2285.

"The sport combines a lot of skills — it is a really good team game and you can make a lot of friends," Linda said. "It is the type of game that if you pick up a stick and have a couple of throws, nine times out of ten you won't want to put it down again."

Baseball Club Needs You!

The successful Under 13s team of the Ormond/Glenhuntly Baseball Club. Though this photo shows all boys, officials assure us girls are welcomed and encouraged to join the teams.

Ever had the desire to hit a home run? Here's your chance to learn the 'ins and outs' of the fascinating game of baseball.

Caulfield has its own successful baseball club, under the name 'Ormond/Glenhuntly', running a total of six teams at Junior and Senior levels.

The club plays both winter and summer seasons, but with football and soccer stealing away a few of its players in the colder months, it needs a few new faces at the moment.

Training is at the E.E. Gunn Reserve on Tuesday and Thursday at 5.00pm. No experience is necessary, as coaching is given in all aspects of the game, with older or more experienced players coaching the younger or newer sides.

Both boys and girls are encouraged to join as the teams are 'mixed'.

The club has a long history in Caulfield — the Ormond Club was founded in 1923 and Glenhuntly in 1928, then these two amalgamated in 1970.

Ormond/Glenhuntly has also had its share of success, with the Under 13s winning the premiership in 1985 and then successfully defending it last year.

In summer the club runs four Junior and three Senior teams, in winter three Junior teams and three Senior teams, so players are welcome any time.

Girls and boys are particularly needed for the Under 13, Under 15 and Under 17 teams and anyone with an interest is encouraged to apply.

Anyone wishing to know more details or register their interest should ring Alan Carter on 700 1806 or Lindsay Anderson on 583 5242.

"Bears" social activities

Caulfield Football Club's recent Fashion Show was a great success, with over one hundred people attending the evening to see fashion previews hosted by 3KZ's Liz Sullivan.

More local support at events like these is needed to ensure that Caulfield survives in the VFA. Coming events include the popular wine night, and the Businessmen's Lunch, both held once a month at the Brighton Club Hotel. Contact Peter at the Hotel on 596 5205 for more details.

On July 23 a "Sportsmen's Night" will be held at the D.C. Bricker Pavilion, Beech Street, Sth Caulfield. The panel will include well-known sporting personalities and will be hosted by racing identity Keith Hillier. The evening will cost thirty dollars which includes food and drink and a chance at the lucky door prize of one hundred dollars.

The Bears "Auction Night" will be held at "International Receptions", Bay St, Brighton on August 7, and donations of goods are required. Local shopkeepers and businessmen are urged to support this function as it is a major fundraiser for the Caulfield Football Club.

The club fields teams for Under 12s, Under 14s, and Under 16s, and its home grounds are Princes and Caulfield Parks.

This season it is proposed that three Senior teams will be entered, one more than previously. The first eleven competes in second grade and the club would like to see this team move up to first grade within the next few years.

The club requires more players for all teams, and will provide coaching for prospective players.
