A CELEBRATION OF TWO CULTURES

Exhibition Dates - Access Gallery, 15-25 November, Caulfield Arts Complex November 28 to December 3.

The strong cultural link between Australia and Japan will be a focus of this year's Caulfield Festival, with an art exhibition which will combine works from contemporary artists from Caulfield, with traditional and contemporary art and craft work by artists from Caulfield's sister city in Japan, Ogaki.

The exhibition is an annual component of the Festival, celebrating the work of local Caulfield artists and is staged in the Gallery at the Caulfield Arts Complex. This year, however, the exhibition can be previewed in the new Access Gallery at the National Gallery of Victoria from November 15-25.

Artists representing Caulfield in the exhibition are: Anne Marie Power, Peter Chiller, Peter Home and Heather Cull. All the artists either live in Caulfield, or have a working relationship with the Caulfield community. Three artists from Ogaki will also be represented.

A well known textile artist, Anne Marie, has recently returned from Japan, where she conducted a one week workshop in a machine embroidery, in Yokohama, arranged by the Port of Melbourne Authority. As a lead up to the Festival, Anne Marie will be working with local school children, making Japanese boat lanterns.

Peter Chiller's graphic cartoon style has a humorous element, but also makes comments on aspects of our twentieth century life. A sculptor, painter and printmaker, Peter will be exhibiting a selection of paintings and gouaches.

Peter Home's acrylic painting of the 'Murrumbidgee Area' has a freshness which captures his innate feeling for the environment in which he lives.

Originally a graphic designer and craftsperson, Heather Cull now pursues her interest in Fine Art, producing a combination of textile and collage work which is often decorative and richly embellished.

After showing at the Access Gallery, the exhibition will move to the Caulfield Arts Complex, where it will become part of the many cultural and leisure activities taking place during the Caulfield Festival.

Pool celebrates 25 years

CAULFIELD Memorial Swimming Pool will celebrate its 25th anniversary this month with a fun day on Sunday, November 17.

The day will commence at 10am and will host activities and entertainment for all the family. All entertainment will be free, including a sausage sizzle, along with the chance to win one of our great giveaways.

Those people who attended the original opening of the pool, are most welcome to come along and join in the festivities.

The pool, which is situated in Koornang Park, Moira Ave, Carnegie was officially opened on November 19, 1966 and was dedicated as a memorial to commemorate citizens who served in World War I and World War II. After considerable community discussions, it was decided that this would be the most suitable site.

The first stage of the pool complex was completed in 1967.

This consisted of a 50-metre, eight lane outdoor unheated pool, a 4.8 metre- deep diving pool, a toddlers' pool and a wading pool. Additional facilities have developed since then, including:

- heating to all the pools
- 2 giant waterslides
- sunshelters

- landscaped grounds
- a room for fitness classes
- 2 plexipave tennis courts with night lighting
- electric barbecues
- kiosk

Although an outdoor complex, the pools are heated to 26° at all times.

The season extends from November 1 through to March 31 and the complex is open Monday to Friday until 6pm, until 7pm on weekends and public holidays and on very hot nights the pool maybe open until 9pm.

This decision is up to the pool manager.

The entry costs are as follows:

- Adults $1.80
- Children/aged Pensioners $1.10
- Family Season Pass $115

Concession books are also available:

- 30 admittances - 25% discount
  - 60 admittances - 33% discount
- Sunscreens, goggles, caps and earplugs are available for sale at the office.

School carnivals are often held at the pool on Thursdays and Fridays, during the months of February and March between the hours of 9am-3.30pm.

Caulfield Council would like to invite all residents of Caulfield to come along and make this a most enjoyable day.

News in Brief

Covenant removed

CAULFIELD Council made a decision to remove a covenant from the property, 501 Inkerman Rd, East St Kilda at last month's Executive Services Committee meeting.

This is the first application for the removal of a covenant that the Council has considered, as previously this was dealt with by the Supreme Court. Recent amendments to both the Subdivision Act 1991 and the Planning and Environment Act have given the power to Council to deal with such issues.

The main aspect of the covenant in question was that it restricted the number of dwellings to be constructed on the site.

The committee has decided to issue a notice of decision to grant a permit to remove the covenant and erect three dwellings on the site, as it is satisfied that this would not result in any financial loss of amenity to the neighbouring properties.

Shellard pleads guilty

ROSECRADDOCK owner, Mr Peter Shellard was recently fined in the Prahran Magistrate's Court for breaches to the Health and Environment Protection Acts and Caulfield Council's Local Law. Mr Shellard pleaded guilty to the charges.

On a charge of causing a nuisance under the Health Act, by failing to repair a broken sewer pipe which was left exposed to the open air for 22 days during summer, he was fined $500 with $221.80 for costs.

Another charge was causing unreasonable noise by driving a tractor on his property between the hours of 6pm and midnight. The noise could be heard inside houses up to one block away. When questioned as to why he drove the tractor at that time of night, he stated he was hoeing a plot to plant potatoes. He was fined $200.

On a charge of permitting a fire to be lit in the open air without a permit, he was fined $150.

Fence to go ahead

CAULFIELD Council will erect protective fencing along the boundary of 21 and 23 Howe St with Murrumbeena Park to prevent damage by cricket balls entering the properties that back on to the park.

The committee, after listening to four lengthy speeches by concerned residents, decided to proceed with the protective fencing as planned and asked that consideration be given for landscaping of this area in conjunction with the re-planting of trees at Murrumbeena Park.

Thank you from the Caulfield CAB

CAULFIELD Citizen's Advice Bureau Management Committee and members would like to thank the individuals and groups within Caulfield who have generously donated to the Bureau's emergency relief fund.

The Bureau workers are seeing many local residents in financial need and it is very gratifying to be able to assist, thanks to the support of local people who have donated food and money, which the bureau uses for food vouchers.

Confidentiality prevents them from naming individuals but some of the groups who have helped are, the friendship groups of St David's Uniting Church, Glen Huntly and the Church of Christ, Carnegie, the Country Women's Association, Murrumbeena and Carnegie Progress Associations. The Bentleigh Police provided a considerable amount of food. The City of Caulfield Lions Club raised a generous donation by holding stalls, catering etc. and collecting at the Caulfield Cup Race Meeting.

Sunday Market proposed

LAST month, Caulfield Rotary Club was advised by Caulfield Council of the need for a planning permit to establish a Sunday market at the Caulfield Medical Centre.

Whilst acknowledging the charitable aspects of the proposal, the Council advised that it is subject to normal planning control. In fairly assessing applications such as this one, the Council needs to balance the often competing views of affected parties with the aspirations of applicants. If the Club satisfactorily carry out the necessary advertising of the proposal, a Council decision can be expected in early December.

Caulfield Mayor opens exhibition

CAULFIELD Park After School Program recently held an art exhibition at the Caulfield Arts Complex. The exhibition, which was officially opened by Caulfield Mayor, Cr Veronika Martens, was put together as part of Children's Week. Pictured, Mayor Martens with SA Aloysius students, Natalie and Justin Lonel, Roland Epejesi and Urszula Mosieyewski.

Missed garbage services

CAULFIELD Council recently conducted a survey to find out the number of bins collected and missed on garbage days.

The survey was conducted over a 12 week period, during which time a total of 300,525 bins were collected and only 771 were missed.

The most common reason for bins not being collected was that they were too heavy, or so full that the lids could not be closed.

Caulfield Council's director technical services, Mr Noel Wootten, said that although there is no maximum weight stipulated, bins should be able to be easily handled by the men and to be lifted by the hydraulic equipment of the truck.

The other major problems were overloading the bin and placing hazardous materials such as dust, ashes, broken glass or liquids, building materials, paper and cardboard in the bin.

"Caulfield has a good collection service, but residents need to comply with the collection regulations so that we can further improve our service," Mr Wootten said.

Chemical collection day in Caulfield

THE Caulfield Council Works Depot will hold a Metropolitan Chemical Collection Day on Sunday, December 1.

The Program, set up by the Board of Works, involves the staging of collection days, throughout the year at different locations in the metropolitan area, so householders can deliver and leave all forms of chemicals, including pesticides, solvents, paints and oils that need special treatment to ensure safe disposal.

Dumping of these materials illegally into sewers and drains threatens the environment and the health of sewerage plant workers.

Disposal into the mobile garbage bin should not occur due to the risk posed to the collection employees and the pollution of the eventual landfill disposal point.

It is also hazardous for these materials to be stored indefinitely on residential properties, as sometimes occurs.

For these reasons, particularly the wellbeing of its residents, the Council has decided to support in principle, the funding of a share of the costs for the Program.

Since this decision, the South Eastern Regional Refuse Disposal Group has considered the matter on a regional basis and resolved to financially support the continuation of the scheme on behalf of member councils. Caulfield will therefore be contributing via its annual allocation to the Region.

Specialist staff and equipment necessary to examine, treat and store chemicals will be on hand on the day.

Loans to be reduced by $2m

CAULFIELD Council has completed negotiations with the National Australia Bank to repay $2 million of its long term high interest loans.

The decision follows recent substantial shifts in interest rates and will result in a nett interest saving of $120,000 per annum.

Mayor, Cr Veronika Martens said, "that the Council's present level of reserve funds was built up during better financial times and can now be utilised to further improve the future finances of the City. A myriad of reserve funds have had to be kept, but these can now be tidied up providing the opportunity to repay the loans."

Cr Nicholas Gold, chairman of the finance strategy committee and the Mayor expressed Council's appreciation for the co-operation of the National Australia Bank.

Cr Martens said, "Council has decided to consolidate a large number of its separate reserve funds into one general fund. The decision is in line with the new Accounting Regulations which will come into operation for all Australian councils on October 1, 1992. This will result in reduced administrative costs and enable the necessary total level of reserve funds to be reduced by the $2m required to repay the loans."

Caulfield is taking a lead in implementing these regulations and this year's budget was produced generally in line with this format.

Mayor Martens described the debt reductions as "another significant accomplishment of the Council in managing ratepayers funds for their best advantage in line with Council's budget strategy."

Caulfield Carols by candlelight

CAULFIELD Council will once again hold its annual Carols by Candlelight Concert on Sunday, December 8, 8.30pm at Caulfield Park.

This event is one of the most enjoyable community festivities in Caulfield throughout the year.

Experience hundreds of candles glimmering around the side of the lake, which create a magical and enchanting atmosphere for children of all ages to enjoy.

Although the Carols don't start until 8.30pm, entertainment is provided for the audience from 6.30pm onwards.

Stiltwalkers, mime artists and a strolling jazz swing trio, will ensure there is plenty to see and listen to and in addition, refreshments will be available from the Girl Guides of Caulfield.

At 8pm, a medley of well known tunes will be performed by the City of Caulfield Band, followed by the official welcome from Caulfield Mayor, Cr Veronika Martens.

The evening will be hosted by television personality, Lindsay Edwards. Lindsay will introduce the Caulfield City Choir, under the direction of Kevin Purcell, the City of Caulfield Band, under the direction of Colin Lord and dancers from the Heather Scott Ballet School.

The guest artist this year will be Phantom of the Opera's Geraldene Morrow.

All donations for candles and programmes will go towards the Caulfield Citizens Advice Bureau so that they may provide additional food vouchers for the needy in Caulfield.

Please join in this very special occasion and experience a very unique evening.

For further information, contact Liz Jesty on 524 3264.

COMMUNITY TALK

Junk mail

JUNK mail soon to be banned should be judged differently as well.

Junk mail sounds offensive to probably struggling mailbox advertisers whose publications in local newspapers may not be successful. Advertising mail sounds more polite.

I admit my own concern in regard to sorting out the contents of the letter box, but why deprive several jobless youngsters, or elderly people of a small income?

Worse still could be fines to punish any business already struggling trying to get customers this way.

Since we have the pleasure to carry or pull outside household waste, glass and some plastic bottles, plus papers separately for recycling, why not add the unwanted advertising paper material as well.

Let's give government a break from more regulations.

- A Feil, Elsternwick.

CAULFIELD Council has recently installed an attractive new playground at the western end of Princes Park.

The playground is already proving to be very popular.

The surrounding area has also been landscaped with gentle grassed earth mounding and new seats and tables. A new path leads through an avenue of trees to the playground and picnic area and to the public toilets in the nearby sports pavilion.

The landscape was designed and constructed by the Council's Parks and Gardens officers and will be further complemented with additional tree and shrub planting over the next 12 months.

It is a pleasant family facility and is well worth a visit.

Red Cross needs volunteers

THE City of Caulfield was this year awarded the third highest money raiser in the metropolitan area for the Red Cross Calling Appeal.

Through the help of community groups, church groups, service clubs, schools and individuals, Caulfield raised $37,487 for the Appeal.

Caulfield Mayor, Cr Veronika Martens, appeals to representatives from organisations and individuals to volunteer and assist in the 1992 Red Cross Collection in one of the following ways:

- participating in the doorknock in your area, in a group or individually
- manning an intersection collection (Red Cross arranges the necessary permits and safety equipment)

● organising a fundraising, social or sporting activity

- offering your organising skills to help with the Appeal, eg: sorting kits, transporting collectors, counting money etc., or selling tickets in the Red Cross Major Raffle.

The generosity of the Caulfield community is always highlighted when charity, volunteer assistance is required.

If you have any time to spare and would like to become involved in doorknocking on Red Cross Appeal Day, kindly write to Mrs Alice Campbell OAM, 4/91 Corogil Road, Murrumbena 3163. Telephone 568 0275.

Lions support a needy cause

Do care volunteers - more than friends

DO CARE is a service provided by Wesley Central Mission which aims to ease the loneliness and isolation sometimes felt by older people when they are left alone, may after the death of a partner, or when family move away.

Volunteers are matched with an older person and visit with them once a week.

Some go out shopping, to a neighborhood house or to the movies. Others stay at home and have a chat over a 'cuppa'.

"It is not only the older person who benefits from the relationship. Our volunteers are always talking of their joy and excitement in finding a new friend," said Mrs Ann Wood, area co-ordinator for Do Care.

"I would love to hear from readers who are interested in learning about volunteering for Do Care," she said.

Mrs Wood is currently recruiting volunteers for the Do Care program. New volunteers attend two brief orientation sessions to learn about Do Care, its philosophy and what their role is in the program. They are then matched with an older person.

Mrs Wood may be contacted at her area office on 822 1717 or through the Do Care office on 662 2044.

Caulfield Urban Conservation Study

SPECIAL FEATURE

About the Study

THE City of Caulfield has recently commissioned a preliminary urban conservation study.

The study has provided a background history to Caulfield's built environment, looking at Caulfield's development from its beginnings until World War 11.

It also included a survey which has given a preliminary indication of the heritage importance of each building in the municipality. The study also identifies four "historic areas".

Caulfield's Heritage

THE study found that Caulfield has retained a great deal of its late nineteenth and early twentieth century architecture.

Much of the old Elsternwick remains in its late Victorian and Edwardian form.

Victorian mansions, federation-style villas, tramway structures and innovative pre-Second World War subdivisions are special features of Caulfield.

However, the study has also shown that this heritage is at risk. Road widenings, demolitions, changes of building use and building alterations have already occurred, even in historic areas such as Derby Road.

Study Recommendations

THE study proposed more detail investigation of the areas and buildings identified as important to Caulfield's Heritage. With the background history, this information would be used to develop a Heritage Management Plan for Caulfield.

A Heritage Management Plan would only be prepared after consulting community groups and could include a range of statutory measures (under the Caulfield Planning Scheme) and non-statutory measures (for instance, advisory design guidelines).

Background History To The Built Environment

Summary of Consultants Report

THE environmental history (or background history to the built environment) looks at the development of Caulfield from its beginnings until World War 2.

Caulfield's built environment was determined to a large degree by external forces, a theme which is supported and reinforced throughout the report.

Caulfield's importance rested on its strategic location between Port Phillip's eastern runs and the markets of Melbourne in the 1830s. The major highways of Main Dandenong Road and Brighton Road already defined the north and south-west boundaries of Caulfield, many years before the local Road Board was established in 1857.

By 1857 most of the district was under pasture with some cultivated land and a total of 159 houses and tents. The district's first self-contained settlement was Camden Town which later remained the principal commercial focus when incorporated into the Glen Huntly Road centre.

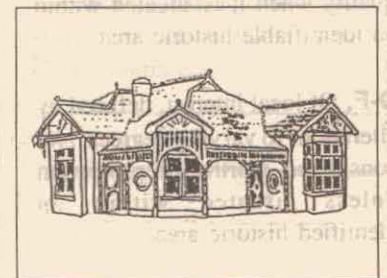

Caulfield played host to a number of innovations in the construction of small estates. The Lempriere Avenue Estate built in the early thirties was an estate of "whole streets of houses of a superior type, giving very careful thought to the architecture and street amenities". Features included planted lawn strips, low front and dividing fences, underground power and ornamental street lamps. The Australian Home Beautiful magazine spoke highly of the Lempriere estate as an example of the best of housing standards. A similar estate was built in Fosbery Avenue in 1923-30.

Two other innovations were the AV Jennings Estates - the "Hillcrest" Estate in Caulfield South and the "Beauville" Estate in Murrumbeena. The Hillcrest Estate achieved harmony in housing style and public environment and introduced the idea of pre selling houses while the Beauville Estate included shops and common parkland. This estate was the pre cursor of the planned community developments of subsequent decades.

Steady growth continued under the Road Board with many of Caulfield's large villa residences being built until the 1892 depression. A number have survived the post World War 1 suburbanisation and are an example of the high point of the City's contemporary architectural heritage.

Closer settlement was to follow at first in the vicinity of railway stations where Edwardian villas were characteristic. Caulfield was and remains today a tramway City made possible by the opening of the Prahran and Malvern Tramways Trust Network of lines. Growth in the City indicated the general prosperity in the early 1900s.

Above: Edwardian

In 1908, Caulfield had 222 houses built which was the third largest of any Melbourne municipality. The housing crisis of the 1920s led to increased suburbanisation, particularly in the eastern parts of the City so that by the end of the 1930s the municipality had been developed although subdivisions along North Road occurred during post World War 2.

The copy deadline for the December 9 issue is November 18

Summary Of Consultant's Report - On Caulfield Heritage And Conservation Study

THE preliminary survey assessed the significance of each building in the municipality. The study findings in the report are found primarily on the work of the architectural field survey.

The field survey sheets cover the entire municipality and a preliminary assessment of significance has been undertaken for every building within it. They can be seen at the Town Hall display. Sites are ranked with the following levels of significance.

A. Of State and possible National significance. Recommended for inclusion on the State Historic Building Register, the National estate Register and for planning scheme protection.

B. Of Regional significance, either on the grounds of its unusual architecture expression or use which has or had regional impact. Recommended for planning scheme protection and possibly for inclusion on the State and National Registers.

C+. Of local significance, but having sufficient architectural value or historic associations to warrant detailed assessments. Recommended for planning scheme protection.

C. Of local significance, being representative of a period, style and/or house type and forming a supportive element in the heritage of the City. Preservation is important for building of this quality when it is situated within an identifiable historic area.

D-F. Of local interest, defaced by alterations to varying degrees. Not considered worthy of protection unless situated within an identified historic area.

N. Not significant

The survey identified 11 level A sites; 44 level B sites; 96 level C+ sites and 590 level C sites in the municipality (some 2.2% of the total properties in Caulfield).

The field survey also identified four "historic areas" on a preliminary basis:

1. Caulfield North, consisting primarily of Victorian and Edwardian housing stock in the

Below: No 1 - Caulfield North

2. Elsternwick, consisting of Victorian and Edwardian middle and upper class housing stock and the Glen Huntly Road shopping frontages. This area is also capable of being extended to the east to embrace a currently degraded area of working class houses of the Victorian era;

3. Gladstone Parade, including Leibler Yavneh College and;

Right: No 3 - Gladstone Pde

4. Derby Road, including the Derby Road commercial premises and Caulfield Railway Station.

Consultant's Recommendation

THE Consultant recommended: "that the findings of the Preliminary Conservation study be used to form the basis of a Heritage Management Plan for the City. This plan will draw on the following sources of information:

- the outline environmental history

- assessments of the historic areas identified and;

- assessments of sites ranked at levels A,B, and C+.

It will consist of a range of measures, prepared after consultation with the affected groups, which will assist Council to encourage the protection and enhancement of the City's built heritage.

These measures may include both statutory and non-statutory initiatives and will be responsive to the special characteristics of Caulfield's built heritage. It will embrace procedures which should apply within Council's offices concerning heritage management as well as similar processes applying to property owners within and outside of the identified historic areas. Most importantly, the plan will have as its principal goal the establishment of a process whereby the identified heritage of the City can be responsibly managed in the public interest".

Heritage At Risk

THE preliminary survey has shown that some of the City's heritage has already been lost. Only 8 buildings in Caulfield are now covered by controls aimed at retaining heritage. These are the buildings registered under the Historic Buildings Act. A permit from the Historic Buildings Council is needed for demolition, alterations, or other development of these properties.

Most other existing buildings for example houses in residential zones, can be altered, added to or demolished as long as a building permit is issued. Council cannot consider the effect on building heritage when granting building permits.

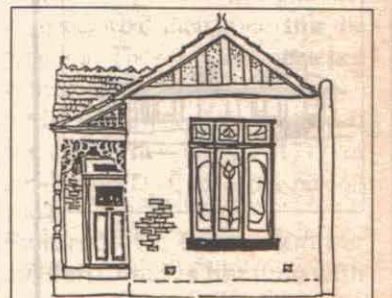

A building's heritage quality as seen from the street can be degraded by:

- demolition
- construction of fences, carports or other outbuildings not in keeping with the building style;
- altering the building facade so as to remove or cover heritage features;
- painting or putting up an advertising sign that is not in keeping with the building style;
- adding extensions not in keeping with the building style.

Caulfield Urban Conservation Study

SPECIAL FEATURE

How Can Heritage Be Managed?

COUNCIL could ultimately manage the built heritage of the City by statutory Town Planning controls, conservation guidelines or a combination of the two, over privately owned land.

Council could also decide on lesser degrees of control, by allowing some types of development without planning permission, for example:

■ alterations not visible from the street;

Statutory

Council could list the four "historic areas" as Urban Conservation Areas under the Caulfield Planning scheme. It could also identify significant buildings outside the "historic areas" under the scheme. It could then require town planning permission to be given for all or some of the following changes:

- demolition
- alterations
- additions
- new buildings
- advertising signs

Council could then take the design of these building works and how they affect heritage value, into account.

■ alterations not to the street facade and not including parts of the building of importance to its design:

■ alterations that are for maintenance or repair such as painting, gutter replacement, roof tile replacement.

Non-Statutory

Council could provide design guidelines for property owners, giving a practical guide to what building works are in keeping with the heritage character of the area or building.

It could consider providing other heritage design advice. Council's own role in providing street improvement works (eg. furniture, paving) could also be part of a heritage management plan.

What Heritage Management Would Not Do

The introduction of a Heritage Management Plan would not place any onus on the owners of buildings to maintain their properties to any particular standard. It would not prevent most normal activities associated with home ownership.

Seminars

COUNCIL intends to conduct public seminars, where you can hear from the consultant who prepared the study. You will be able to ask the consultant and Council officers about all aspects of the study. Dates for these seminars will be advised through the local press.

Display

A DISPLAY of heritage study material will be set up for public viewing, including the preliminary survey of building significance.

Featuring Caulfield's parks and gardens

CAULFIELD is well known for its many beautiful parks and gardens.

In the coming issues of Caulfield Contact, we will feature the parks and the people who are responsible for their survival.

This month we are featuring Caulfield Park and East Caulfield Park.

In the first decade of the 20th century, Caulfield Park and East Caulfield Park had developed as the district's principal sporting areas.

Today the status of these parks is substantially unchanged, both are permanent Crown reserves, solely for recreation, with responsibility of their management vested in Caulfield Council.

Each park has its own Committee of Management which is responsible for allocating grounds to sporting clubs, collecting fees from the sporting clubs that use the parks and putting forward recommendations to the Council to further improve the parks facilities.

A councillor in the ward pertaining to the park is always elected as the president.

Caulfield Park has had for 18 years, the same chairman, Mr Harold Little and secretary, Mrs Lidsey, who have both recently been re-elected.

Caulfield Park, situated cnr Balaclava and Hawthorn Rds, Caulfield, has the following facilities:

- 3 pavilions
- sports ovals
- playground
- jogging track
- 2 synthetic wickets
- 4 hard top wickets
- barbecue facilities
- lawn bowls
- tennis courts

It is home to Caulfield Sub District Cricket Club and Caulfield Lacrosse Club. These clubs are anxious for new members and encourage juniors to become involved in their clubs.

Cr Sandy Anderson, president East Caulfield Park Committee of Management.

Cr David Michelson, president Caulfield Park Committee of Management.

The Victorian Cricket Association like the park so much, that they have decided to play all sub district finals there for the next few years.

During the week, the park is used by local schools such as CBC St Kilda, Grimwade House, St Aloysius Primary School and St Anthony's Primary School.

If you wish to know more information about Caulfield Park and its facilities, please contact the Committee of Management secretary, Mrs P Lidsey, on 578 3881

Development in East Caulfield Park

RESIDENTS adjacent to East Caulfield Park and students of the neighbouring Caulfield Campus, Monash University, are witnessing changes to East Caulfield Park, which will lead to major improvements.

Caulfield Council has embarked on a program to improve the attractions of the park. An exercise track has been constructed around the parkland and new tables, seats and porticos for the park entrances have been ordered. The new furniture also trials Syntal recycled plastic.

Unfortunately, many of the trees that border the park are Cypress and Mahogany Gym, which have severely deteriorated in structure and health. Some trees require considerable arboricultural work to ensure their longevity, whilst others must be removed for public safety.

Although the tree removals leave the park with a bare, exposed appearance, the Council will be doing considerable tree planting throughout the park over the next three years.

The Council is currently planting 100 new trees.

The tree planting is selected to provide a mixture of native and exotic trees and a variety of growth rates.

It aims to provide both a quick green effect and a sustainable landscape.

The Council has been confronted with the hard decision to remove many large trees from parklands this year.

Caulfield Council's urban designer, Ms Lynette Hannan, said "it is heartbreaking to see trees being removed, but decisions are made with consideration to professional and expert advice and for public safety," said Ms Hannan.

"The reality is that trees need to be replaced, the landscape to be re-established and a design and management plan prepared to ensure that large scale tree removal does not feature in the future of the parks".

"The result will be an attractive parkland, thus meeting user and environmental demands."

If you would like to know any information about East Caulfield Park and its facilities, please contact the Committee of Management Secretary, Mr Leskie, on 571 8138.

Steam engine a hit

THE Public Transport Open Day proved to be a very popular affair, especially when the steam engine K163 pulled in at Caulfield Station.

Some Caulfield residents enjoyed the short trip down to Frankston station, picking up enthusiastic passengers on its way.

Oil painter exhibits at Caulfield

REG Carter is a retired able seaman who began painting in his spare time.

He will hold an exhibition at the Caulfield Arts Complex until November 20.

Reg's only training included a pastel drawing workshop conducted by Ming Mackay and a workshop with Bill Harding.

This exhibition features figurative works in interior settings, seascapes and interiors. His favourite subject matter is painting the female form and he says, "his priority is working with colors to build up an exciting and vibrant mood onto the canvas."

All his works are oil paintings on board or canvas.

Highlights of his painting career include one of his works being accepted for the Maritime Award, sponsored by ACTA Shipping Company Ltd.

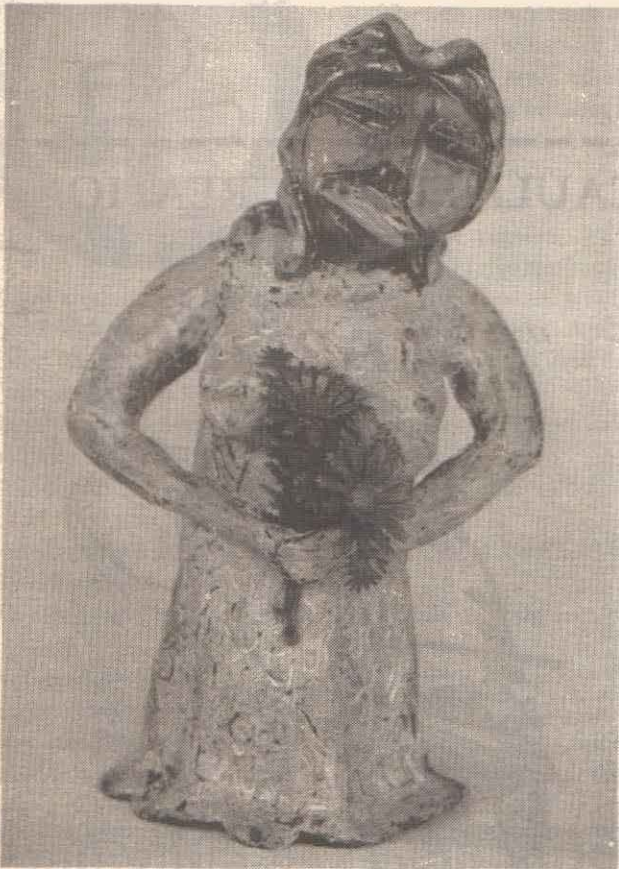

He has also sold some of his paintings through Leonard Joels Art Auctions and has won numerous awards for his work at art shows.

The exhibition promises to be a very affordable one, offering exceptional pieces of work.

Local artist to exhibit in Melbourne gallery

CAULFIELD resident, Pamela Irving is holding an exhibition at the Blaxland Gallery in the Myer Melbourne Store this month. The exhibition started on November 7 and will run until December 3.

Pamela, who held a highly successful exhibition entitled Love, Myth and Suffering at the Caulfield Arts Complex earlier this year, continues to push back the boundaries of ceramics with her brilliant glossy colors and vibrant expressionistic imagery.

She has frequently looked to the early Australian modern artists during her career and has picked up where they, with their fairly male biased views, left off.

In one particularly impressive vessel, Groom waiting for his Bride to grow up, Pamela draws inspiration from Arthur Boyd's Bride series. Pamela is an exciting and exceptional artist working in the medium of clay.

The Australian Jewish film festival

IN November 1990, the Australian Film Institute presented the first Australian Jewish Film Festival, with screenings in Melbourne and Sydney. The Festival was such a great success that the AFI decided to make this an annual event.

The AFI is proud to present this year's Festival which promises an even more exciting line up than last year, with over 25 titles including some special children's programmes.

The Festival started on November 9. It will run for 15 days at the Trak cinema. Telephone 8279333.

Titles include: Abraham's Gold, Jorg Graser, Germany, 1990, Homicide, David Mamet, USA, 1991.

Cello, piano concert

CAULFIELD Arts Complex presents A Concert of French Cello Music, with Henry Wenig, cello, Dr William Kimber, piano and Associate Artist, Li Wei Qin, cello.

Relax and enjoy an afternoon of French grace, elegance and brilliance, featuring works by Couperin, Gretry, Debussy and the Saint-Saens' Cello Concerto in A minor (accompanied by piano).

The concert will be on Sunday, November 24, at 3pm. Tickets $10, concession $8.

For further information and bookings, contact Liz Jesty on 524 3264.

Venture into landscape

AN exhibition of paintings by Melbourne-born artist, Geoff Hines, will be on display at the Caulfield Arts Complex until November 20. Geoff became interested in landscapes in 1971 as he travelled through the vast wilderness of north-western Australia. The Centre provides an opportunity to provide information, counselling, education and referral to all users of the Exchange. The Program, while not overly busy, is certainly appreciated by its users.

Help prevent sunburn You and your pets column

ANIMALS, like humans suffer from sunburn which can lead to squamous cell carcinoma or skin cancer. This can be fatal and is only treatable if the problem is dealt with in the very early stages, and preventative measures taken.
Animals are protected from the burning rays of the sun by their hair, coat and by natural pigmentation within the skin itself.
Some animals are more susceptible to getting sunburn than others. These are the pale, pink-skinned, thin haired dogs and cats. Short haired white cats are the most commonly affected animals. If you are buying a white cat, check that it has thick hair coverage on its ears.
The ear tips are a common problem area and it is not unusual for our clinic to be presented with a cat or dog whose ear tips have been completely shrivelled and eaten away by a form of dry gangrene, caused from nothing else but exposure to sunlight.
Sunburn on the skin of the abdomen and thighs is also common in pale skinned animals who sleep in the sun for several hours. These animals undergo the same changes as humans do. The skin becomes red, thickened, perhaps blistered and eventually flakey. Chronic irritation by repeat exposure to the sun may cause cancerous lesions.

Exercise your animal prior to 11am and after 3pm. Try and discourage it from sleeping in direct sunlight. U-V cream or block-out can be applied to the ear tips which will assist in preventing permanent skin damage when the animal is outdoors.
However sometimes despite keeping your pet indoors as much as possible and using creams, if the lesion changes from red, scaly, dry sunburn lesions to ulcerating, bleeding sores, then more drastic measures need to be taken.
It is advised that the lesion be surgically removed if it is in an accessible area. Unfortunately most lesions occur on the nose pad or just behind which need to be attended to at a very early stage.
Prevention is better than letting sunburn become cancerous, so if your pet has had some cases of sunburn, try to keep it out of direct sunlight during the hottest part of the day.
