

Council uproar at VicCode proposals

CAULFIELD Council has continued its strong opposition to the VicCode proposals of the State Government, which in their present form would mean much higher density development for Caulfield.

Caulfield Mayor, Cr Ed Biggs said that the Minister for Planning, Mr MacLellan is clearly in favor of proceeding with VicCode.

"For Caulfield this means increased site coverage for multi-unit developments which will have less open space and less provision for car parking," said Cr Biggs. "The Council is most unhappy with the original proposal but its approach to the Minister was swept aside and Caulfield was told to work through the Municipal Association of Victoria (MAV) and the Metropolitan Municipal Association," he said.

At a recent meeting convened by the MAV, the Minister for Planning and Development advised that he does intend to approve VicCode in a form very similar to the one recommended. Although this proposal modifies the previous open space requirements it still minimises open space compared with Council's existing policy and increases site coverage dramatically.

At its town planning committee meeting on July 6, Council called for the Minister to come out of his ivory tower and inspect actual developments under the present Council policy.

At Council's policy and environment committee meeting this month, Council had discussions with local member Ted Tanner about its concerns. Mr Tanner has arranged a deputation to The Hon. Robert MacLellan, MP, Minister for Planning and Development on August 5, 1993 so that Council can express its position directly.

To ascertain resident support for its moves, Council has circulated to every household, a leaflet on the potential affects of VicCode and asks for residents to post, fax or return their signed objection. Cr Biggs said that the returns are flooding in with opposition to VocCode and will be referred on to the Minister as proof of community rejection of higher density for the City of Caulfield.

Cr Biggs, said "Caulfield is at the coalface in regard to multi-unit development because so much of it had taken place during the past decade."

"Whilst Council standards are much more stringent than the VicCode proposals, there are still some pretty ordinary devel-

Customer service - No. 1 at Caulfield

CAULFIELD Council will revamp its customer service in an effort to be more in tune with its residents.

In a detailed report to Council's policy and environment committee meeting, chief executive officer, Doug Aylen said it's the first time Caulfield has taken positive steps to implement a comprehensive customer service program.

"For an organisation to be successful it must actively seek out the views and needs of its customers and in doing so, automatically address the quality of service issues," said Mr Aylen.

"Comparatively, the City of Caulfield measures well against other councils in regard to efficient and friendly service, however there is always room for improvement. A customer service program is a desirable way to pursue excellence," he said.

The program, to be headed by Mr Aylen will commence with a training phase from July 1 to September 30, 1993. The executive and corporate managers will undertake the training phase first to give them the knowledge to implement the program and engender their commitment. They in turn will implement the refined customer service program through their staff. The first physical change will be the revamp of the City Hall reception area to make it easier for customers to receive the services they require.

In his report, Mr Aylen also mentioned that customer service is indirectly tied in with "Enterprise Bargaining" - another initiative underway at Caulfield.

"In summary, Enterprise Bargaining is about consulting with all within the workplace and arriving at agreements on the best method of achieving both the organisation's objectives and benefits for staff," said Mr Aylen.

"It's our vision to provide an appropriate range of services to our residents using efficient and effective local government practices. We know that for this vision to be achieved we have to identify how our residents feel about the services the Council provides, and take their views into account in continuously improving customer value," he said.

Engineering update

Albert St reconstruction

CAULFIELD Council has accepted quotations for the reconstruction of Albert St (off Inkerman Rd). The quoted price to relay the bluestone kerb and channel and extend stormwater drainage along both sides of the road was $47,577.

The successful contractor was Westernport Brick Paving and the work is expected to commence in August. The residents of Albert St will be given advance notice when the exact start date is confirmed.

Right of Way reconstruction

CAULFIELD Council's engineering department has recently completed a design to reconstruct the Right of Way (R.O.W.) bounded by Glen Huntly Rd, Selwyn St, May St and St Georges Rd.

This project involves removal of bluestone pitchers which have been overlaid with asphalt, underground drainage and new 150mm thick concrete paving.

The contract has been awarded to Presta Paving at a total cost of $30,168.

The purpose of carrying out this project is to upgrade the general deteriorating condition of the bluestone pitchers surface and also to provide extra drainage within the R.O.W.

Construction works which commenced earlier this month will be completed in August, 1993.

Residential Property Drainage

MANY property owners are not sure what their responsibilities and obligations are when it comes to the proper collection and disposal of stormwater drainage from their property.

The property owner is responsible for the installation and maintenance of a system of underground drainage pipes of a diameter no less than 100mm (4") to collect all roof water and possibly water runoff from paved surfaces such as driveways, pool surrounds or other large surfaces.

The responsibility rests with the owner for this drainage system right through to what is generally termed the 'legal point of discharge' which is the point where the household drainage system enters the Council controlled drainage.

The legal point of discharge will be one of the following:

1. The kerb and channel in the street at the front of the property;
2. An underground stormwater drain in the street.
3. An underground stormwater drain which maybe within a R.O.W. or contained within an easement in a neighbouring property;
4. A constructed open drain within a R.O.W. or contained within an easement in a neighbouring property;
5. The surface of a R.O.W. that has been constructed with bluestone pitchers or concrete.

Owners should keep a record of where their drains run and ensure that they are properly maintained by regularly clearing leaves and other debris from pits and inspecting openings and checking the soundness of downpipe connections. Large repairs or renewals should be carried out by a properly accredited plumber. Before any connections are made to underground Council drains or work carried out within the street, a permit must be obtained from the Council's building department.

Hopetoun Gardens - amenities block

AN amenities block is soon to be constructed in Hopetoun Gardens. The building is to be used by the Council gardener stationed in Hopetoun Gardens. The gardener has been working from the basement of the existing rotunda.

The amenities block will consist of a storeroom, lunchroom and toilet and will be constructed to conform with Council's health and safety requirements.

New road rules for pedestrians

LAST year over 2000 pedestrians didn't make it across the road - many broke the law and for some it cost them their lives.

A new system of penalties has been introduced, with $15 on-the-spot fines for pedestrians who take road laws too lightly.

Take a few minutes to read the following - it could save you costly mistakes in the future.

Cross against a yellow or red light $15

Cross against a 'don't walk' sign $15

Alight from a moving tram or bus $15

Not cross to the edge of the road after getting off a tram $15

Cross the road within 20 metres of a pedestrian crossing $15

Failing to obey a traffic instruction by a Police Officer $15

Not use the shortest or most direct route to cross a road $15

Maintenance of Caulfield's parks

CAULFIELD has approximately 100 hectares of parkland for use by its residents and others. This comprises 43 hectares of Crown Land for which Council manages through committees of management, and the balance is owned by Council. In addition, the municipality houses the Caulfield Racecourse Reserve, some 55 hectares which is available at times for public recreation and also the Ripponlea Estate of 5.5 hectares which provides a passive recreational outlet.

Council controlled parkland is allocated approximately 55% to active sporting purposes at specified times and the balance to passive recreation. The passive recreational areas are significant in meeting the needs of all age groups. The active sporting areas are distributed across nine major parks.

Council's major sporting parks are managed by individual committees of management which have certain powers delegated from Council by a formal agreement. These committees decide all park tenancies and levy rental charges on user clubs or park and building usage. The Committees comprise representatives of the tenant clubs and unaffiliated citizen representatives from the local area to provide for balanced decision making.

Council in turn levies an annual charge on each committee aiming to recover a proportion of its costs in maintaining the sporting areas.

The park committees of management have jointly reimbursed Council $53,500 of its costs representing a 12.3% recovery. Committees of management are also expected to make a meaningful contribution to any capital works. In addition to meeting a share of the active sporting costs, the committee of management at Duncan MacKinnon Park commenced making special contributions in 1986 to an Athletics Track Resurfacing Fund which matches the Council contribution on a dollar for dollar basis. In 1993 the committee contribution was $12,000. Funds accumulated in this manner will greatly assist in meeting the major expense of track renewal scheduled for the near future. Very few amateur sporting centres in Victoria contribute at this level.

opments that result from the present rules. I hate to think what will happen under the proposed legislation," Cr Biggs added.

Caulfield's manager planning, Jeff Akehurst, said "Apart from facilitating much denser development of metropolitan Melbourne, VicCode proposes a blanket control which effectively ignores the individuality of various municipalities and differences within a municipality."

"Over many years Caulfield has fine tuned its multi-residential development policy to encourage high standards and these standards look like being swept aside with no recognition of the current density of development in the municipality. Forty-six percent of residential sites in Caulfield already contain more than one residence and there should be some recognition of this in future proposals for higher density across metropolitan Melbourne," Mr Akehurst said.

Farewell to a prominent councillor

WEST ward Councillor, Robert Kirby will retire at the elections this year.

Since coming onto Council in the heady days of the Elsternwick Station issue, Cr Kirby has been an intelligent and innovative member of the Caulfield City Council.

Mayor and colleague, Cr Ed Biggs, said "Robert Kirby has had to manage a demanding executive job and a young family but he has found time and energy to actively represent the West Ward and present challenging new ideas to Council."

"He will be remembered for his substantial contributions in the

"Caulfield has done its share and will be discriminated against by the proposed changes."

Cr Spencer added, "The Council should not lose control of planning in its local area and this could happen under VicCode."

Elements of VicCode causing most concern to Council include the increase in site coverage for two storey units from 40% to 60% and decrease in open space per dwelling unit from 60 square metres to 25 square metres in many areas of Caulfield. Front setbacks under VicCode are planned to be three metres in lieu of the Council's present policy of five metres.

Apart from these issues provisions for car parking will be reduced and visual and acoustic privacy standards will be lower than Caulfield applies. If VicCode is adopted, not only will the private open space requirements be lowered, but the Government will reduce developer contributions to public open space for five dwellings or less.

Mayor receives assurance of Hospital's survival

CAULFIELD Mayor, Cr Ed Biggs has recently received written confirmation from the Minister for Health, The Hon. Marie Tehan that the Government has no intentions of closing the Caulfield General Medical Centre (CGMC).

The Minister's letter of June 11 to Mayor Biggs states: "Neither the Government nor the Hospital has the closure of the CGMC or a substantial reduction in its services on their agendas. However, as from July 1, 1993, with the introduction of a fundamentally different funding system for public hospitals, all public hospitals in the State will need to perform efficiently, in a competitive environment in order to remain viable. The new casemix funding formula rewards efficiency in the management of hospitals."

"Hospital Boards will be taking more responsibility for the running of their hospitals and in setting the directions of services to be provided."

Cr Biggs, said "It is an overdue, but positive response - one worth waiting for."

"After many months of not knowing the destiny of the CGMC it is a relief to have the Government's assurance that not only will the hospital survive, but there will be no substantial reductions in its services," said Cr Biggs.

In her letter, the Minister reiterated that it was her preference for Council to continue to liaise directly with the Hospital Management about issues relating to future planning.

"Caulfield Council will continue to seek assurances that the Caulfield community will receive the essential medical services it needs," said Cr Biggs.

Watch out!

Don't make it easy for a car thief!

ALWAYS remove your ignition key and ensure that no parcels, or even tapes, are visible to passers by. Get into the habit of putting all parcels directly into the boot.

SECURE all doors and windows before leaving the car and engage any locking or other anti-theft device.

NEVER leave handbags, wallets, drivers' licences, car registration papers, cheque books, credit cards etc in your car.

KEEP your car and house keys separate. Maybe your key tag shows the car registration number? If lost, the wrong finder may quickly trace the vehicle and waltz off with it. Your driver's licence number should be the only information on your key tag.

AVOID car parks which require the key to be left.

AVOID parking in dark, remote areas where possible. If you have a carport or garage - use it! And if you have a garage - lock it!

FOR your own protection, drive with the doors locked at night time.

Toy Library's new recycling market

FOLLOWING in the footsteps of Caulfield Council, the Caulfield Community Toy Library is encouraging environmentally aware Caulfield families to recycle items which they no longer use and which could be reused by another family. A Mum's Market will be held on Saturday, September 4, 9am-12noon at the Murrumbidgee Park pavilion. The Toy Library anticipates that this environmentally friendly recession beater and fundraiser will generate a lot of interest from Caulfield families and may well become an annual event.

Mum's Market will feature a range of items for sale, including basins, baby baths, push-along walkers and bikes, toys and puzzles, strollers and prams. Spring is just around the corner and now is the ideal time to investigate last years summer wardrobe and sort through this years winter woollies - children grow so quickly and many items can be passed on to other families.

If you have any goods which can be reused, then book a stall and recycle them at Mum's Market. Cost per stall is $10 with all proceeds from booking fees going to the Toy Library.

For bookings and further information, contact Dana on 523 8691.

You and your pets column

YOUR dog has just been hit by a car - what should you do? You may wish to keep the following protocol in a useful place, on the fridge or in the glove box of the car should you need it some day.

1. Remain calm

Your pet is probably already in shock and further stress will not get him or you anywhere sooner than was meant to be.

2. Remove your pet away from direct traffic

To do this you may have to secure some soft strapping (gauze bandage, an old sock or a shirt sleeve) around the dogs mouth to create a muzzle to prevent him from biting. Remember, he's in shock and probably unaware as to what is happening or who you are. Lift him as gently as possible, avoiding any sudden movements which may cause further pain or distress.

A blanket may be a useful stretcher for a larger breed of dog.

3. Apply pressure to any wounds which appear to be bleeding badly

This may be achieved using an old shirt or clean rag.

4 Carefully lift him into to car and take him to the vet immediately

Once at the vet, the veterinarian can begin to assess the extent of the injuries both internally and externally.

NOTE: Even if your pet is able to walk away from an accident he may still be suffering from shock which can lead to death. So even if he appears fine a checkup is advisable to ensure your pet maintains perfect health.

Sister Marie earns OAM

BETHLEHEM Hospital's Sister Marie Hedigan has been awarded a Medal of the Order of Australia this year for her dedication to hospital administration.

Sister Hedigan has worked in hospital administration for 28 years and has been at Bethlehem for 11 of those years.

On receiving her OAM award, Sister Hedigan said she felt stunned and surprised.

"It's an honor that has been given to the Little Company of Mary rather than to me," said Sister Hedigan. "All my work has been for the Little Company of Mary and I know that this award was presented to me for that reason."

Bethlehem Hospital is part of the Little Company of Mary group, a worldwide order established to pay and care for the dying.

Sister Hedigan played a major part in establishing the hospice homecare service at Bethlehem.

In her spare time, she enjoys reading, classical music, walking and swimming.

Kilvington appoints new principal

DI Fleming was recently appointed as the new principal of Kilvington Baptist Girls' Grammar School. Mrs Fleming, currently head of Methodist Ladies' College Middle School, takes up her appointment in term four this year.

She has been a ground-breaking advocate for the importance of technology in the education of girls and is a firm believer that women can be successful in all their endeavours - as partners, parents and professionals.

As a committed educator, Mrs Fleming has been involved in diverse educational endeavours. In 1988 she was director of the Strategic Issues Forum on "Education, Tomorrow and Beyond" for the Committee for Economic Development of Australia (CEDA).

She has also been prominent in the Australian Council for Education Administration, is a past president of the Victorian Council for Educational Administration and is currently the vice president of the Yooralla Society of Victoria.

Her published papers and commercial textbooks range over many current issues, but she particularly addressed those pertaining to women in her successful text, "The History of Australian Women: First Fleet to Migration".

"I want to see Kilvington become a significant cultural centre for the whole community - a community which actively involves students, teachers, parents and ex-collegians," said Mrs Fleming.

In announcing the appointment, chairman of the school council, Mr Harry Neal, said "The Council believes that Di Fleming will provide the leadership which can enhance the profile of Kilvington into the 21st century. She is a skilled administrator, acknowledged curriculum leader and will be a superb role model for all our students."

Mr Neal added that Mrs Fleming would assume the principalship on the retirement of Mr Warren Stone, who has given 20 years of dedicated service to Kilvington.

'Friends for Older People' program needs volunteers

Above: St Michael's nursing home resident, Bill Croft with his Friends for Older People volunteer, Raquel Tyghe.

ST MICHAEL'S Nursing Home resident Bill Croft says his Friends For Older People (FFOP) volunteer Raquel Tyghe is like a granddaughter to him.

Bill 82, was introduced to Raquel through the (FFOP) program - a Commonwealth Department of Health, Housing, Local Government and Community Services funded, and MS Society Victoria Ltd. sponsored program, which recruits members of the community to become friends with older isolated people in nursing homes.

Raquel 24, has visited Bill for just over a year - shortly after he came to live at St Michael's.

"I visit Bill about once a week and enjoy listening to him skite about the old days," said Raquel.

"I often bring along photos so he can see who and what I'm talking about. My flatmate and boyfriend have visited Bill with me," she added.

Raquel is looking forward to taking Bill on an outing in the near future and although Bill thinks women drivers are the worst, he is very keen to go.

Asked where he would like to go on his outing, Bill replied "The country."

The FFOP program was first introduced approximately 18 months ago. Clare Doyle, FFOP South Eastern Metropolitan Area Coordinator is responsible for recruiting volunteers and matching them with nursing home residents.

"It is essential that we match people who have similar interests and outlooks with our nursing home residents," said Clare.

It's also important for our residents to know that the volunteer is their 'special friend'," she added.

Volunteers are asked to visit their older friend at least once a fortnight and to commit themselves to the program for a minimum of 12 months.

Clare coordinates the FFOP program in 10 nursing homes throughout the Caulfield municipality.

"The idea people have about nursing homes is that it's where people go to die. This certainly is not the case. They are places where elderly people reside and their needs are provided for," said Clare.

St Michael's Nursing Home run a number of activities for its residents, including monthly bus trips to places such as Sorento, Puffing Billy, Williamstown, Warrandyte and Warragul. Their next big outing is down to the Yarra River. Raquel, other FFOP volunteers and relatives are invited to go along.

If you are interested in becoming a FFOP volunteer, contact Clare on 583 7383 or the MS Society on 824 1761.

Free accountancy advisory service

THE Caulfield Citizens' Advice Bureau has commenced its free Accountancy Advisory Service for 1993.

The service is provided at the CAB by Certified Practising Accountants (CPAs) who volunteer their time for evening counselling sessions.

Laurel Thompson, coordinator Caulfield CAB, said that the service is designed to help people manage their accountancy problems.

"The aim is to advise people who have got their financial affairs into a mess on the steps they need to take to get out of it," said Ms Thompson.

"Often not knowing who to turn to for advice makes the problem appear even bigger than it really is," she said.

The Service will advise individuals on a range of crucial issues including superannuation, taxation, saving, investment, insolvency, personal debt management and the financial aspects of separation and divorce.

"The speed of change in the financial sector over the last few years has meant many people are confused and unsure of the best way to manage their accounts and the options open to them," said Ms Thompson.

"This service gives people the opportunity to seek specialised advice, both to clarify areas of confusion and to assist in the development of sound financial management techniques for the future."

"It has been operating at a number of CABs throughout Victoria for a year now and has proved to be a valuable community resource," she said.

Initially, 20 minute confidential consultations are arranged with CPAs upon appointment. The CPA will examine the problem, explain the options and advise each individual on the best course of action.

If a person requires more detailed accountancy advice, they are provided with a list of qualified accountants in the area or they may arrange to contact the participating CPA at his or her private practice.

Those people wishing to arrange a consultation, or wanting to know more information, contact the Caulfield CAB on 524 3200.

"As part of the course, students are required to complete two weeks of work observation. They are enthusiastically making enquiries in many different areas of the catering industry, both locally and in the City," he added.

The course has just passed its halfway mark and has eight weeks left. Daniel is happy with the way the course is going and is looking forward to positive outcomes.

Rotary visit to Ogaki

NINE students from a number of local schools have just returned from a 12 day Friendship Exchange tour of Ogaki, Japan.

The tour, organised by the Rotary Club of Caulfield-Rosstown and the City of Caulfield was for students who had been studying the Japanese language for at least one year and who were aged 15-16 years. These students were accompanied by Rotary Club president-elect Barry Smith, his wife Suzanne and Phillip Hosking, teacher of Japanese at St Michael's school.

On arrival in Ogaki, the tour was welcomed by the Deputy Mayor of Ogaki, Councillors, members of the Ogaki International Friendship Exchange Association and Rotary members.

Following this official welcoming, the group went to stay with individual host families. Some days of the tour involved visiting and participating in class activities at local schools and colleges.

Barry Smith said he felt the entire visit was a huge success.

"This type of tour gave our students the opportunity to learn not only about the Japanese language but how Japanese people live and their customs," said Mr Smith.

Barry Smith has already received letters from the student's parents expressing their thanks for a very successful tour.

NORTH WARD

Nicholas Gold

Three years ago, I was elected as a new face to direct life, enthusiasm, energy and direction into Council. Three years later, a change of direction has occurred and, while I cannot claim full credit, I am proud to have been a part of that change.

Change which has seen:

- rate increases kept down to their lowest levels for 25 years (and one of the lowest in Melbourne)

- Council debt almost halved (from $16m to $9m)
- active encouragement of resident input into Council decisions and structures (including annual ward meetings and Council question times).

The next three years needs to see us consolidating all the good that has already been done and looking ahead with a clear vision for the future.

For the next three years I want:

- full and genuine resident involvement in the decisions which affect them
- Council to retain its residential base; to honor its heritage and to keep what little parkland we have left
- to further reduce Council debt
- to improve, even further, our aged, family and health services.

I have the energy, enthusiasm and demonstrated ability to deliver. I ask for your support to continue to work on your behalf

I live at 2/272 Hawthorn Rd, Caulfield, phone 523 0253. I am 32 years old, I am currently the deputy mayor of Caulfield (elected to Council in 1990), I am president of the Friends of the Caulfield General Medical Centre and I am to be married in September 1993.

Ronald Segal

I have been a long term resident and ratepayer of the north ward. I am married with two teenage children. My major reason for joining the Council is to make a constructive contribution to the community that has served me.

As a solicitor having run a medium to small firm over 25 years, I am sympathetic to small business and hope my legal training and business experience will assist the decision making of the Council as at present there is no other councillor with legal training.

I will carefully scrutinize any proposed rate adjustments and will ensure that all monies are spent for the maximum benefit of our community. I strongly oppose the building of the recreation centre in these difficult times. Council should pay off its debts as a priority.

I believe in continued open and responsible local government supported by professional staff. Ensure the Australian flag in the Council Chambers is displayed at all times. Keep party politics out of Council.

Heavy traffic must be discouraged from using residential streets. I will ensure that the Caulfield bike plan is implemented.

We are entitled to a secure environment. The Neighbourhood Watch program must be responsibly supported and extended. We must protect our person and property and we should improve street lighting.

We should preserve the special character and environment of our residential streets and ensure the continual upgrading of our footpaths and roads.

Better care and services should be provided for the disadvantaged families, the aged and those retirees on fixed incomes. Home help should be made readily available to the elderly.

I seek your support and if elected I pledge to work conscientiously on your behalf.

Christopher Orgill

I have been a Caulfield resident for a number of years and have been involved in many community activities. It is my belief that local government is best positioned to deliver services which are most appreciated by the community.

Caulfield Council activities in the area of aged care are well developed, however, Council has much work to do in development of programs for the many young people who now live in Caulfield.

The Youth Council in Caulfield needs commitment and I would be contributing my expertise in this area. Accommodation for young people in crisis has not been addressed with the enthusiasm the community would expect.

In my experience the consultative process needs to be broadened and involve ordinary citizens of Caulfield, not just the vocal groups.

I believe that there is no room in local government for a party political approach. If elected, I will ensure that Council remains independent and represents interest of the community and not that of political parties.

I oppose the proposed amalgamation of the pool facilities as especially during difficult economic times Council should not commit funds to major capital works.

I look forward to the community support and pledge to serve with vigor.

WEST WARD

Peter Knight

It is high time that young people had a voice. Young people need a leader - a leader who can relate to and understand the youth of the nineties. A leader who can understand their problems. Who can help, with a little effort from everybody, provide a future for today's and tomorrow's youth? Young people need to coexist with all age groups. Everybody, whether they're young, old, black, white, Australian, foreign, politician, police, businessman, unionist, married, single, white collar worker, blue collar worker, must put away differences, put away prejudices and all together work as a team to help not just fight the recession, but to kill it, to protect our environment from further damage, to provide opportunities for as many people as possible, to protect children, to help make the City of Caulfield the Premier City for both the young and the not so young.

Work together as one - vote Peter Knight.

YOU MUST VOTE ON ELECTION DAY,
SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1993.

CANDIDATES

Heather Welsh

I have resided in the municipality for over 35 years, am married with two children and a part-time lecturer in Law at the Faculty of Law, Monash University (Clayton).

Currently the public officer for the Glen Huntly Neighbourhood House, I have been active in community matters, both as a participant and a voluntary advisor to special interest groups for many years.

As I am impeccably opposed to the politicization of Local Government by either party politics or vested interests, I have not taken any form of endorsement and am standing as an independent, offering full-time representation.

My objectives include support for the continuation of an open and accountable Council, innovative initiatives in community consultation, maintenance of prudent financial management, a fair share of the rate dollar for west ward, active preservation of Caulfield's unique heritage, trenchant resistance to detrimental multi-residential development and being responsive to the wishes of the residents and ratepayers in west ward particularly about the Koornang Park recreation and aquatic centre proposal and closure of the Recreation Centre in Maple Street.

It is also my position that rates not increase beyond the CPI as I am acutely aware that in west ward the recession has caused genuine hardship and suffering, particularly among the elderly.

Further I will work vigorously to ensure that the crisis in available child care, the adequate provision of family, youth and aged services and maintenance of neighbourhood parks be managed through balanced municipal programs.

SOUTH WARD

John Storey

I believe that south ward has become the "forgotten ward" and that residents deserve a better deal.

At 42, I am a management consultant, a professional member of the Australian Institute of Management and a qualified social worker. A longterm resident of South Caulfield with a strong record in working with residents to improve the quality of life in their community, I want to make services more accessible. I am not a single issue candidate.

Through my membership of the Caulfield Residents Association, the Committee of Management of Caulfield Skillshare, the Caulfield Advisory Committee of Disability, the Friends of the Caulfield General Medical Centre and the Bike Users Group, I am working to make Caulfield best reflect the needs and aspirations of all its residents.

South ward needs services which are responsive to the changing needs of our residents.

My priorities are to:

- see that full and proper consultation with residents is undertaken at all times
- ensure effective financial management and containment of rates
- maintain and improve existing community services

With the retirement of its sitting councillor, south ward now has the opportunity to support a resident's candidate who will work to ensure that resident's needs are not ignored.

Electing John Storey will give Council the new direction we need.

Danielle Hastings

Danielle Hastings is a true long time resident of the south ward, a professional business woman and mother of two young children.

She feels that the forthcoming council elections is an extremely important event where the community will have an opportunity to voice their concerns and involve themselves with their neighbourhood.

"The time has come to take a positive direction, a direction that will challenge the development at all cost mentality. The proposed State Government urban consolidation plan will have a marked impact on the unique nature of Caulfield and as such, Council must voice their concern."

Caulfield is attracting an increasingly younger population, making the provision of better recreational facilities, child minding care and community centres, parks and gardens critical for the future of our community.

At the same time we must understand that the times are tough and that the ratepayers can not be expected to bear the burden, Council must be seen to be prudent managers and provide services in the most efficient way possible.

Danielle firmly believes that Council must pride itself on a community consultation process. "My promise to the south ward ratepayers if elected is to be available to all residents to have their voice heard in Council."

I believe my experience as a business woman and relative youth in the issues that concern all residents of south ward will provide me with the energy and vigor to work towards the needs of all Caulfield.

Don Dunstan

Why am I standing for Council? Well, most people become councillors because they see a need exists. They see they can do something useful for the community.

In my case, I first joined Council in the late 70s when the Council was trying to pull down the Town Hall. I was able to have the new Council start renovations instead, with a glorious paint job. We were also to open up our meetings to the public, democracy at last!

During the late 80s, I joined Council again. It was a time of excessive development, with permits being granted for over 1000 new units in just five years. By the end of my term, I thought my job done. Things again were under control.

In the process I had managed to save the historic Elsternwick Post Office and become involved in the founding of Caulfield's University of the Third Age, to cater for people in retirement.

So again I departed from Council thinking my job was done. But again another challenge is ahead. Now we find the government trying to ram more units into Caulfield, more people, more motor cars. Under this policy (called VicCode 2) over-development will surely destroy the whole character of Caulfield.

Guess who is to pay for all the extra Council facilities needed? You, the ratepayer of course. But you don't want that. I don't want that.

As your new councillor, I will take this fight to preserve the character of Caulfield and the value of your home as far as the steps of Parliament if necessary, even to the Ministers office.

This fight for Caulfield's future is one we cannot afford to lose.

Award winning careers program launches into education system

Above: Heart Health Active Achiever's Peta Whitford.

FOR the third year running, the Heart Health Active Achievers will be visiting secondary school girls with a message about careers associated with sport and recreation.

Winner of a top award in the 1993 Prime Minister's Women and Sport Awards (the project also won a special commendation in 1992), Heart Health Active Achievers aims to increase the number of women involved in careers in sport and recreation, with the long term aim of increasing the status of women's sporting achievements.

A panel of role model speakers, known as Active Achievers, are currently visiting government and non-government schools in the Melbourne metropolitan area.

Some 54 schools and 3000 girls in years 10-12 will be exposed to the project.

The Active Achievers are all successful women with established careers in sport and recreation who pass on first hand knowledge of the types of career opportunities available to the girls.

They have achieved this success without having to be physically accomplished sports achievers. This is the message which the Heart Health Active Achievers projects seeks to emphasise.

Project coordinator, Peta Whitford, said "Along with highlighting career opportunities, we also talk about having a healthy lifestyle and how this relates to being involved in careers in sport and recreation. Hopefully, more women will enjoy rewarding careers in this dynamic industry and in the long term this should lead to increased participation by girls and women in sport."

Approximately 6000 students have been involved in the project so far, with two very successful campaigns in 1991 and 1992.

"We had a brilliant response to the project in 1991 and 1992 and the 1993 program was booked out within days," said Ms Whitford.

"We are finding that many girls are unaware of the opportunities available in sport and recreation (one of Australia's fastest growing industries) and we hope that our messages will show that girls can "think beyond" and realise that they don't need to be a performing star to really be successful in this field," Ms Whitford added.

The Heart Health Active Achievers project is once again proudly sponsored by Vic Health through the National Heart Foundation (NHF). NHF Health Promotions Coordinator, Patrice Higgins, said "The Active Achievers project has provided us with a unique opportunity to promote to young women our healthy lifestyle message of eating a healthy diet, enjoying regular exercise and being smoke free."

Sunsmart warning for winter holidays

THE Anti-Cancer Council's Sunsmart Campaign Manager, Craig Sinclair has issued a warning to snow skiers and holiday makers heading north that the sun at this time of year in the ski slopes and Queensland can be as harmful as it is on a typical Melbourne Summer day.

"Most people have had very limited exposure to the sun during the last couple of months and are unprepared for the higher UV levels that will burn them quickly. Research has linked sunburn with an increased risk of developing skin cancer," said Mr Sinclair.

UV levels are particularly harmful at the snow because snow reflects 90% of UV radiation. Thinner air at higher altitudes on the mountain tops also contributes to a greater risk of sunburn.

A study conducted by the Anti-Cancer Council of Victoria found that around one third of people who holiday in northern Queensland in winter were sunburnt. UV levels are currently around three times higher in northern Queensland than they are in Melbourne.

"Our research shows that most people know what to do to protect themselves in the middle of summer, but many people do not associate those same protection strategies with their mid-winter holiday," Mr Sinclair said.

School holidays are a high risk time for children to get sunburnt. A child's skin is more sensitive than an adult's and should be protected with clothing, sunglasses or goggles, a hat and a water-resistant broad-spectrum 15+ sunscreen.

Two out of three Australians develop skin cancer in their lifetime and research indicates that over exposure to the sun in childhood, increases the risk of skin cancer later in life.

Diabetes and the International Diabetes Institute, Caulfield

SPECIAL FEATURE

FIVE hundred thousand Australians have diabetes and half of these aren't aware of it.

Most of us know of someone who has diabetes, but few of us know that diabetes is one of the major causes of death in Australia.

motion for Non-Communicable Disease Control.

The Institute encourages a healthy and positive approach to life in the prevention and treatment of diabetes. It does this by promoting healthy eating and regular exercise (try to get 30 other locations throughout Victoria. These aim to ensure that the many improvements in diabetes education and care reach increasing numbers of people who have diabetes.

A patient support group, the Diabetes Support Association

What is diabetes?

Diabetes is a condition where the level of sugar in the blood is higher than it should be. It occurs through an inability to produce or respond to insulin - the hormone produced in the pancreas which enables cells to use sugar in the form of glucose - which is an essential fuel for the body.

There are two types of diabetes:

● Insulin dependent - having onset in children, young people and some older people. This form of diabetes is controlled through use of a life long program of insulin injections.

● Non-insulin dependent - (the most common type of diabetes) makes up 85% of all cases, mainly affecting people who are usually over 35 and overweight. Also referred to as adult-onset diabetes it increases with age - 12% of people over 65 have the condition. As well as having a hereditary component, adult-onset diabetes is related to lifestyle factors including diet and lack of exercise. It is controlled through diet and exercise and sometimes tablets or insulin injections.

The International Diabetes Institute

The International Diabetes Institute, 260 Kooyong Rd, Caulfield is a recognised leader in the study of diabetes and is classified as a World Health Organisation (WHO) Collaborating Centre for Diabetes and Health Pro-minutes exercise at least three times a week). Walking is an ideal form of exercise.

In its 17 year operation, staff at the Institute have implemented many new initiatives, including an insulin donation program to countries in urgent need and a self-monitoring of blood glucose program. The Institute employs many diabetes nurse educators, dieticians and health professionals who offer integrated diabetes and care services to nearly 5000 clients.

Practical research programs include the development of new drugs both for the treatment of diabetes itself and its complications. Other research programs include a major American Government funded grant, investigating the alarming rates of diabetes in the Asian-Pacific/Indian Ocean areas. The Institute has undertaken this project for over 17 years.

Its research work at Monash University into the early detection and ultimate prevention of insulin dependent diabetes has made a major advance in the development of a test that can predict this form of diabetes up to 10 years before actual symptoms. A significant part of this work is supported by donations.

The Institute has a major program of "educating the educators". Health care professional and general practitioner courses are run several times during the year, both at the Institute and at (DSA), operates from the Institute and produces a regular newsletter, guest lectures and also helps to raise funds for the Institute program. Information about the DSA can be obtained by writing to: DSA, P O Box 223, Caulfield South 3162.

The Institute runs major $2 ticket raffles with the next one due to be run later this year. Anyone wishing to purchase tickets or take a book to sell on the Institute's behalf, should contact the Institute on 523 0044.

The Institute employs over 55 staff and receives the majority of its funding from non-Government sources including donations and other fundraising activities. The Diabetes Op Shop at 798 Glen Huntly Rd also raises money for the Institute and help is always welcome, as are donations of items for sale.

For the past three years the Institute has received funding from the Vic Health Promotion Foundation to promote diabetes prevention messages at sport and art events. The theme, "Be Diabetes Wise - Healthy Food and Exercise", applies to adult-onset diabetes, which, as mentioned earlier, is the major form of diabetes.

strips continually to nations where people are dying because they cannot obtain insulin and other diabetes supplies needed to survive.

The Institute collects these items from retail pharmacies, hospital pharmacies and patients from around Australia. They are sorted, stored and dispatched from the Institute and then sent to adults and children desperately needing, particularly the insulin, to survive, in countries in Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe.

The program is a real winner according to the Institute's public relations manager and coordinator of the insulin and essential diabetes supplies donation program Mr Ron Raab, B.Ec. "I have met with some of the children who receive the insulin and I can testify to how it has changed the lives of teenagers, from ones of despair and imminent death to near normal teenage lives."

Shopping at the Institute

Run solely by volunteers, the Institute's "One Stop Shop", also located at 260 Kooyong Rd, Caulfield offers a range of healthy food, healthy lifestyle items, cookbooks and diabetes supplies for sale to diabetics.

In addition to the "One Stop Shop" and conveniently located across the corridor is the National Diabetic Supply Scheme agency (NDSS).

Government subsidised items available from the NDSS agency include: syringes, needles for insulin pens and urine and blood glucose monitoring strips. All other supplies not government subsidised such as: meters and finger pricking lancets are obtainable from the "One Stop Shop".

Syringes and test strips are far cheaper if purchased through the NDSS agency as opposed to your local chemist.

Have you or a member of your family got Diabetes and are not aware of it?

The Institute has developed the above questionnaire to assess whether people should have a formal blood test for diabetes.

Form figure fragment

An exhibition of paintings, drawings, sculpture, print and ceramics.

NATURE is the unique realm from which art feeds. Not only is it what is visible to the eye, but it also shows the inner images of the soul - the images on the back side of the eyes.

This is an appropriate statement with which to introduce a collaborative exhibition of six artists.

ists. Diverse mediums collectively draw on inspiration from the external world of nature and existence as well as the internal world of reason, feeling and imagination.

Each artist has developed a very personal manner of interpretation and expression.

However, the strength of imagery has produced a cohesive exhibition entitled Form Figure Fragment.

This show will feature works by Dee Waterhouse, Jill Symes, Carolyn Roberts, Chris Rowe, Lisa O'Keefe and Jennifer Fletcher. Works include paintings, drawings, sculpture, prints and ceramics.

This exhibition will run from August 14-29, 1993 at the Caulfield Arts Complex, cnr Glen Eira and Hawthorn Rds, Caulfield.

Great things to do after school

THE Caulfield Recreation Centre has three fantastic ideas for children to do after school.

KIDSTUFF is the amazing kids club that meets every Tuesday afternoon. Participants are involved in a number of exciting activities such as trampolining, archery, sports, games and special events. Each week is unique and guaranteed to be fun.

The Recreation Centre also hosts its own children's sporting club. This is an ideal activity for sports minded children who like to play a variety of sports rather than just one or two. Each week, participants enjoy exciting activities such as basketball, football, archery, orienteering, softball, cricket, gymnastics and much more. This sports club is not only educational but also lots of fun.

Children can also utilise the Centre's fantastic trampoline room on Fridays and Saturdays rolling up to 'Tramp Fun'. For only $3 you can bounce away for up to an hour. A supervisor is always present to offer assistance or coaching should either be required.

To find out more information about these or any other Caulfield Recreation Centre programs, contact Bruce, Caroline or Maria on 524 3288.
