

Meet Caulfield's new mayor

CR James Barrett is Caulfield's new Mayor.

Elected to represent the south ward in 1987, Cr Barrett is one of the longest serving councillors currently standing on Caulfield Council.

In accepting his mayorship at last week's statutory meeting, Cr Barrett said it was a great honour to be the Mayor of Caulfield - a City he has had a close association with since his childhood.

"Having spent most of my school holidays in Caulfield and then moving here following a career transfer in 1970, I have gained great admiration for the City and its citizens," said Cr Barrett.

"I am aware that my term as Mayor is going to be difficult and extremely demanding with the review of local government boundaries being the most important issue to hit local government in over 100 years, however, I will endeavour to do my best to ensure Caulfield gets the best possible outcome," he said.

A number of family members attended the statutory meeting to see Cr Barrett take the mayorship - one was his cousin, Geoffrey Youl - a Councillor with the Shire of Belfast. Cr Barrett's family, including Geoffrey Youl, have notched up 74 years of continual service to local government between them.

"The dedication that the rest of my family has given to local government has played an enormous part in my wish to become a councillor and now a Mayor," said Cr Barrett.

Recycling scheme expands

CAULFIELD Council is committed to providing recycling services. Two reliable contractors conduct residential kerbside collections as follows:

Weekly (same day as garbage collection using the plastic recycling bag)

- all glass containers
- all aluminium cans
- large plastic containers, one litre and over PET soft drink bottles, HDPE milk bottles and PVC drink bottles.

Monthly (according to calendar provided, must be stacked on naturestrip and weighed down)

- old newspapers and magazines
- cardboard containers flattened and kept separate from newspapers (not commercial quantities)

quantities)

Council's manager engineering services, Peter Onley announced today that additional materials have now been included in Council's recycling contract.

"Residents can now include the following new items in their weekly collection using the recycling bag," said Mr Onley.

- all steel (tin) cans used for foods
  - all liquid paperboard cartons
- Steel cans excluded are paint and other similar chemical containers. Liquid paperboard cartons generally contain milk or fruit juices and should be rinsed, flattened and folded for collection.

Caulfield Mayor, Cr James Barrett, said "We urge residents

to continue supporting Council's recycling services. However, we do also urge residents to ensure containment of the materials placed for collection to minimise litter generation by loose windblown materials," he said.

Recycling proposition for flats and units

An acknowledged inadequacy of the container collection is the use of the plastic recycling bag. These tend to wear out, blow away or move between households. Other solid box-type containers are still being investigated but for cost and other reasons have not yet been introduced at most councils.

The problem is more pro-

Caulfield...building a competitive Council

FOLLOWING sweeping reforms to the building permit system, Caulfield Council's building department must now compete with private enterprise when providing most building control services.

The approval of building permits and inspections previously dealt with by local councils exclusively, has now been replaced with the new Building Act 1993, which gives builders, architects, draftspeople, ratepayers and anyone who wants to do any building work, the freedom of obtaining permits from the private sector as well as Council.

Council's acting chief executive officer, Noel Wootten said "Our building staff (surveyors and inspectors), have each notched up over 20 years of outstanding service in the building industry. Caulfield clearly has the expertise and experience to compete with the private sector. The new system will mean Council's building department will function similarly to that of a private organisation."

"The legislation will result in a streamlined, efficient building permit process with greater cost savings to the building industry through reduced delays and bureaucratic red tape," said Mr Wootten.

Council's manager building, Geoff Milner, said "Under the new system Council has the ability to set its fee structure to recover costs and to compete in the open market for business."

"Council's building department staff are only too eager to assist and advise people with building permit documentation. Council can now offer the service of issuing a building permit anywhere in Victoria," said Mr Milner

Pool committee members needed

NOMINATIONS are now being sought from people interested in becoming a member of the Swimming Pool Advisory Committee to the Caulfield Memorial Pool in Moira Ave, Carnegie.

The object of this committee is to review the operation and management of the municipal pool and to make recommendations to the Council regarding budgetary or operational measures which will improve the standard of the facility and encourage greater attendances at the pool.

The committee does not have a direct role in management aspects of the pool.

The previous committee membership was terminated at the end of the 1993/94 season and members have now vacated their membership. The Council is therefore seeking nominations for the 1994/95 season.

Persons nominating must be residents of Caulfield. Meetings will be held three or four times a year.

Nominations in writing should be addressed to:

Mr Peter Onley
Manager Engineering
Services, P O Box 42
Caulfield South, 3162

and should reach Caulfield City Hall no later than Friday, September 2, 1994.

Letter to the editor

I SUPPORT the R.S.P.C.A. in banning the sale of Australian dogs to China. It's inhumane knowing that Australian animals are being sold and slaughtered overseas.

I sincerely hope my message inspires readers of Caulfield Contact and others to confront Sen. Bob Collins on this issue. Please stop this happening!

Engineering update

Parkside St footpath reconstruction

CAULFIELD Council has obtained quotations for the modernisation of the footpath and adjoining kerb and channel located on the west side of Parkside St, between Trevelyan St and Clarence St, Elsternwick.

Works are to include the excavation of the existing deteriorated concrete footpath and adjacent four-wide bluestone pitcher layback kerb and channel, and replaced with new concrete paving and modernised single bluestone kerb and channel. Appropriate asphalt reinstatement works will then provide a more practical footpath/road pavement for both pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

Works are due to commence on site by M & L Antolino Pty Ltd during August/September, 1994.

Public street lighting

COUNCIL receives numerous calls from residents for the repair of defective street lighting and the installation of additional lighting.

Council passes all requests for maintenance onto the SEC which is the relevant authority.

Residents are encouraged to phone the SEC directly, quoting the street and nearest house number so that time taken to effect repairs is minimal.

Council's street lighting policy is based on one 80watt mercury street light every second pole. Council conducts evening inspections when a request for additional lighting is received so an assessment of the existing lighting standard can be made and any circumstances which may effect the level of lighting ascertained.

Council carefully considers each request and changes are made to the existing lighting standard only where exceptional circumstances exist.

The street lighting is attached to the power supply poles located on one side of the road. This lighting is not installed as security lighting to private properties or vehicles parked in residential streets, but to provide an adequate level of illumination for pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

In most cases, the lighting falls within Council's policy for public street lighting, but in certain cases, there is a need to alter the standard and a request is sent to the SEC to either alter the existing bracket length or install an additional light at a cost to Council.

It has been noted that certain private properties have large trees planted adjacent to the street boundary fence and branches from these trees are obscuring the existing lighting. Council strongly urges these property owners to arrange for the pruning of these branches so that interference to the existing lighting standard is reduced.

Balaclava Junction footpath works

IN association with Council's ongoing program of shopping centre beautification works, the existing concrete footpath along Hawthorn Rd from Cromwell St to Halstead St will be replaced with brick paving to match the recent paving completed last year.

Incorporated in the footpath works will be the installation of street seats and the planting of street trees, together with the painting of existing street signs which will improve the general appearance of the shopping centre.

Deadline for the September 12 issue is August 24

Council farewells long-serving employees

GINO (Egiolio) Friguglietti and Bruno Iezzi have retired from Council's outdoor department after notching up over 27 years of dedicated service between them.

Gino has lived in Caulfield for over 17 years and started his employment with the Council in the nursery before moving to concreting eight years ago.

Like Bruno, Gino enjoyed working for the Council.

"Working under Graeme Drummond (supervisor of works and services) was good - he treated us as people, not just a number," said Gino. "If you did your job, there was never a problem. Everyone worked well together and I have made some great friends, which even though I have retired, I will still keep in touch with," he said.

Gino intends to spend his retirement years working around the house, travelling to Italy in the future and spending time with his wife Paula, who is enjoying having Gino around the house to keep her company.

Bruno will spend two years travelling overseas and visiting his home town which he hasn't seen for 43 years.

"I am really looking forward to going home and catching up with friends and family," said Bruno.

"Working for Caulfield Council has been good - I've made lots of friends who I intend to keep in touch with in the future," he said.

Caulfield makes rate payments easier

Never worry about being late with your rates again...

CAULFIELD Council is now able to offer ratepayers an opportunity to spread payments over a 10 month period at no extra cost.

This service is available when residents choose the direct debit method of payment.

Council has already issued about 13,000 notices offering the direct debit method of payment to residents with their annual rate instalment notice.

Council's acting chief executive officer, Noel Wootten said Council has already received a good response to direct debiting.

"We've had a number of calls from residents commending Council on this new convenient way of paying rates," said Mr Wootten. "It's Council's endeavour to improve customer service, and innovative ideas such as this are encouraged to ensure ratepayers receive the most efficient and cost effective services possible."

The direct debit method works as follows:

- Your rates will automatically be deducted from your account on the first working day of the month between December and September
- We can directly debit any Bank or Building Society account that you nominate
- Save the worry and inconvenience of late payment charges and let us do the work of paying the bills for you.

● If you want more information about this convenient form of direct debiting, please contact the Rates Office on 524 3215 or 524 3209.

Former mayor reflects a difficult year

FOLLOWING the appointment of Cr Barrett as the new mayor of Caulfield at last week's statutory meeting, it's farewell to outgoing mayor, Cr Nicholas Gold.

Cr Gold reflects on his mayoral term as difficult but extremely rewarding.

"Obviously the most notable memory I have of my term as Mayor of Caulfield is the issue of local government reform," said Cr Gold.

"Together with my colleagues and Council's senior officers, I have endeavoured to ensure that Caulfield continues to provide its community with high quality living standards both now and in the future," he said.

"The outcome of Caulfield's future is not likely to be known until October/November this year, however I feel confident that the choice made by the residents, which was unanimously supported by the Council, will be given careful consideration when planning the new City."

"Although I have stepped down as mayor, I am still a councillor and a resident of Caulfield, and I will continue to let the voice of the community be heard regarding the issue of reform, and all other important issues," said Cr Gold.

Highlights of Cr Gold's mayoral term include: the opening of the New Caulfield Library, launch of the Municipal Public Health Plan, implementation of the Main Street Program, opening of the extension to the Food Services Kitchen, playing an integral part in ensuring that VicCode 2 - the Government's planning regulations are not enforced upon Council to the extent originally sought by the State Government and the donation of $2500 to the Victorian Aids Council, Gay Men's Health Centre.

nounced at blocks of flats and units where regular provision of multiple bags is difficult and where the street frontage does not enable safe placement of bags for collection.

Council has a proposition for residents living in flats or units to enable better participation in recycling. This involves Council supplying a 200 litre metal drum for retention on the property to receive recyclables (not waste-paper) from residents in lieu of numerous plastic recycling bags. The drum would be painted, clean and clearly designated and would be emptied by the contractor after notification to do so. If your circumstances are as follows:

- you live in a block of flats or units and are interested in this proposition
  - yourself and most residents are keen to recycle
  - enough recyclables are generated on the property to fill the container at least monthly
  - there is a secure and unobtrusive location within the property for permanent drum storage which is accessible by hand trolley
  - all residents will exercise care in the sorting of materials for placement in the drum
- then please contact Council's engineering office on 524 3240 for further discussion and a site inspection.

A limited number of drums will be available initially to gauge resident response and the contractors ability to service the scheme.

Husband/wife life membership a first

CAULFIELD Central Sub-Branch RSL members Les and Gwen Unwin made history last month when president Les presented his wife Gwen, president of the ladies auxiliary, with a Life Membership.

Les was awarded a Life Membership three years ago and with Gwen receiving the same award, they're the first husband/wife, president and president combination to have been awarded life members.

Gwen has been associated with the ladies auxiliary for 22 years and president for the past five years.

The ladies auxiliary raises money for RSL welfare. In Gwen's five year presidency, almost 500 rugs have been crocheted by the members and distributed to nursing homes and the needy. A variety of other craft items are made by the members for fundraising.

Gwen said she felt very honoured to receive the life membership and particularly to have had it presented to her by her husband.

"It's a recognition of the work I've done with others," said Gwen. "I love the work I do, if I didn't, I wouldn't have done it for 22 years."

Les was also honoured. "We have one of the best ladies auxiliaries which not only help the sub-branch, but the community in general."

Les presented the award to Gwen at a special dinner held at the club.

New police/community committee

SPECIAL FEATURE

POLICE Community Consultative Committees (PCCC) have now been established in every police district within Victoria. These Committees are an important feature of the Victorian Anti-Crime Strategy and have been established to coordinate the resources of the community, government and non-government agencies to promote an environment less conducive to crime.

Caulfield's PCCC consists of members of the Caulfield and Elsternwick Police Stations, Cr Veronika Martens (also a member of the Police Municipal 'C' District Road Safety Liaison Committee), Council's acting chief executive officer, Noel Wootten, director human services, Barry Boyle and youth services officer, Lyn Nye, as well as representatives from Monash University, the Victorian Amateur Turf Club, Neighbourhood Watch and the Returned Services League.

Chairman of the Caulfield PCCC, Senior Sergeant, Alf Thomas, said "The Committee has been established to bring the community and the police closer together in order to make the community a safer place."

The newly formed Caulfield PCCC has already met on two occasions and has unanimously decided that its main aims are as follows:

- to identify local issues that relate to the Police and local community;
- to identify problems that effect this particular area;
- to try and establish programs or initiatives that will assist in dealing with the problem(s);
- establish and monitor crime prevention programs;
- inform the community what

Police resources/services are available to them;

- evaluate and assess any programs that the committee undertake; and
- put forward a united front in the effort to reducing crime and making Caulfield a safer place to live.

The Committee will also be involved in issues affecting the elderly and youth.

If anyone has any suggestions for the Caulfield PCCC, write to Senior Constable David Michelson, PCCC coordinator, Caulfield Police Station, 289 Hawthorn Rd, Caulfield South.

Local Rotary clubs aid Rwanda appeal

FOUR local Rotary Clubs, Caulfield-Rosstown, Caulfield, Chadstone-East Malvern and Ashburton, held a stall at Chadstone Shopping Centre last week to raise urgently needed funds for CARE Australia to implement relief work in grief-stricken Rwanda.

President of Caulfield-Rosstown Rotary Club, Barry Smith initiated the project and received overwhelming support from the other clubs.

Chadstone Shopping Centre management provided space and members of all four clubs organised volunteers from Monday morning to the following Saturday afternoon, collecting donations from the public.

"The public response was quite overwhelming," said Mr Smith. "Rotary is proud to have been able to facilitate this effort through its members donating their time. The money has been forwarded to CARE Australia in order to assist in their urgent efforts to relieve human suffering which is occurring on a unprecedented scale in Rwanda," he said.

The four clubs are considering repeating the exercise in the near future as funds are still needed to deal with both the short and long term effects of the crisis.

"The role of Rotary is to facilitate communal action and we applaud the generosity of the public and the cooperation of the Gandel Group in this humanitarian effort, which while very impressive, is only a drop in the bucket in the overall relief effort needed," Mr Smith said.

Music taught the 'logic' way

LOCAL music teacher, Phillip Dean, claims that a revolutionary music teaching method called Music Logic, has people understanding, reading and playing music up to 10 times faster than conventional methods.

Originally from Perth, Phillip studied music the conventional way for a number of years while a teenager, and has dabbled in music off and on since then.

"I never really enjoyed my lessons, even though I was considered a promising student," said Phillip. "I never got any real satisfaction from learning and could hardly play anything for my friends."

"So often, people struggle with their music lessons - they feel like they've failed, but it's the teaching system that has failed them," he said.

Phillip moved to Caulfield with his wife Carolyn and daughter Ellie in August last year to set up a Music Logic studio in this area. The studio is situated at 10 Brooklyn Avenue, Caulfield South.

Phillip learnt about John Barton, the Melbourne-born creator of Music Logic through John Barton's sister, Frances.

"John describes music lessons as the one blot on his childhood," says Phillip. "In his mid-30's, he decided to investigate why, as a child, he had such difficulty reading music, particularly the bass clef. What he discovered was an exact relationship between patterns in written music and the way that they occur on the keyboard."

"John has devised a very simple shape-based language which can be used to explain this relationship, and has dedicated the last 15 years to developing what is known as the Music Logic Method, originally called The Five C's," he said.

John Barton is now establishing the method in the U.S.A., where it is fast gaining recognition. In Australia it is being piloted in government institutions and schools, and there are 15 studios in Victoria and Western Australia.

"Using John Barton's unique learning strategies, adults and children are playing classical, blues, jazz and pop, improvising and composing, wherever their interest lie, in a very short period of time," said Phillip. "What's more, they're having loads of fun without hours of practice."

If you are interested in finding out more about Music Logic, call Phillip Dean on 523 9727.

You and your pets column Training your toddler to be 'dogwise'

Above: A happy relationship between child and dog.

WHILE the possibility of a child being bitten by a dog may not be totally eliminated, the chance may be reduced by remembering these few pointers.

- firstly, children under five should always be supervised by an adult when with a dog. Remember, it may not always be the dog's fault
- tail and ear pulling are definitely out
- always let a dog eat without disturbance
- encourage patting dogs gently on the body rather than the head
- avoid boisterous games around the dog when children are young

If a strange dog does come towards your child, teach the child to stand still and only slightly turn away. Do not stare the dog in the eyes or make sudden movements as this may be seen as a threat.

Try to encourage children to respect animals and gain confidence by having contact with them in a caring way.

Vegetarian diets - are they healthier?

THE answer to this is yes and no.

YES - if the diet is followed sensibly it can be lower in total fats, higher in fibre, generally more economical.

NO - if not carefully planned the diet can be inadequate in protein and energy, iron, vitamins and minerals.

What is a healthy vegetarian diet?

Vegetarian eating is not just a matter of excluding meats and fish from your diet. Like any other diet, a vegetarian diet requires careful planning to ensure that all essential vitamins, minerals and protein are provided.

Each day you need the following minimum quantities to make a nutritionally correct vegetarian diet:

Cereals/Grains: 4 serves daily; 1 serve = 1 slice of bread, 1 bowl of cereal, 1/2-1 cup cooked rice or pasta.

Pulses: (Beans, Peas and Lentils): 2 serves (175g) cooked or canned pulses daily or 2 serves (60g) nuts or 2 eggs, or any combination of the above.

Vegetables and Fruit: 4 serves daily.

Milk, Yoghurt and Cheese: 3 serves daily. 1 serve = 200ml milk, 30g cheese, 200g yoghurt.

Fats/Oils: 1 tablespoon (20g) daily. These quantities should be increased, depending on your age and activity level.

Types of vegetarians

VEGAN or strict vegetarians avoid all animal foods and eat only grains, vegetables, pulses, nuts and fruits. *This diet can be inadequate in Vitamin B12.

Lacto-ovo vegetarians

Consume dairy foods and eggs as well as plant foods. *This diet is easier to balance and is recommended for children, pregnant or breast feeding women.

For more information about vegetarian diets, contact the Dietitians at Caulfield Community Care Centre on Ph: 523 6666.

Concepts of the domestic

Above: Concentre, 1994, Julie Goodwin, oil on canvas, 84cm X 40cm.

CAULFIELD Arts Complex will hold an exhibition titled Concepts of the Domestic, by Julie Goodwin until August 25, 1994.

"My paintings represent visually pleasing concepts of everyday life. I see beauty in the natural disorder of the domestic environment, where the mundane transforms into the visually interesting. These ideas and images revolve around children and their impact on how we subconsciously arrange our surroundings for practical or aesthetic reasons.

I don't see the things that I paint as true reality but as an extension of it. My imagination and emotions seem to distort and create rhythms that subtly take control of the images." - Julie Goodwin.

Meet Caulfield's new mayor

CR James Barrett is Caulfield's new Mayor.

Elected to represent the south ward in 1987, Cr Barrett is one of the longest serving councillors currently standing on Caulfield Council.

In accepting his mayorship at last week's statutory meeting, Cr Barrett said it was a great honour to be the Mayor of Caulfield - a City he has had a close association with since his childhood.

"Having spent most of my school holidays in Caulfield and then moving here following a career transfer in 1970, I have gained great admiration for the City and its citizens," said Cr Barrett.

"I am aware that my term as Mayor is going to be difficult and extremely demanding with the review of local government boundaries being the most important issue to hit local government in over 100 years, however, I will endeavour to do my best to ensure Caulfield gets the best possible outcome," he said.

A number of family members attended the statutory meeting to see Cr Barrett take the mayorship - one was his cousin, Geoffrey Youl - a Councillor with the Shire of Belfast. Cr Barrett's family, including Geoffrey Youl, have notched up 74 years of continual service to local government between them.

"The dedication that the rest of my family has given to local government has played an enormous part in my wish to become a councillor and now a Mayor," said Cr Barrett.

Recycling scheme expands

CAULFIELD Council is committed to providing recycling services. Two reliable contractors conduct residential kerbside collections as follows:

Weekly (same day as garbage collection using the plastic recycling bag)

- all glass containers
- all aluminium cans
- large plastic containers, one litre and over PET soft drink bottles, HDPE milk bottles and PVC drink bottles.

Monthly (according to calendar provided, must be stacked on naturestrip and weighed down)

- old newspapers and magazines
- cardboard containers flattened and kept separate from newspapers (not commercial

quantities)

Council's manager engineering services, Peter Onley announced today that additional materials have now been included in Council's recycling contract.

"Residents can now include the following new items in their weekly collection using the recycling bag," said Mr Onley.

- all steel (tin) cans used for foods
  - all liquid paperboard cartons
- Steel cans excluded are paint and other similar chemical containers. Liquid paperboard cartons generally contain milk or fruit juices and should be rinsed, flattened and folded for collection.

Caulfield Mayor, Cr James Barrett, said "We urge residents

to continue supporting Council's recycling services. However, we do also urge residents to ensure containment of the materials placed for collection to minimise litter generation by loose windblown materials," he said.

Recycling proposition for flats and units

An acknowledged, inadequacy of the container collection is the use of the plastic recycling bag. These tend to wear out, blow away or move between households. Other solid box-type containers are still being investigated but for cost and other reasons have not yet been introduced at most councils.
