

After recovering from his accident Joe got a job building the first stack at the gasworks, and there he met with another mishap by falling off a plank. The experience of some men in that way is very remarkable indeed, but through it all Joe never lost his pluck.