

"It is a very nice feeling to know that you are responsible for making someone's life a bit easier."
Legatee Derithe Harrison

"I tell newly bereaved widows to get out and keep busy." Legatee Ramsey's advice to interested people is: "Take on Legacy work - help a widow and it will make you feel ten foot tall."

"When I gave up work I didn't know what to do with myself," admitted Legatee Stevens. "Through Legacy I have extended my circle of friends and I have gained confidence through being the Liaison Officer at our local Legacy Branch."

BECOME A LEGATEE

Members of Legacy who were helped in the past find great satisfaction in belonging to Legacy and giving something back

LEGACY

ARE YOU READY TO TAKE ON A NEW CHALLENGE AND BECOME A LEGATEE?

Legacy seeks men and women of integrity who feel motivated by Legacy's ideals and who are willing and able to make a personal effort to achieve them.

Many former Junior Legatees have fond memories of the Legatee who helped their family when they were young. Some of these former Junior Legatees have been inducted into Legacy and are held in high regard by the widows and Junior Legatees they help support today.

Today about 20% of the Legatees enrolled with Melbourne Legacy are former Junior Legatees who are proud to be giving something back to the organisation that helped form the person that they are today.

WHAT DOES A LEGATEE DO?

Legatees give their time, energy, talent and experience voluntarily to help respond to the needs of widows and dependent children of incapacitated and deceased veterans.

Legatees may also contribute to the work of one or more specialist and policy-development committees within Legacy.

During Legacy's Annual Badge Appeal Legatees are requested to assist with fundraising by selling Legacy badges in their local community.
