ARARAT PRODUCE MARKET.

A fair amount of trade has been done during the week in the produce market. Several sales of wheat have been made. Thirty bags changed hands at 3s 4d, bags in, and a large lot was bought in at 3s 3d, 4 bags returned. Flour has been somewhat in demand, but sales are still made at 4s 10s. At Horsham wheat is being sold at 3s 3d, and at Donald 3s 6d is still in vogue, the same figure prevailing at St. Arnaud. In this district oats remain somewhat inactive. One lot of 50 bags changed hands at 2s 6d per bushel. Bran is in strong demand, and the enquiry for barley for sowing for green feed is yet unaltered. Pears are also actively enquired for. Potatoes have come in freely from Warrnambool during the week, but remain at 1s 4d per ton. May is fairly supplied. Fresh butter has been brought in somewhat more freely, and is now obtainable at 1s 8d per pound. Eggs continue to be very scarce and readily fetch 1s 6d per dozen. We quote: Wheat, 3s 4d per bushel, bags in; oats, 2s 6d per bushel, bags in; pollard, 1s per bushel; bran, 10s per bushel; flour, 1s 10s per ton; Cape barley, 3s; English barley, none in; peas, 3s 2d; potatoes; Warrnambool, 1s 4d per ton; hay, shaves, 1s 10s per ton; tinned, 1s 10s per ton; straw, oat, 30s to 35s per ton; chaff, 4s per cwt; onions, 6s per cwt; butter, fresh, 1s 8d per lb; butter, tinned, 1s 2d per lb; tallow, 1s per lb; bacon, 10d per lb; cheese, 6d to 6 1/2d per lb; eggs, 1s 6d per dozen.

HIDES.—A fair supply, principally good-conditioned salted hides. There was a full muster of buyers present, and prices ruled about the same as last week.—Beavies, 3 1/2d to 3 3/4d per pound; light and medium sorts, 2 1/2d to 3d; kipps, 3d to 3 1/2d; calf, 3 1/2d to 4 1/2d.

GOLDSBROUGH'S MONTHLY WOOL REPORT.

Wool.—Transactions in this market during the past month have been on a very limited scale, 540 bales only having changed hands since the date of our last summary. With few exceptions the offerings were of indifferent character; nevertheless competition at the auctions was very spirited, and full prices were obtained for all sold, inferior to fair average greasy ranging from 5d to 9d per pound, and ordinary to good medium securities from 1 1/2d to 1 3/4d per pound. We learn by cablegram that the second series of colonial wool auctions closed firmly in London on the 22nd ult. Compared with the closing rates of the previous sales, secured merinos are reported from 2 1/2 to 5 per cent. higher, and superior lambs and crossbreds, both fine and coarse grades, 1d to 1 1/2d per pound better; while other descriptions, except inferior lambs, which have declined 5 to 10 per cent., remain without material change. The sales comprised 220,000 bales, of which 120,000 bales have been taken for the Continent, 1000 bales for America, and 25,000 bales pressed in and held over, leaving the balance of 90,000 bales for the home trade. The latest telegrams received report a good market, and the prospects of the trade are generally regarded as favorable. Our articles from the several districts continue of the most cheerful description. Feed and water are everywhere abundant, while stock is in excellent condition. GRAIN.—During the month our export trade in wheat to the United Kingdom has been on a limited scale. Our available surplus beyond home requirements is now estimated at about 80,000 tons, half of which is anticipated will be necessary to supply the demands of New South Wales and Queensland before the close of the season. Our news from the European markets does not warrant shippers at present entering on fresh engagements, but within the last few days, a better feeling, with slightly improved values, is reported from the London market. This, with the present low rates of freight, may induce speculative shippers, but until our farmers have completed their ploughing operations, no large parcels of wheat are available at present market quotations. Deliveries of wheat from the country are now on a very limited scale, and nearly all the large parcels available in store have been purchased for local use within the last few days at our quotations. As our home supplies are now heavily stocked, a further improvement in the London market would likely lead to a sharp rise locally. Wheat.—Our present ruling rates are 3s 1 1/2d for all good shipping parcels. Our market closes with holders firm, asking 4s. Oats have come forward in large quantities from New Zealand, causing a more moderate falling prices quotations ruling from 2s 6d to 2s 8d for inferior to medium, up to 2s 10d for stout and milling descriptions. Barley.—A large business has been done in this grain, maltsters purchasing every good sample fit for malting up to 5s 6d; inferior and food descriptions, from 3s to 3s 3d. Maize has ruled from 4s 6d to 4s 9d; peas, 5s 6d; and bean, 10d to 11d per bushel.

THE Riponshire Advocate.

Published every Saturday Morning.

SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1887.

DURING the next session of the Victorian Parliament, it is not unlikely that the attempt will be made to bring about some kind of educational reform which will meet with more general approval and support than does the Education Act at present in force. No one doubts that reform of some description is urgent, and every day brings forward some new phase antagonistic either to the Act itself or the working of it. The determination which seems to characterise the movements of the Bible-in-State-Schools League, is, however, in some respects, aiming beyond what is actually necessary to meet the requirements of all parties concerned, and in the warmth of advocacy statements are made which appear to an ordinary intellectual being devoid of sound sense and fair reason. The League itself does not appear to observe that its bigotry on behalf of a single desirable object gives rise to a cool and persistent opposition, which undoubtedly will eventuate in upsetting all their plans, and the end of their aims will be as far from being attained when they have reached a certain point, as it was when their advocacy for the introduction of the Bible in State Schools was first commenced. It is urged by many that since the Education Act has been in force larrikinism has grown gigantically, that youthful perpetrators of crime have increased alarmingly, and that the control by parents of their offspring has been reduced to a minimum. It is not so difficult to form a connection of the one with the other, and there are salient reasons that can be adduced to substantiate this charge against the machinery working the Act upon this point alone; but if the matter were thoroughly sifted it would be found that the chief fault does not rest with the Education Act, and therefore it is neither right nor just to lay solely to the charge of the Government that for which they are not primarily responsible. But, having taken into their hands the intellectual (?) training of the young, are they not also responsible for the instillation, or rather the non-instillation of genuine moral precepts and principles into the minds of the children? In a free country like this it is absurd to imagine that there is no more than one mind upon religion. It is not to be expected that all can agree. But upon those topics which affect our universal morality there cannot be two honestly diverse opinions. This appears to be the chief ground for the organisation of the Bible in State Schools League to work upon. It is worthy of consideration, and the first step in affecting an educational reform should be taken in this direction in an undisguised manner. Let the League seek first of all and solely the imparting of morality to the young, and they will be successful. Then having agreed upon this they can, step by step, obtain all that they desire. Immorality undermines the soundest Christian teaching; and the majority of our readers will re-echo the sentiments expressed by the good old Dean Macartyne when he says that "he would rather see the children existing in intense intellectual apathy than that they should become imbued with a feeling of disregard for morality."

There is, however, no occasion to overlook the fact that the intellectual faculties are not to be ignored in pursuit of a moral education for children. Both moral and intellectual training should go hand in hand. Instead of this we have neither the one nor the other under the working of the present Act. And how can there be, while there exists one of the most obnoxious provisions ever inserted in an Act of Parliament, to which even the teachers themselves strenuously object. Only last Saturday a deputation from the Teachers' Union waited upon the Minister of Education urging the abolition of "payment by results," as it was found to be injurious to the best working of the Act. The reply received was to the effect that it was not intended to alter that provision. Upon what grounds is the refusal based? Is the Minister in a position to know better than those who assist to work the Education Act? He does not surely know that "payment by results" affords to those who are dishonestly inclined, a chance to perpetrate a swindle. The teacher suffers if he does not obtain a good percentage of "passes" at the examinations, and is it right for the Government to tempt a small-salaried officer? But there is another side to the question. Do the children suffer? Is cramming resorted to at the approach of examinations? In some of our State schools it is well-known that children are terribly backward for their ages, yet somehow or other they obtain their certificates of competency. There are casual instances where children who are dull beyond the average, have been sent home with the information that "they must not return until after the examination," because they will spoil the percentage; or it is reported that "some fever is in the locality of their parents' residence, and it is unwise that they should return—at any rate before the examination," and many other such like excuses are made. None of these schemes are perhaps known to the Minister or his department; but for all that, there is nothing to hinder a teacher from practising his deceit but his own conscience. It is not, however, to expose the scheming that we write this; but that a remedy might be found which will not interfere with the progress of the children in our State schools.

Those farmers who are in need of monetary assistance to enable to surmount temporary difficulties, are requested to address Mr. Crook and Co.'s advertisement elsewhere.

The Shire Council of Ripon meets on Thursday next, when tenders will be received for various works advertised elsewhere.

Since last issue we have received the following publications:—"Protection in Victoria," by the Editor in New South Wales," being a reprint of some well-written articles which have appeared in "The Age"; "The Australian Journal" for May; and "Punch" for this week. Copies of either of the latter may be obtained from Mr. Hemmingsen, local agent.

We would notify our readers that Mr. W. L. Nickols holds a sale of furniture, land and a cottage, at his mart, Neil street, this afternoon.

The designs for the new stationmaster's residence at Beaufort, for which tenders must be by Monday, when the very handsome structure will be erected, is, however, the original intention of the Government has been altered, and the decision to erect a weatherboard building in lieu of brick one, will prove far more satisfactory. The site fixed for the residence is a little to the east of the present station, and is not to be attached. It will contain five rooms, a kitchen, scullery, and bath room. The two largest rooms are on the first floor of the building, respectively, 13ft 6in by 12ft and 13ft by 12ft, and there is a wide passage provided for. The building will not be upon a stone foundation, but will rest upon block piles, and will have a very imposing front, facing Pratt street. The present stationmaster's residence will be altered so as to provide the long-needed additional conveniences of a railway station, which have been so often agitated for.

Vaccines having occurred through the retirement of two officers of the 5th Detachment of the Victoria Militia, it will be necessary to fill them. It is rumored that Lieutenant Geo. A. Eddy has been promoted to the post of captain, and that he will be appointed to one of the vacant positions.

The Melbourne correspondent of the "Ararat Advertiser" writes:—"The spectacle of Mr. Deakin shaking the British lion's beard is a thrilling one, and I confess I would have given much to have witnessed the expression on the faces of the spectators with the life of a great nation, when the young Australian—the first specimen of the native-born that they had ever seen in such a high and representative position—bluntly told them that "a new race was springing up in Australia who would not allow the interests of a growing nation to suffer with impunity. Listening to the enthusiastic young native, so encouraged by a fiery speech from his whilom leader, who, though Chelsea born, has an Australian heart, the Tory Ministers must have been conjectured, 'What will these dare-devils do when they are a few years older and have two or three millions more of population at their backs?' The event has, in truth, a historical significance, for it is the first step in connection between Australia and another country, and will be noted by historians and by statesmen of foreign powers. The first was given when the men of Melbourne marched to Liardot's beach and defied the representatives of the mother country to land a single convict on our untamed shores; and the second is the reluctant step in the face of a great nation, when the young countries springing up in the southern land; will they grow nearer and nearer to the mother as they grow in stature, and twine their arms around her and lay their heads upon her breast, at one with her policy, and only anxious to show to the world the high spirit of their youth, but ever like the electrified pit balls, prone to fly off into space, and always apt to break away, as the American colonies did, whenever their purposes or desires are crossed or ignored. None of us can say yet. But certain it is that the Imperial Government is not disposed to modify its policy in the least according to the wishes and aspirations of Australia, and that the cause of Imperial Federation has not been advanced but rather retarded by the 'scene' at the Conference.

Tenders will be received to-day for extension to the "Riponshire Advocate" printing office.

Tenders will be received by the Railway Department until Monday next for the erection of a stationmaster's residence at Beaufort.

As showing further evidence of the advantages of irrigation, two excellent pears were exhibited in the town on Thursday last, each measuring 13 inches in circumference, and weighing a trifle over 1lb 5oz, or both together turning the scale at 2lbs 10oz. The fruit is a specimen of winter pear of the description known as "Easter Beurre," and these two are as sound as possible. Mr. H. P. Hemmingsen has reason to be proud of his fruit growing. The tree was grafted only 5 or 6 years ago by Mr. Phillips, of Beaufort, and it is a remarkable fact that for 13 years previously not a pear was produced from it. Now, there are two varieties of pears that are produced from the same tree, but of the specimen named the average weight of the pears goes over three-quarters of a pound. Any of our readers who are interested in the fruit growing may inspect the pears under notice at this office.

On Monday evening last information was given to the Beaufort police that sometime during that day the tents, owned by two players working on the line near the embankment, three miles distant from Beaufort, had been entered, and a robbery committed therefrom. It appears that Hamilton and Scullen, the players referred to, left their tents as usual on Monday morning, and did not return until after 5 o'clock p.m. On their way to work Hamilton mentioned that he had forgotten his purse, and would have turned back to get it had not Scullen said, "Oh, it will be all right; I never carry mine with me." On returning they noticed that both tents were torn open and ebbey footprints were traceable to and from the interior of the tents, and that several things inside Hamilton's tent were turned topsy-turvy. A search was then made for the purse and other articles of value that had been left in the tent, but it was found that all had gone. A similar search was made in Scullen's tent, but only a purse which was kept in a trunk, had been taken. The police instantly took steps to trace the robber, and were to be seen in the extent successful. The footprints were traced across the railway line, and it appeared that the thief, whoever he may be, has the habit of dragging one foot along the ground as he walks. The tracks were traced some distance in the direction of Beaufort, and subsequently it was ascertained that a swagman, who limped, and walked as suspected, had changed a sovereign at an hotel here shortly before the departure of the down train at mid-day. Having therefore got a good start, he is, he is the man, is for the time being at any rate, safe. Mr. Hamilton lost four sovereigns, some silver and valuables to the extent of £2, but Mr. Scullen has suffered lightly in losing only a few shillings.

A great many neuritic diseases, when aggravated, become spasmodic, and it is in this particular stage or type of the disease that the great mollifier known as Wolff's Schnapps asserts its supremacy. It soothes the nerves by its gently diffusive power, allays the cause by its quieting effects, and tones the system, strengthens the organs, so as to perfect functional action.

The fortnightly meeting of the Beaufort A.N.A. was held on Tuesday evening, the president (Mr. G. A. Eddy) in the chair; seventeen members were present. Two new benefit members—Messrs. Yensch and Coy—were elected, and three candidates for membership proposed. It was urged that members should endeavor to bring their names up for second and third introduction at next meeting. The entertainment committee reported progress, and the affair proposed to be a great success. Considerable discussion took place with reference to framing a bye-law dealing with half benefits to members, and finally notice of motion was given for next meeting that a bye-law be framed in accordance with rule 23. The amount of £2 10s 6d was received as contributions, and a sum of 10s was passed for petty cash to the secretary. The business on the syllabus was then taken in hand, and Mr. Prosser read his paper on "Tanks and Barrels." There was nothing in the paper to induce spirited criticism, and although members generally failed to appreciate the applications, they freely acknowledged that the paper contained some good suggestions for the improvement of character and usefulness. A vote of thanks was accorded the writer. Next evening will be devoted to "Prepared readings and recitations," and it is desired to be understood that the public are a liberty to attend these meetings if they choose.

Arrangements for the Beaufort "Jubilee Celebration" proceed with satisfaction. The Executive of the Mechanics' Building Committee met on Thursday evening, the meeting being held at the residence of Mr. A. Andrews, president. Communications were received—from the Girls' Friendly Society, promising their assistance, as requested, in getting up a bazaar and fancy fair to be held in the early part of the month of September; from the various friendly societies, the fire-brigade, and the fire and drum band, promising to help in making the proposed torchlight procession an effective and imposing one. It was resolved that, as the fire brigades were the better posted in the arrangement of these sort of things, they should be asked to take the initiative and request the societies to appoint delegates to meet delegates from the brigade and form a procession committee, in whose hands the affair will be entirely left.

J. McKelch, at the request of the Executive, submitted a programme of amusements, which included tugs of war, bicycle racing, pedestrian events and a football match. For the latter, Mr. McKelch said that the local club would proceed to Stawell on the 24th instant, and it was probable that the return match would be arranged to take place here on June 21st. The programme was accepted, the gentlemen presenting it kindly consented to form a committee to carry it out. All the events will be post entry, and an opinion was expressed that this would be an inducement to local athletes. The Executive have now enlisted the services of all bodies who can afford them practical assistance, and each having its separate duty pointed out to it, nothing except unfavorable weather, should prevent this being one of the most successful affairs ever carried out in Beaufort. The Collectors of subscriptions and donations will commence their canvass immediately, and it is believed that the general public will heartily respond to the appeal thus made to them to assist in providing a Jubilee Public Hall in connection with our Mechanics' Institute.

Those farmers who are in need of monetary assistance to enable to surmount temporary difficulties, are requested to address Mr. Crook and Co.'s advertisement elsewhere.

Listening to the enthusiastic young native, so encouraged by a fiery speech from his whilom leader, who, though Chelsea born, has an Australian heart, the Tory Ministers must have been conjectured, 'What will these dare-devils do when they are a few years older and have two or three millions more of population at their backs?' The event has, in truth, a historical significance, for it is the first step in connection between Australia and another country, and will be noted by historians and by statesmen of foreign powers. The first was given when the men of Melbourne marched to Liardot's beach and defied the representatives of the mother country to land a single convict on our untamed shores; and the second is the reluctant step in the face of a great nation, when the young countries springing up in the southern land; will they grow nearer and nearer to the mother as they grow in stature, and twine their arms around her and lay their heads upon her breast, at one with her policy, and only anxious to show to the world the high spirit of their youth, but ever like the electrified pit balls, prone to fly off into space, and always apt to break away, as the American colonies did, whenever their purposes or desires are crossed or ignored. None of us can say yet. But certain it is that the Imperial Government is not disposed to modify its policy in the least according to the wishes and aspirations of Australia, and that the cause of Imperial Federation has not been advanced but rather retarded by the 'scene' at the Conference.

The Melbourne correspondent of the "Ararat Advertiser" writes:—"The spectacle of Mr. Deakin shaking the British lion's beard is a thrilling one, and I confess I would have given much to have witnessed the expression on the faces of the spectators with the life of a great nation, when the young Australian—the first specimen of the native-born that they had ever seen in such a high and representative position—bluntly told them that "a new race was springing up in Australia who would not allow the interests of a growing nation to suffer with impunity. EXERCISE FOR GIRLS.

At the twelfth half-yearly meeting of the Australian Health Society held in Melbourne on Wednesday, Mr. G. Tschow contributed a paper dealing with the above subject. He first insisted upon the necessity for suitable physical exercise for girls of all ages. The muscular strength of women was far below that of men, but the fact was that women had far too little physical exercise. In Victoria over 12,000 women and girls were engaged in occupations which, by the length of their hours, debilitated them from recruiting themselves for fresh work by outdoor exercise. In boarding schools, again, the only exercise generally was a formal walk for one hour. There were playgrounds in which hardly one of the girls played, and even tennis was neglected. As for gymnastics, the misfortune was that the subject was an extra, and the consequence was that the very girls who were most in need of it did not join at all. Dancing and swimming could hardly be included among the number of exercises. The one which was least suitable, viz., the monotonous walking, received too much attention, while the others were neglected. With regard to the remedy, he urged the reform of the dress of girls up to the age of 20. At least as long as they attended school they should wear clothing suited for active exercise. A regular system of exercises, both outdoor and indoor, should be taken up into curriculum of all the higher schools. Instruction in swimming should be given wherever accommodation could be found, and games among full-grown girls should be encouraged. There was no more useful labor, however, to which the members of the society could put themselves than the reform of girls' dress alone.

A Warrnambool correspondent of the "Colac Reformer" writes—Just imagine the splendid Farnham Survey lands being let at 6s per acre! That was the case in the year 1847, when the late Mr. William Miller leased 100 acres of the site of the Farnham estate from Mr. W. Rutledge ("the Terrible Billy") for a term of fourteen years. Old Miller tried to purchase the land at L15 per acre at the expiration of his term; but he could not get it at that price, and went and settled at the eastward. Shortly after this the system of letting the Farnham land for potato-growing began; a few years ago it ran up to L7 10s per acre for the season. It is confidently asserted now that the days of high-purchased potato land are numbered. And a good job too. There will be a better chance for the legitimate farmers then. The potato growers are, as a rule, laboring men, who lease the land simply as a matter of speculation. They get so much labor out of it for themselves, and expect the off chance of favorable crops and good prices to make a haul. In this they have been disappointed for a good many seasons, some of them being unable to cash up on the rent day. Perhaps this may lead to a reasonable price being given for land both for lease and purchase, or better still, the cultivation of potatoes by the legitimate farmer, who is less prone to loading his bags with soil, stones, rotten tubers, and similar uncommercial commodities.

ADVANCE, AUSTRALIA! ADVANCE

Thus writes the able correspondent in Melbourne of our contemporary, the "Austral Advertiser":—"To be personally complimented by the Premier would, less than twenty years ago, would have been esteemed a lift in life elevating the complimented one above 'the altitude of a shabbeen.'" Growing criticism and more democratic feelings have taught humanity to regard even the man who, by fortuitous chance, holds in the hollow of his hands the thunder of England with the same instinctive criticism as we should locally devote to the attitude of the president of a shire council. The honor is there, and the compliment we have to gunge by what it is worth. Yet it is something to learn from the inheritor of the fane of the Cecil's, the Premier of Great Britain, the throne-man of the Empress of India, that the vigor and vim of the antipodean delegates have fairly startled the politicians of Britain. It was a pleasant thing to learn that we had galvanized English crickets, that we could show the picked cricketer of the world how to watch despairingly the wake of our antipodean keel on the Thames, that we could defeat their crack pedestrians. But all these kind of exploits were the apothosis of muscle; it is better to learn that we can produce men whose brains can illuminate England and through it the world. The stir put into English political life by the still sitting Conference can, in its probable results, scarcely be overestimated. It is teaching the world that the negro and of freemen, who marched down to Lordet's Beach and warned the ships of their own country from polluting their shores with a single convict, have left to their inheritors and successors an heroic destiny. It is telling in thunderous accents, reverberating the world around, whenever the modern Ariel electricity can find its way, that a greater, quicker, more vigorous Britain is arising in the south, which will soon not be merely able to hold its own, but exhibits the racial conquering instinct, in the fact that it first provides for its own defence and then offers large subsidies to the mother land for aid in protecting its commerce. This is the spirit which animated the men who fought at Agincourt, at Malplaquet, in the defiles of the Pyrenees, on the blood-soaked plains of Belgium. Defence, not defence—but defence if necessary. The sons of England in America stood solemnly side by side, weak in numbers and almost leaderless, and signed the Declaration of Independence. The sons of England in Australia stand up boldly in the forum of the mother land and say—"though weak in numbers, we are inheritors of your strength and your fame, and if you faint by the way in preserving that fame we must remind you of it." It is such warm full-intellect life-blood as this, which, pouring from the heart-beats of the young into the more sluggish circulation of the older nature, makes men exclaim, as is reported by cable Lord Salisbury did of Alfred Deakin—"He is of the type of masters of nations; Australia is safe in such hands." Let these a native Australian whose hearts does not throb at these words? Is it not a wonderful thing that a young colony like this, so accomplished in athletics, so puissant at the Universities, can delegate as its representative politicians men of the calibre of Alfred Deakin, James Service, and Graham Berry, a trio who have proved the astonishment of the Conference, who are recognised as amongst the most powerful speakers in England. Throughout all the proceedings at the Conference, it is observable that Victoria had not been the wedge driven into the tree, but the hatchet, splitting it and compelling it to yield to successive vigorous blows; and it is not surprising that the easy going English politician should have been petrified—but only into a Galatea-like marble, soon to awaken—at the concentrated determination of the apostles from over the sea. The effect will be that English Ministers will know in the future what manner of men we are in these colonies, and consider ere they flout the designs we have set our hearts upon; they will realize that while we have as yet but the population of a petty state, our heart is the heart of an Empire. But what a picture does that spectacle of Alfred Deakin, crowned with courtesy by Queen and Peers, refusing, with simple dignity, the honor of knighthood, present to the ambition of an Australian native. Here is a boy, scarcely past his boyhood; an almost defenceless barrister, but a successful journalist, Chief Secretary of Victoria, its Premier to be; and yet on his words, as he speaks defiance in the Congress of his country, or addresses listening millions through the press at public entertainments, England, I might almost say Europe, is hanging. I feel myself almost carried away by enthusiasm in contemplation of such an incident in the career of a man and a nation. Let me condense my feelings into one sentence. Forty years ago Victoria was a nation of huts; forty years have passed and Melbourne is the fifth city of the British Empire; and its representative makes the grey-beards of England tremble with admiration, which induces them to concede and placate these rousing sons of the antipodes. Is there in all human history an event parallel to this?

Consumers of Wolfe's Schnapps especially those taking it medicinally, should purchase it only by the bottle, and thus ensure the genuine article, as there is a fraudulent imitation in the market. Large and small bottles are obtainable at every respectable hotel and Wine and Spirit Merchant's in the colony. The name of M. Mossand Co. is on the top label of the yellow wrapper.

TRIPLE MURDER IN PARIS.

An appalling crime was perpetrated on the night of 16th March at 17 Rue Montaigne, a street leading from the Rue du Faubourg St. Honoré to the Champs Elysees. Among the tenants of that house was a woman who sometimes called herself Madame Regnault, and at other times Madame Monty. Her domestic establishment was an excellent one. She had in her service a woman cook, who slept in the garret at the top of the house, and a femme de chambre, who, with her daughter, occupied a room in Madame Monty's apartment. At about eight o'clock in the morning the cook came down as usual to begin her day's work; but after unlocking the kitchen door could not get in, because the chain had not been taken down as it usually was, by the chamber maid's daughter. The cook, whose name is Toulouse, rang several times; but as no one stirred she went downstairs to make her morning purchases, and returned about an hour later. The chain still preventing her from entering the kitchen, she rang again; but the prolonged silence in the apartment alarmed the cook, who warned the Police Commissary, and he arrived at eleven o'clock, accompanied by a locksmith. On the door being forced open Madame Monty was found in her nightdress lying on the floor at the foot of the bed, as if she had been murdered as she was stepping out of it. There was a large gash on each side of the throat. The room was not in disorder, and there were no traces of a struggle. A small iron strong box placed close to the bed was not opened, but it was slightly stained with blood, as if the murderer had attempted to open it. No money was found by the police commissary either in the victim's pockets or in any of the drawers or cupboards of the apartments. When opened, the strong box was found to contain jewels estimated to be worth about £3000.

In the chambermaid's room the spectacle was perhaps even more terrible. It contained two beds, and each of them was occupied by a corpse. The woman had been killed by two blows of a chopper. Her skull had been split with one blow, and the artery on the left side of her throat severed with the second. Her daughter, a girl of twelve years of age, had been killed by one blow of the chopper, which nearly severed the head from the body. Madame Monty, who was about thirty years of age, it appears, was often accompanied home by strangers, by one of whom, it is conjectured the triple murder was perpetrated. At six o'clock in the morning the people living in the apartment under that of Madame Monty heard an unusual noise overhead. An inquiry is being made, but no clue has yet been obtained to identify the murderer.

THE BULLI DISASTER.

AN URGENT APPEAL ON BEHALF OF 50 WIDOWS & 150 ORPHANS.

AS the disaster that took place at the Bulli Colliery on the 23rd March last was the most appalling that has ever happened in Australia, it is to be hoped that a calamity so unparalleled in our colonial history, though occurring in New South Wales, will call forth a national response of sympathy for the widows and orphans deprived of their breadwinners by that terrible circumstance.

Of upwards of eighty men and youths in the mine when the fearful explosion took place, not one was left to tell the awful tale of their terrible death.

Most of the ill-fated men were married, and, therefore, leave sorrowing widows and many helpless children—numbering together about two hundred. And, painfully sad as it is to relate, that large total will be increased within the next few months by about thirty orphans yet unborn.

Regarding the straitened, as well as sad, circumstances in which these widows and orphans are placed, it need only be mentioned that at the time of the disaster work had been resumed at the colliery only a few weeks after a six months' strike, by which the miners lost all and gained nothing. And married men only having been re-employed after the strike, causes the number of widows and orphans to be greater in proportion to the lost than under ordinary circumstances would be the case.

In fact, the victims of the disaster were cut off under peculiarly distressing circumstances as well as a terrible manner, all being men either whose means had become exhausted during the strike or whose want of means and inability to obtain any other employment caused them to go to work in the colliery. These sad facts tell their own pitiful tale concerning the position of the widows and orphans, who as a body, it is pleasing here to state, are most respectable.

Altogether, considering the melancholy cause for the Bulli Relief Fund movement, and the large number of widows and orphans overtaken by such desolating ruin, the crushing effects of their position must be bitterly felt by them for many long years, unless assistance of a most generous character be extended to them. It is fervently to be hoped, therefore, that united and individual action for the raising of the said fund to a total amount somewhat equal to the magnitude of the requirements of the occasion will be taken most heartily and effectively all over the Australian colonies.

In considering the sad position of these fifty widows, let it be borne in mind that the earnings of these fifty dead husbands, at the low average of £2 per week, would amount to a total of £5200 a year, £15,600 for three years, £26,000 for five years, and £52,000 for ten years. All these earnings have been lost to them in a moment, and now they and their 150 orphan children are dependant upon the public for support.

Think of this, ye more fortunately situated men and women all over the Australian colonies, and of your kind sympathy and benevolence lend a liberal helping hand to these poor bereaved and distressed fellow creatures. You cannot do this, or return to them their lost ones, but, by contributing towards the Relief Fund, you will be acting as husbands to the widows and fathers to the fatherless by providing means of living for them. The need is great, but if all in these colonies, who have hearts to feel for others' woes, give towards the fund according to their means, the wants of those in need will be supplied to a very considerable extent.

And whatever sums may be contributed toward the Relief Fund should be forwarded with the least possible delay, as although the widows and orphans will be dependant upon the public for years to come, subscriptions in aid of their wants will be certain to cease after a comparatively brief period from the present.

It cannot be, however, that this appeal shall have been made in vain, or that it will be inadequately responded to, urged as it is, on the broad ground of our common humanity, for whom their dead husbands and fathers now plead, as it were, with the "silent eloquence of the grave."

The committee of which the gentleman whose name appears hereunto attached are treasurers was formed at Wollongong (the chief town of the district in which the disaster occurred) immediately after the terrible event.

Persons not subscribing towards this urgently required fund through any local committee in their own localities, or in any other way more desirable to themselves, can do so by addressing their kind contributions either to the central committee in Sydney, the branch committee at Bulli (eight miles from Wollongong), or to

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. THIS being the Fourth SALE in 8 years, we intend making this the premier inducement that has ever been held out to the public of Ballarat and District, by selling goods at such prices that will make an everlasting impression on all buyers. Our reputation for good and cheap stuff is well known, and our facilities for buying are second to none. The following are the reported yields from the mines at Waterloo for the past week:—Waterloo, 16oz; New Victoria, 65oz; New Victoria, No. 2 Tribute, 11oz; Saxon Consols, 30oz.

While regretting that the town is about to lose the excellent services of Mounted-constable Bourke, there is no one who will not congratulate that officer on his promotion to the charge of the Piggorett station.

John Thompson, a man about thirty years of age, was charged before Mr. A. Andrews, J.P., on Wednesday last, with misconducting himself in the presence of a number of children, on the cemetery road, behind the Beaufort four mills.

Various changes have been made by the Railway Commissioners during the week, and consequently Beaufort loses its much respected and obliging stationmaster, Mr. Cutten has been nearly three years in Beaufort, and he will be greatly missed. St. John's Church will suffer to no little degree by Mr. Cutten's departure.

Mr. McGrath, from Portland, is our new stationmaster. He comes to us with the character of an obliging gentleman, and very useful public man, and from a recent issue of the Portland paper we presume that Mr. McGrath will be an acquisition to the ranks of our vocal amateurs.

The rainfall from 1st May to yesterday, as registered in Beaufort, is 0.86 inch.

In discussing the proposal to reserve the heap of quartz tailings now used as a stoppage mound by the Beaufort Rifle Club, Mr. Thomas said, at the council table on Thursday, that there was no danger to apprehend by reserving the site for a rifle range.

The first issue of "The Warragul News," a new paper, printed and published by Mr. H. Barnes, formerly of Beaufort, has reached us.

The Shire Council of Ripon may reckon that they are extremely fortunate in having obtained an excellent portrait of Her Majesty the Queen. This is one of a comparatively few copies that were permitted to be taken of an oil-painting of the Queen, and was obtained by the Council mainly through the instrumentality of Mr. W. H. Green, M.L.C., to whom a vote of thanks was passed at the Council meeting on Thursday last.

SUDDEN DEATH AT RAGLAN.

A farmer named William Thompson, aged 69 years, who well known in Beaufort, died very suddenly at his residence at Raglan during the night preceding Sunday morning last.

The doctor believes that the young man of it temporarily, but in case that he has forgotten the circumstance, an advertisement in another column intimates that the owner knows the thief, and will be glad if he will return it promptly to save himself from ignominious exposure.

A long drive in cold weather not only sharpens the appetite of a man, but is congenial to beaux esprits. Mr. McKenzie appears to be a first-class subject for the black and white drizzle. The doctor believes that the young man of it temporarily, but in case that he has forgotten the circumstance, an advertisement in another column intimates that the owner knows the thief, and will be glad if he will return it promptly to save himself from ignominious exposure.

Two other specimens of peas have been shown to us. These weighed 2½ lbs or 1½ lbs each. They are, however, a lighter pear than those mentioned in our issue of last week, although one of them is half an inch larger in circumference, and the other exactly the same size as those grown by Mr. Henningsen.

The post and telegraph office at the Law Courts, Melbourne, was broken into yesterday morning, and £20 in money and stamps carried away.

We hope that the Government will give one of our local carpenters a job to repair the porch of the Beaufort Dispensary. It has been in a state for a long time, and unless something is done to it soon, an accident may be the result of anyone entering the porch at night.

Mr. Burgess exhibited his Dioramic Views in the Societies' Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, but unfortunately the weather interfered with the attendances. The entertainment was very instructive and interesting, and the series of views representing the creation was alone worth seeing.

All claims against the estate of William Thompson, farmer, of Raglan, deceased, must be sent in at once to be recognised. See advertisement.

FLORININE.—FOR THE TEETH AND BREATH.—A few drops of the liquid "Florinine" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, gives to the teeth a peculiar pearly whiteness, and is a delightful fragrant to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or bleached smoke. "The Fragrant Florinine" is composed in part of honey and sweet herbs, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest outlet discovery of the age. Price 2s. 6d., of all Chemists and Perfumers. Waterloo House, London 31st, Chicwick, February 17th, 1882. Messrs. White and Co., London. "Gentlemen.—It is with great pleasure that I send my testimony to the wonderful effects of Seigel's Syrup. For years I have been suffering from bilious attacks, which began with giddiness; then a mist would come before my eyes, so that I should not be able to recognise anyone or anything in the distance of a yard or two from my face. This would be followed by excessive trembling of my knees, so that I could not stand without support. After such a severe headache would occur, lasting three to six days. I have tried various remedies for these distressing symptoms, but until I tried Seigel's Syrup I had no relief. Since then I have had excellent health in every respect, and I never feel a headache coming on. I take one dose of the Syrup, which arrests it. Hoping that this testimonial may be the means of inducing others (who suffer as I used to) to try the Syrup, as I feel sure they will receive speedy benefit and ultimately be cured. I beg to remain, yours faithfully, "A. H. Horton."

LITTLE CHIPS.

Some little time ago a state school situated near a Sabbath day's journey from Beaufort, presided over by a good and wise man, held a distribution of prizes to the best behaved, most diligent, and most attentive of the children.

The prizes were distributed; the children were delighted; and, as soon as they were set free, they hastened home to their parents with their dear little faces beaming. "But, alas! in many cases their joy was short-lived. The mothers were indignant at the paltry prizes gained by their little darlings, so much so that with faces distorted by wrath, their hair pinned up in the approved fashion, bonnets indignantly fastened on, they marched the prizes back to the good and wise man, and manly flung them at his feet with bitter remarks about the abilities of their children being reckoned so low.

In a recent issue of the "Wimmera Star," I beheld, in large letters, the announcement "MOSES IS COMING!!!" "Look out!!!" Now, I've got an uncle named M. Ses. I haven't seen him for an age, and am extremely anxious as to whether this is he. When I last saw my uncle he was behind a counter in a pawn shop, "bushin' de dust off o' de clo'."

There's a pretty double "dumpty" that's pasted on a wall. Which gives rise to bitter argument, and language, gurgled rather tall. There is a friend of mine (who'll wear that black is white). And when 'er occasion offers, he'll never say I'm right.

I tackled him on Monday re the plural of a word. My spelling of it made him blabber, he said it was absurd. "T-A-B-L-E-A-U" spells "Tableaux" and "Vee-vong" said he; "to add an 's' is wrong."

"Vivants" said I, "means 'living,' the lexicon proves this." "Tableux" said he, "is plural, 'vivants' takes not an 's'." He stammered; he always is; I said "You are a fool."

I got my spelling from a lass who learnt French at a school. "It matters not to me," he said, "if fifty girls they may have learnt 'little French,' but give me the French spelling of their learning (they mustn't ask their ma's)." Write clearly to French sentences and ask them each to parse.

TRANSLATE.

"I saw two 'living' pictures," and "His living is not grand." Parse the two words 'living,' as they in each sentence stand. I hastened off, so confident that I should gain the day. But to my great astonishment, my heart filled with dismay.

My friend had slowly followed me; we met as I returned. He was extremely anxious to know what I had learned. But I could tell him nothing. "I never learned to parse," The lassie said. In consequence, I got some nasty "jars."

"Now, mine ogitized friend," he said, pulling me up straight, "I'll show you the difference, if you a moment wait. The verb 'to live' in Francais is 'v-i-v-e-r-e.' And participles present always end in 'a-n-t.' But, mind you, while I tell you this, I don't mean to infer."

That 'th' the Frenchman's language 'vivants' does not occur. But this I say—I'm positive it can't be plural be, Because the present participles end in 'a-n-t.' The rule says they never vary; that is (you remember?) In gender and in number. 'Vivants' you'll never see.

'Tableaux Vivants' is wrong; 'Tableaux Vivant' is right; And if you don't believe me, then look it up to-night. 'Vivants'—a present participle—a state of action gives. 'Vivants'—a verbal adjective—shows how many a man lives. Each in various uses—a certain thing denotes; I'll back my firm opinion for a couple of £5 notes."

RAILWAY ACCIDENT ON THE WINDSOR LINE.

Our readers are familiar by this time with all the painful details of another shocking accident on the Victorian railways—how an express passenger train on the Windsor line ran into the ordinary train. Less than a dozen, fortunately, though sadly enough to the two long trainful of people, have been killed, whilst one hundred and fifty are reported to be more or less than seriously injured. It has not yet transpired wherein blame for the catastrophe lies, but we are assured that the strictest investigation is to take place.

The statement of the young man who was in charge of the signal box at Pralran, that he had only been a fortnight in the service, does not indicate a fact; as stated, that there was no possibility of an accident under ordinary circumstances, and no doubt something will be brought to light at the inquiry which will point to an evil practice of placing novices in such responsible positions on lines where the traffic is so great.

From W. R. Nicol, complaining of an overcharge of L1 in rating list, giving particulars of property, and asking the reason why the assessment has been raised from 15s to L1 10s.—Left to the water committee.

From C. Wood, Mount Cole, complaining of road from Smith's Bridge to the main road from Raglan to the mount.—Referred to the engineer with instructions to do what he can.

From John Humphreys, on behalf of a number of ratepayers, asking that a further supply of fish may be provided for the reservoir and dams of the district.—Referred to north riding members.

From W. W. Graham, Saxon Consols Company, Waterloo, stating in reply to letter of secretary, that no sludge now runs over any road near the shaft of the mine.—Received.

From E. C. Earles, Skipton, calling attention to bad swamp at Baumungill road, near second gate from Strathman road.—Engineer to inquire and report.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

Mr. Jackson reported that the contracts generally are being proceeded with satisfactorily. Bradshaw and Cairns' work in the west riding is about finished, and Waskin's work is well advanced both in the north and west ridings. Madden work at Skipton is completed. Slater's contract at Morthcup is not finished yet, but it was very difficult to do the work satisfactorily till the rain came. The same remark applies to Sheehan's work on the Trawalla and Carnham road, and to Pimblett's at Shirley. Before last meeting of the Council contractor Pimblett had cut several lengths of drains at Mount Cole. He then left the work, and has not been back to it again. I submit that he should either complete the contract at once, or else relinquish it. I beg to recommend that a one-horse plough and scoop be provided for use in the east riding for the purpose of clearing out the side drains of the roads, and the water tables and for removing accumulations of earth along the edges of the metes, etc. I am quite convinced that the use of these tools would enable the surface men to go over a much greater length of road and keep it in much better order than they can do now.

MELBOURNE WEEKLY GRAIN REPORT.

The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company report under date Wednesday, May 11:—Since the date of our last week's report the continued improvement in the London market has induced a corresponding firmness locally, and an advance of nearly 2d per bushel on f.o.b. parcels is now quoted for lines of shipping wheat. The deliveries to store in Melbourne continue on a reduced scale, but some fair quantities have been sent direct to Sandridge and Williamstown to supply contracts entered into at an earlier date.

The cable messages from London, when reporting an advance, state that the market is very irregular, a result due, doubtless, to speculative movements. There seems, however, now, to be a fair prospect of better prices, and hence holders here, and more particularly our farming friends who have still their wheat in the country, should not lose the opportunity now afforded them for selling.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

By "THE UMPIRE"

The football season was opened in Beaufort on Saturday last, when a team from Skipton came to try conclusions with the local twenty. Great difficulty was experienced in getting a team together in Beaufort...

A team goes to Stawell on Tuesday next, Queen's Birthday, on account of the holiday. They will probably have a stronger team, which will give a better account of the strength of the club.

Consumers of Wolfe's Schnapps especially those taking it medicinally, should purchase it only by the bottle, and thus ensure the genuine article, as there is a fraudulent imitation in the market...

"D. T., thou art beside thyself; much tea-drinking hath made thee mad." This is the last bit of the "Telegraph's" delicious raving. Good Stories.

Rouff Fasha one of the Grand Viziers when the great Elchi was at Constantinople, did not take kindly to Mr. Allison, the eccentric secretary to the English Embassy.

Sketcher

How to Read Books.

"Concerning hobby horses there is no disputing," said the speaker. "Every one has his hobby horse, and every one publishes in the newspapers about the books that he reads."

Traveller.

The Hole of Death.—It is an awful sight to see a man drown, but with foresight and skill no man need drown. Fancy sea sickness in a boat on a sea into which it is so easy to plunge.

Health.

Coffee and its Effects.—New York has a doctor who has busied himself with the study of coffee, and has written a book on the subject.

Ladies' Column.

Remember," said a physician to his wife, as he was leaving home for a few days, "and do not let the children kiss any one."

Miscellaneous.

Brown Eyes.—Just the old, old story. Of light and shade: Love like the violet tender, Like it, may be to vary—May be to fade.

Humor.

They Had Travelled.—The following conversation took place between Miss Pagon and young Mr. Eyles at an evening party recently.

Mr. Francis Francis, the well known authority on fish, says an English party, was at one time much annoyed by the machinations of the Lea bargemen, and this he had defeated them.

But to the ordinary mind—to the minds of much more than three-fourths of mankind, in all ages—such Herculean tasks are impossible, whether they be collected or some book.

But how shall we read? is a question I see nowhere asked or answered, though it seems to me to be the main question.

Cuban Courtship.—One pities the Cuban young man who is in love. He cannot see her alone, and cannot come regularly to the house until a fair understanding as to his intentions is arrived at.

Sleeping Rooms.—It is to be regretted that paperings or carpetings should ever be used in the sleeping room. Alas, what evil is lurking in the area of the four square walls, which encompasses us!

The Care of China.—To season chinaware and glasses to sudden changes of temperature, they should be kept in cold water, which must be gradually brought to the boiling point, and then allowed to cool very slowly.

On the Farm.—Let the children earn money as soon as they can. If it is only a little—one egg for every dozen they find, pay for carrying the milk, low price per net for washing dishes, or bringing in the wood, or coal, or kindlings; so much for every towel they hem; or they may keep hens of their own, or a pig, or care for their own calves.

Once there was a man who went down from the mountains and cleaned out the Macon boys at poker. One rainy night the Atlanta man went down, and after supper was seated at the table.

Relish is the true stimulant to reading. Books that are read as a mere task, or because it is popular to be known to have read them, are read slowly, inattentively, irregularly, spasmodically, like the Bible, and are never read.

There are other respects in which the young man has a hard time. He must come every day to the office, and he must be ready to hold all other women in contempt and detestation.

How Long to Sleep.—The latest authority on this vexed question, Dr. Mañis, says that the proper amount of sleep for the adult is seven hours.

The Wife and Mother.—No class of men are more indebted to their wives for the success that comes to them, than the farmers. The wife and the mother who has the courage to go out with the husband or her choice and commence the struggle of life with him in the bush, or on a new farm, with but little capital except that boundless capital of head and heart, is worthy to stand by the side of the Spartan woman upon whom poets have exhausted the resources of their art.

Give Me Kisses.—Give me kisses, do not stay Counting in the night. All the coin your lips shall print Never can exhaust the mint.

Amusing Anecdotes.—Clerical errors are very amusing sometimes, but the following are amusing as well as the application of a paraphrase to "improve" the occasion of an amusing anecdote which we are reminded to have met recently the Rev. Mr. Sparked Kirkwall, had a child baptised.

It is recorded of an eminent Anglo-Indian barrister that, after having narrowly watched the demeanor of the occupants of the Treasury bench, he at a highly critical juncture of foreign politics, he muttered to himself, and to the extreme surprise of his next door neighbor in the gallery, "What a pity it is that the beggars wear boots and stockings!"

A Curious Case.—M. Lafonte, young, rich, and the happy husband of a pretty wife, when he had married adopted the wishes of his family, and came home alone one evening.

During the season at Trouville, a French lady, the wife of a well-known financier, was enjoying a literary conversation with a well-known journalist. She was expatiating on the numerous instances of the condemnation, in pitiless terms, the favorite writers of the day—men, she declared, who impudently destroyed every poetic sentiment in the human breast—when her artless daughter of eighteen, clad in white, entered the room, and whispered: "I have better not dance with Monsieur S. this evening, mamma. The latest quotations of the Boarse arrived while we were talking, and on reading them he turned deadly pale, and trembled."

Bald-Headness.—There is much to be said for the needless discussion about bald-headed people. Wash your head thoroughly once a week with a lather of soap and water, rise all the soap out, and rub the scalp lively until it is entirely dry.

On the Instalment Plan.—A down East clergyman has hit upon a doubtful improvement, which he calls the instalment plan.

On the Instalment Plan.—A down East clergyman has hit upon a doubtful improvement, which he calls the instalment plan.

A Tender-Hearted Brother.—A couple of enterprising men, engaged in the clothing business, are interviewed by a customer in search of a coat. The senior of the firm handles the new cutter, and soon finds a "first-class fit."

Charles Dickens used to relate an anecdote of the last moment of Fintleroy, the great banker, hanged for forgery in 1824. His elegant dinners had always been followed by some remarkable and charming curate, the source of which he kept a deep secret.

When asked why he had not told this story to the commissaire of police, the Judge d'Instruction, and the public prosecutor, M. Lafonte answered that had been enraged by the gossip of the neighbors, and did not think that as an innocent man he was his place to gratify their curiosity.

The Indian Girl.—The Indian girl is never "wild." No girl is more submissive to the rules of her race and tribe than the Indian girl who is not yet corrupted by the proximity of the white man.

Not Healthful.—A sleeping room should be furnished plainly. Adornment with bits of bric-a-brac and dainty odds and ends adds much to the beauty of the apartment, but the custom is not to be commended.

Removing Stains from Cotton or Linen Goods, Curtains, Etc.—Grease spots are better removed by soap; stains from oil, oil, or fat, by turpentine.

A New Device.—Mosaics of broken glass with putty surrounding each piece and imitating lead lines, is the newest device for windows. It requires time, and if we attempt to produce any design it also requires time and skill.

"Thought Clubs" are the latest wrinkle in the United States. The company sit round, scratch their heads and think how long the host is in setting up the refreshment.

THE WINDSOR ACCIDENT.

The inquest concerning the deaths of the persons who lost their lives in the railway accident at Windsor on the 11th inst. was continued on Wednesday and Thursday at the Athenaeum, before the city coroner, Dr. Youl.

HE TOOK THE PICTURE.

I heard a good story about a cabinet officer's experience with a foreign born artist who came to Washington last year for the purpose of painting portraits of distinguished people.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF VICTORIA.

The following description of now-fading landmarks in the early days of the colony of Victoria, will be found interesting to many of our readers. The article was copied nearly 25 years ago, from "The Yeoman," of September, 30, 1862.
