NOTICE.

THE Proprietor of the "Riponshire Advocate," in thanking his numerous patrons for past favors, respectfully solicits a renewal of support, and desires to state that increased attention will be given to all matters of local and general interest. As a record of news he will always endeavor to make his columns as comprehensive as possible. In all departments, and, therefore, will simultaneously appeal to the public for increased support.

He has resolved to reduce the subscription to the "Advocate" (with which is published a 14-column supplement containing well-selected reading matter) to 3s 6d per quarter, and trusts that this concession will be largely taken advantage of.

The Advertising Rates have also been considerably reduced, and advertisers will find it to their benefit to avail themselves of the columns of the "Riponshire Advocate," which is the only newspaper that is printed and published within the boundaries of the Shire. As the advocate of the interests and welfare of this district, it has a claim for a considerable amount of support, and has a greater scope for extended usefulness than any other journal or journal within a given radius of Beaufort.

Job Printing, plain and ornamental, of every description, is executed with neatness, accuracy and despatch, and on the most reasonable terms.

ARTHUR PARKER, Proprietor.

THE WHISPER IN THE PINE.

The whole of the pleasure seekers were thrown into a state of wildest consternation by the tragic occurrence that had just taken place. Those who were not in the fatal vehicle were even more excited than the passengers who had just been given such a fearfully rapid and involuntary journey. Strange to say, the two ladies had not fainted. They were made of stern stuff in those days, but they had received such a shock by the unexpected suddenness of the starting incident that they sat in the car partly stupefied, until the two clergymen went and helped them out.

Commissioner Hobson was standing at his wife's side, who had clasped the rescued Amy to her breast. The Civil Commandant who had nerves of steel, had called Constable Wilcox and given him instructions to remove both bodies to the chief gaol hospital. Doctor Everett had examined them and found life to be extinct, so that nothing could be done for the victims of Thompson's treachery.

These instructions did not occupy half a minute, and telling two of the guards who were present, the commandant started to ascend the hill along the tramway in search of Thompson and his companions. These worthies were met about half way up, descending, with an expression of the deepest sorrow on their rather brutal countenances. There was no hypocrisy about Whiffan's regretful face. In spite of the convict cunning which he had learned whilst serving his sentence, he really believed—so slightly had the plot been carried out—that the stumbling of Thompson was really an accident. All the same he knew that he was ruined in the eyes of the Commandant, who would never forgive him for what might have been a terrible tragedy, and he consequently felt a genuine—if selfish—sorrow for the mishap.

Thompson and his fellow conspirators Schmidt, Andrews and Roberts, tried to look as innocent as such crime-strept villains could, but they had grave doubts as to the ultimate result of their work. The fact that the Commandant had fired at them plainly showed that he suspected them of murder-intent, but how could it be proved? Even in Norfolk Island a man could not be hanged without some proof of guilt—even if the evidence was unbroken—and the oath taken by the convicts to kill the chief officer would, the four men felt sure, not be revealed by the confederates.

When the Commandant met the crest-fallen party coming down the hill, the convicts' mock look of sorrow suddenly changed into real glances of hate and fury, for their plot had unmistakably miscarried. There was their arch enemy coming towards them most evidently unharmed, and his stern countenances boded ill for them. How had he escaped? They could not understand it. Yet there he was, unharmed.

"Take these men to number twelve to six-teen cells at the new gaol, and chain them."

The pines, as has been mentioned, were of great size, some being from twelve to fifteen feet in diameter, and though they were found unutilized for ship's masts, the timber was excellent for many other purposes, and a number of the convicts were employed in procuring and preparing it. These men were supposed to be the better class of prisoners, but—as often appears in both animal and vegetable nature, where the most beautiful and fragrant flowers contain the most deadly poison, and bear of the greatest beauty and majesty of appearance are the fiercest and most dangerous to man—sometimes under a mild behavior the most brutal heart was concealed.

This was notably the case with an Irishman named Michael Lynch. He had been sentenced to life transportation for a brutal offence committed in Liverpool, but his demeanor since landing on the island some three years previously to the tramway incident, had been so exemplary that he had completely disarmed suspicion, and was allowed privileges granted to few of the prisoners.

That he must have possessed great cunning and address is indisputable, or he would not have been treated so well, for a "lifer" was regarded as being deprived of hope, and watched with the utmost vigilance. Six months before Dutton ran his heroic gauntlet, Lynch had been drafted amongst the pine cutters, where he had the opportunity of greater liberty than in the ordinary gangs.

It subsequently transpired that he used this freedom in a remarkable manner, and had it not been for the fact that matters were brought to a crisis four months after joining the cutters, one of the most terrible pages in the history of convict settlement would have to be recorded.

Lynch had, in fact, organized a fearful conspiracy right under the eyes of his keepers. A general uprising was to take place on a certain night, the officials were to be slain, and a transport boat that would be in the bay was to be seized. This would enable the mutineers to escape from the island and probably scatter in remote regions before the massacre was known. The chief conspirator had established a most ingenious code of signals. Almost every stroke of his axe carried some information to his confederates. The murder of the Commandant had been decided on a couple of days before the arrival of the vessel was expected, for this event would cause great confusion in the settlement, and though the homicides would of course be arrested, when the successful rising took place they would speedily be released by their confederates. It was afterwards admitted by the authorities that had it not been through a mere accident, this wide-spread conspiracy would in all human probability have been successful.

This accident was simply that Lynch, emboldened by the secret power he possessed, lost his temper one day in the woods, and in a fit of ungovernable rage violently assaulted a constable who had spoken most roughly and insultingly to him. The officer's comrades were called to his assistance when Lynch turned away and ran into the bush. One of the soldiers fired at him, but missed, and the fugitive made good his escape.

Though the small island—in no place more than seven miles across—was thoroughly scoured by search parties, not the least trace of Lynch could be found, and the authorities concluded that he had committed suicide by drowning. Six weeks after his escape, Thompson and his three confederates carried their plot out on the tram line, but as the reader knows were unsuccessful. These four men were chief lieutenants of Lynch, and

At Monte Carlo.

I enter from the dimness of the night Where holy silence breathes the lilies' breath.

And across the threshold to another world Rose-lit for mirth and beauty, crime and death.

I hear the muffled clink of yellow gold, I hear the croopier's automatic cry, Unaring if the red shall win or lose; Thousands of fortunes melt as years go by.

But heedless words that fall from his red lips Have been to many a heart its mortal blow, Forever changed the course of many a life, With fateful destiny of weal or woe.

Across the gild and glitter of the room, Across the surging human mass between, I see one face, a face I'd known before When life was filled with childhood's summer sheen.

Fades out the gas-glare from the crimson lamps, Silent the voice of croopier on mine ear, Unheard the muffled fall of shining gold; Each sense within me shrivels up in fear.

I see naught else but this man's slender face, Its ivory pallor and its tawny beard, And gleaming topaz eyes, that to my childish sense Like flames of fire, demonic, appeared.

Why has this man the power to take me back To scenes long changed, to years long fled away? And why should horror in my soul rise up And fears unknown to me thus many a day?

Then comes another place than this to me, A narrow window and a velvet chair, A transatlantic street-scene, and this man I know bending o'er me, speechless, sitting there.

Lover? Oh no, I was too young for that. 'Twas years ago, you know, that side the sea. He was the dentist back in Delaware Who pulled those "six-year molars" out for me.

A Highland Witch.

The belief in witches and witchcraft seems now to have died away in the Highlands. In the very remote districts occasionally we hear of isolated cases of people being bewitched, or of old women who possess the power of casting evil spells over their who dispel them, but they are very rare. It may not, however, be uninteresting to mention a circumstance which came under my own observation in Loch Broom in the year 1858.

We were living in a small farmhouse in the autumn of that year on the loch side, and an old woman who lived in a broken-down ruined cottage near us had the unwelcome reputation of being a witch. She was one of the most malicious, and most vindictive, with whom she quarrelled, and vowed she would revenge herself on her for some favoured insult. One day we were out by lanes of great consternation, and told that the old woman had bewitched the cows and they would give no milk. There was no possibility of procuring milk elsewhere, and as the difficulties of feeding a number of small children under these circumstances

The Mosquito Dining.

At an early age the mosquito acquires an exhaustive knowledge of the anatomy of man, displaying an intimacy with the spots where the cuticle is thinnest, which does credit to mosquito methods of tuition. When he finds his victim asleep he can exercise his trained instincts at leisure, and devote his attention to the ears, neck, or knuckles. If the opportunity of his wrist chance to be exposed, he shows great partiality for that tender locality; but he is not exacting. While you are awake, he exhibits the unobtrusive side of his character, and prefers to pasture on your ankles. To do this he must of course penetrate your sock; and here again you discover how thoroughly he has been prepared by education for his career. He doesn't waste time over worried; he has been taught that its thickness exceeds the length of his sharp proboscis, and he passes that fabric boldly by to browse upon ankles protected only by thin cotton or silk; they offer no obstacle worth mentioning, and he knows

In taste, the mosquito is dainty and discriminating. He despises the colored man, and turns up his proboscis at a tough sundried tramp. The mosquito's appetite is gigantic, for he is able to stomach, while he is feeding—on somebody else—and you marvel at his extraordinary elasticity and power of accommodation. Having waited until his victim's closed eyes betoken slumber, he ceases the sng he has been sng thoughtfully to himself, and drops, softly as a dose of abietic down, upon the spot of his choice. He folds his gauzy wings, unfurles his proboscis, strokes the creases out of it, gives it a flourish or two, and plunges it into the epidermis. At first his stands on all eight legs, absorbed in his repast; but presently, the first sharp edge of hunger dulls, he begins to show signs of enjoyment. Baring his hindmost pair of legs, he works them stiffly up and down, as though to aid by this pump-handle action the process of suction; his body, no thicker than a silken thread when he alighted, begins to take the eided shape, and the black and gray bands which adorn him show up distinctly. Suddenly he continues to increase in bulk uniformly from end to end; a pinky hue suffuses his whole being, and he seems to blish all over with delight. By-and-by the hindmost legs cease pumping, and resume their proper office; the distended body sips down as though the slender hanks could no longer support its weight. The mosquito has finished; in other words, he is as full as he can hold. He rolls up his proboscis, and the imaginative spectator hears his microscopical sigh of repulsion; he feels his now portly form all over with his legs, just to make sure he can't hold any more, spreads his wings, and sails heavily away.

A Few Droll Bulls.

There were some good newspaper bulls during the late session of the House of Commons. Mr. Donald Sullivan introduced to the House one from an Irish paper. It was in the form of an advertisement for a laborer and a boy, and concluded thus: "With gratitude for two goats; both Protestants."

An Irishman writing in the London Times on the late Baron Dowe, concluded his eulogium, "A great Irishman has passed away. God grant that many as great, and who shall as wisely love their country, may follow him."

A Dublin paper heard that "the health of Mr. Parnell has latterly taken a very serious turn, and that fears of his recovery are entertained by his friends." Several English papers quoted this without detecting the

The Tortures of Mistaken and Blighted Hopes.

When Hope's bright star has lured us on Toward joys we erst never dreamed of, 'Tis very hard to be hustled down And become the object of common scorn.

Though our own folly may be to blame For our most distressing position, Not one whit the less feel we the pain Of sorrow, regret and contrition.

Phil's Darling.

A Serio-Comic Sketch.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Philip Rushwood came down to Greyland, in the early spring-time, and hired two rooms of Aunt Betty Warren, and engaged board with her. Phil was an artist, and a good one. He was in his thirtieth year, but he did not look it. He was a bright-faced, cheery, fun-loving fellow, and would pass for a handsome man. His father had left him a moderate fortune; so his work was a matter of pleasure and satisfaction rather than of necessity.

He had hired the only two rooms Aunt Betty had to spare, one for a studio and reading room, and the other for a sleeping room. The old lady must keep one spare room—a nice one—for a spare room, in which to put a chance visitor; and herself and niece occupied the remainder of the dormitory of the small cottage.

Aunt Betty Warren was a maiden lady, just three-score years of age; as bright and smart as a cricket; and she was far from being a homely woman. In her youth she must have been pretty, though never burdened with brains; and some of the prettiest of her youth remained with her. Her heart was tender and impressionable. Since the full blooming of her womanhood she had fallen in love a dozen times, and had fancied people in love with her; but, alas, not one had remained loyal.

There was one other member of the family besides the servant. We speak of a niece. She was Lizzie Warren, child of a younger brother of Aunt Betty, and now an orphan. She was twenty years of age; a nice, graceful, golden-haired, blue-eyed girl, who, Phil declared off-hand, came nearer to his ideal of the goddess Electra than any other girl he had ever seen.

Lizzie taught the primary school in the village, and played the organ in church on Sundays; and ere long after the advent of Phil Rushwood she began to learn to paint.

Phil was a good musician, and possessed an excellent tenor voice. Naturally, he attended church every Sabbath, and he took his place in the choir, and he was, without question, the best singer there.

The love that grew and strengthened between Phil and Lizzie was deep, fervent and quiet, and very enjoyable. They did not talk of it, but they lived it, and each knew and felt the love of the other long before a word had been spoken. Phil, in his great-hearted, generous, outspoken way, made much of Aunt Betty. She was good to him; did everything for him she could do; and he really loved her. His mother had not been dead a great many years, and in some respects Aunt Betty seemed to fill her place. One day, in a funny mood, Phil called her his Old Darling. It pleased her immensely.

Humorous.

The Artful Ant.

By Oliver Herford.

Once on a time an artful Ant Resolved to give a ball, For tho' in stature she was short, She was not what you'd call A shy or bashful little Ant. (She was not shy at all.)

She sent her invitations through The forest far and wide, To all the Birds and Bees she knew, And many more beside. ("You never know what you can do," Said she, "until you've tried.")

Five-score acceptances came in Faster than she could read. Said she: "Dear me! I'd best begin To stir myself indeed!" (A pretty pickle she was in! With five-score guests to feed!)

The artful Ant sat up all night, A thinking o'er and o'er, How she could make her scanty store, Enough to feed five-score. (Between ourselves, I think she might Have thought of that before.)

She thought, and thought, and thought All night, And all the following day, Till suddenly she struck a bright Idea, which was—(but stay! Just what it was I am not quite At liberty to say.)

Enough, that when the festal day Came round, the Ant was seen To smile in a peculiar way. As if—(but you may glean From seeing tragic actors play The kind of smile I mean.)

From here and there and everywhere The happy creatures came, The Fish alone could not be there, And they were not to blame. ("They really could not stand the air," But thanked her just the same.)

The Lion, bowing very low, Said to the Ant: "I never Since Noah's Ark remember so Delightful an affair." (A pretty compliment, although He really wasn't there.)

They danced, and danced, and danced, And danced, and danced, and danced, It was a jolly sight. They pranced, and pranced, and pranced, and pranced, and pranced, Till it was nearly light. And then their thoughts to supper cheered To turn. (As well they might.)

Then said the Ant: "If only right That supper should begin, And if you will be so polite, Pray take each other in." (The emphasis was very slight, But rested on "Take in.")

They needed not a second call. They took the hint, Oh, yes. The largest guest "took in" the small. The small "took in" the next in size. (It was a great success.)

As for the rest—why spin out This narrative of woe? The Ant was not so shy at all.

The Riponshire Advocate

No. 833

BEAUFORT, SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1891.

PRICE FOURPENCE.

Business Notices.

NOTICE.

THE Proprietor of the "Riponshire Advocate," in thanking his numerous patrons for past favors, respectfully solicits increased attention will be given to all matters of local and general interest. As a record of news he will always endeavor to make his columns as comprehensive as possible. In all departments, in fact, he will aim at improvement, and, therefore, confidently appeals to the public for increased support.

He has resolved to reduce the subscription to the "Advocate" (with which is published a 14-column supplement containing well-selected reading matter) to 5s. 6d. per quarter, and 18s. 6d. per annum, in advance.

The Advertising Rates have also been considerably reduced, and advertisers will find it to their benefit to avail themselves of the columns of the "Riponshire Advocate," which is the only newspaper that is printed and published within the boundaries of the Shire. As the advocate of the interests and for the welfare of this district, it has a claim for a considerable amount of support, and has a greater scope for extended usefulness than any other journal or journal within a given radius of Beaufort.

Job Printing, plain and ornamental, of every description, is executed with neatness and accuracy and despatch, and on the most reasonable terms.

ARTHUR PARKER, Proprietor.

TO THE PUBLIC.

SOME patients suffering from nervous affections are afraid, from sheer ineffectuality and modesty to personally consult a medical man; other patients have not the self-possession and composure, when in the consulting room, accurately describe their symptoms, their habits of life, and the nature of the disease they suffer from.

Let such person (he or she) sit quietly down in the privacy of their own apartments, and with calm mind describe each symptom of their case, and a clear statement thus written, and laid before me, is far preferable in nervous diseases to personal consultation. Where, however, a disease is of a peculiar and exceptional character, a personal consultation may become necessary; but my success in correspondence is so great, that I can not be always at your service. I have treated during the last thirty-two years, not a single mistake has ever occurred, not a case has ever been made public—in fact, the very simplicity of my system of correspondence prevents publicity.

At the same time medicines are sent to my patients in such a form as to be ready detection.

How many thousands have I not brought up old?

How many have been enabled to enter into the marriage state through consulting me?

How many after marriage have privately consulted me and been blessed, and their married lives made fruitful and happy?

How many wasted ruined youths of both sexes have also been restored to health, and thanked their manhood for having consulted me by letter?

How many questions arise where the family physician is unable to unravel the case, and where, often, the patient flutters on, not daring to tell his family medical adviser the nature of his complaint, until consumption, wasting, or mental disease set in, and the sufferer goes to bed with a variable curable stage, and is left a hopeless wreck?

COMMERCIAL.

BALLARAT PRODUCE MARKET. Wheat, up to 4s 10d; oats, 2s 5d for stout; Danish, 2s 2d; Alsatian, 2s 2d; 2s 1d; peas, 2s 1d; barley, 2s 2d; hay, prime, 12s to 12s 6d; mangel, fair, 11s to 11s 6d; straw, up to 30s; flour, roller, L11 to L11 10s; stone, L10 to L10 10s; potatoes, L2 5s.

BALLARAT LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Fat Cattle—265 head was the number penned for to-day's sale, consisting chiefly of middling and useful quality beef, with only a few pens good and prime. There was a good attendance of the trade, and competition throughout was active, prices realised showing an improvement on last week's values, the market closing firm. Quotations—Prime penning bullocks, L11 to L12; good penning bullocks, L9 to L10; medium, L8 to L9; fat calves—42 penning, the majority comprising really prime vealers, which sold well; best in selling to 92s. Fat sheep—A small supply, 2820 came forward for to-day's sale, consisting chiefly of middling descriptions, with very few first-class specimens, and competition, more especially for the best qualities was spirited. Last week's rates being fully maintained. Quotations—Prime crossbred wethers, 19s to 22s; good do, 17s to 18s; medium, 14s to 16s; prime merino wethers, 15s to 16s; a few to 18s; good do, 13s to 14s; medium, 11s to 12s; merino ewes, to 11s. Store Sheep—800 yarded, consisting chiefly of inferior descriptions, for which the demand was dull, all being turned out. Fat Lambs—366 to hand, about one-third comprising good and prime quality, the remainder being inferior. The supply being in excess of present requirements, prices throughout ruled easy. Quotations—Prime, 9s to 10s; good, 7s to 8s; inferior, from 4s to 5s.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1891.

We have recently been kept fully informed of the doings of the young German Emperor during his visit to England. We have been told how cordially he was received, and how pleasantly the English courtiers were showered upon him. The young Kaiser claims a close blood relationship to our Royal House, a fact which, quite independent of his kingly character, would lead to his being enthusiastically received by the people of England. There is much about the young Emperor's bearing and manner which engenders the belief that he possesses many of the charming attributes of his English mother. He certainly possesses all the determination of his grandfather, and his love of military display is equally pronounced, but his soft refining English influence of his mother has not been without effect on his character. There is little doubt but that the relationship existing between the various continental powers is of such a strained nature that the slightest friction may lead to a blazing forth into war. In not a few cases, however, of late, international differences have been successfully tidied over by means of arbitration; the difficulty over the Behring Sea fisheries between England and America being one of the most notable instances. Between the various continental powers, we fear, however, the same amicable and amicable factory method of settling differences is not likely to operate. We find that such a small matter as the publication of what are considered erroneous reports concerning the Emperor's health, has led the German Government to prohibit the circulation within a portion of German territory of Le Figaro and Le Martin, two Parisian newspapers. These may, of course, seem trivial actions, but they make a deep impression on the national mind, and are as likely to lead to an uprising as more important matters. France has never forgotten the castigation administered to her by Germany in 1872, and trivial acts of this kind only lead to the fomentation of the ill-feeling that already exists. On the part of France, the tendency of its diplomats, has, perhaps, been in the direction of striving to form an alliance with Russia, but such an alliance, if made, could only prove of temporary duration, the tendency of Government in the two nations is so directly antagonistic to each other. France plumes itself upon being the nation possessing the most advanced system of government in the world, while Russia certainly is the most despotic and autocratic at present existing under the sun. Such an alliance would give a temporary benefit to each nation in the case of Russia determining to enter upon a war with Austria and France deciding to square accounts with Germany. The visit of the German Emperor to England, and the projected visit of an Admiral of the French navy, may lead to the softening and smoothing of these international difficulties. It is much to be desiderated that such a result will eventuate. England certainly has always taken up something of a medatorial position, and the tendency in that direction is more pronounced in England to-day than at any period during its history. The same attitude, we regret to say, is not assumed by the majority of the European powers; however, we may fairly assume that a belligerent feeling is not quite so rampant as in days gone by. Many international brushes have been amicably settled of late, and we incline to the belief that the drift of thought in all nations is against the shedding of blood, and in the settlement of international differences by means of arbitration instead of by the sword. Russia is slowly but surely evolving out of its present despotic system of government. And the greater the act of despotism it performs, as in the case of the banishment of the Jews, the more surely do such acts work in the direction of the removal of the power by which it was accomplished. There is no doubt but that matters are tending among the great powers in the direction of settling differences by means of arbitration, and the international amenities that are now taking place must work powerfully in that direction.

At a time such as the present, when depression of trade is strikingly conspicuous, and the circulation of coin of the realm consequently slack, the successful floating of a mining venture in our midst should afford no small amount of gratification, the more particularly when purely local enterprise is shown. The mining industry is one of momentous importance, and although it has been in a depressed condition for a considerable time past, and we have suffered severely from the dark cloud of decadence hanging like a pall over us, yet there is some hope that in the near future a silver lining and a turning in the long lane may be apparent. Each of us are interested in the development of our mining resources, and were the industry but followed with some degree of success, it would most assuredly be the means of promoting increased prosperity throughout the district generally. The alluvial diggings were immensely rich, and evidences are not wanting that valuable golden deposits are still to be met with. The Hopetoun Company has been inaugurated as a no liability company under the most sanguine anticipations of success, and we sincerely trust these realised expectations may fully be realised, and competitors, if not fortunes, result. Poverty Point has certainly belied its name, for it is well-known that the lead of which Messrs Hancock and party are the prospectors has proved a rich one; and now that we are given to understand all litigation in connection therewith has happily been settled, it is devoutly to be wished a greater amount of benefit will be derived locally. The strong and hearty encouragement of prospecting enterprise is a question of serious moment to the community, and one which demands earnest consideration. A few rich finds would attract outside capitalists, and as we possess a considerable quantity of promising country, there certainly is scope for their speculation in bringing to light our hidden treasures. We trust the formation of this company will prove an incentive for the revival of energy by other companies in this district.

Local and General News.

A Local Land Board sits at the Beaufort Court-house on Monday next, the 24th inst. The list of applications appear in our advertising columns.

Mr Geo. Tipper, who allowed his seat to be vacant through non-attendance, has been re-appointed a member of the School Board of Advice for the North Riding of the Shire of Ripon, and Messrs G. A. Dunnet and Wm. Sutherland have also been appointed members of the Board for the West Riding.

The mining manager of the Saxon Consols, Waterloo, reports as follows: "Yield for week, 10 oz 4 dw. At north end of mine a new rise has been put up to the wash, which look promising."

Holiday excursion tickets will be issued by the Railway Department to Melbourne by all trains from the 22nd till the 26th inst., to give country people an opportunity of visiting the Royal Society's show.

The people of Beaufort will doubtless be glad to hear that the committee of the Beaufort Hospital have decided to make Messrs R. A. D. Sinclair and J. R. Wotherspoon lie subscribers for their exertions in raising L5 for the institution by the recent public subscription of "British Born." They will be entitled to an out-door ticket for distribution as long as they live.

About thirty young people (who last year went under the name of the "Iolanthe Supper Party") had a very pleasant time at the Camp Hotel last Monday evening; the large lounge room upstairs being fitted up for the occasion, and the floor being in first-class order. They thus had an opportunity of enjoying themselves to their hearts' content, which they thoroughly did till 1.30 a.m., when they wound up one of the most sociable evening parties of the season by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and the usual good-bye songs.

The committee of the Beaufort Mechanics' Institute and Free Library met on Monday evening. There were present: Messrs Hughes (president), Dungey (secretary), J. Humphreys, A. Stuart, D. Cameron, and Parker. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The librarian to the Public Library, Melbourne, acknowledged the return, in good order and condition, of six cases of borrowed books. Mr J. F. Wainkin, in sending his subscription, asked that the "Town and Country" newspaper might be added to the list and more modern works procured, one on astronomy and Riden Hagar's being mentioned. (Mr A. Andrews here took his seat.) Mr Andrews moved that they subscribe to the "Town and Country" for six months to give it a trial. Seconded by Mr Stuart, and carried. The secretary having replied that the committee would take into consideration the books suggested when ordering new ones, it was understood that subscribers' attention should be drawn to the suggestion book, so that they might enter any works desired. A meeting will shortly be held for the purpose of selecting new books. The publishers of "Young Australia" claimed £1 subscription to March '92. Resolved to pay up to September, and discontinue. Accounts were passed for payment to—Wotherspoon Bros. & Co., 15s 3d; Harris & Troy, £1 10s; Mrs Hemmings, 25 19s; E. M. Stuart, 5s 6d. Mr Parker having complained that the Advocate supplied by him to the free reading room was taken out of the institution on the evening of its publication, it was decided, on the motion of Mr Humphreys, seconded by Mr Cameron, that no paper be allowed to be removed from the institute until they are a week old. The meeting then adjourned.

A service of song, entitled "Jessie's First Prayer," was effectively given in the Societies' Hall, Beaufort, on Thursday evening, by the Presbyterian Sabbath School scholars. There was a remarkably good attendance, considering the inclement weather. The Rev. Mr Ross gave the connective readings clearly and distinctly, and the touching recital of this poor London street-urchin's hunger, ill-usage, yearnings after Christianity, and finding of friends, was most attentively listened to. The admirable illustrations shown by Mr Green, with the aid of a magic lantern, added not a little to the interest of the service. The children were assisted by members of the choir, and helped by Mr Hughes, of St John's denomination. They gave evidence of having received very careful instruction at the hands—rather, voice—of their most capable leader, Miss Adam; and the really excellent tone in which the several sacred songs were sung, could not but have greatly pleased their instructor, as it certainly did the audience. A word of praise is also due to the organist, Miss Smith. Heartly votes of thanks were accorded the singers, Mr Green, the Rev. Mr Ross, Mr J. Tompkins (who had worked hard in arranging the seats), and who wished Mr Archard coupled with himself for providing timber and sending his son to help), and the chairman. A well-spent evening was brought to a close with the singing of a doxology.

The half-yearly meeting of the Beaufort District Rifle Club is announced to be held at the Mechanics' Institute next Monday evening. As the officers for the ensuing six months are to be appointed, there should be a good attendance of members.

Some little excitement was caused on Wednesday evening by the pealing of the firebell, and a glare in Lawrence-street. One of Mr Mason's chimneys had caught fire. The brigade lost no time in arriving on the spot, but happily their services were not required.

Woodcutters will be pleased to learn that through the instrumentality of Crown Lands Bailiff Orde they are now able to procure ten-shilling licenses, giving them the right to cut certain timber in the Mount Gale State forest, from Mr Minchin, clerk of courts at Beaufort. Hitherto the licenses had to be obtained from Ballarat.

A Warden's Court was held on Monday at Beaufort by Mr Cooper, P.M. The application of Amos Collins and party for a gold mining lease of 15 acres in Mr Watkins' private property at Raglan, was recommended. The parties interested had some differences regarding compensation, but we are pleased to hear the terms, which are satisfactory to both parties, were settled by mutual agreement.

At the annual show of the Australian Sheepbreeders' Association, held in Melbourne during last week and this, we are pleased to notice that several awards came to this district. The "Argus," referring to the exhibits, says: "There is one thing the visitor to the A.S.B.A. may expect to see, and that is the highest type of the Australian merino brought out in perfect condition. There are sheep now on view on the top floor of Messrs Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co.'s vast warehouse that are a combination of size, under date of 21st inst.—Yield for week, 10 oz 4 dw. At north end of mine a new rise has been put up to the wash, which look promising."

Miss Elizabeth Jess, youngest daughter of Mr John Jess, Middle Creek, has been appointed head teacher of State school No 3026, Koonik Koonik, an unclassified school in the Horsham district. Miss Jess passed the necessary examination qualifying her for this position while a pupil at the Middle Creek State school, and since then has continued her studies under the direction of the head teacher, Mr J. M. Jeffrey. Miss Jess is a most promising student, her late teacher testifying with pleasure to her industry and ability, and we are sure her many friends will not only be pleased to hear of her early appointment, but will wish her every success in the profession she has adopted.

A correspondent writes:—On a recent occasion Captain Bridges, R.N., of Traralgon, sent around his manager, Mr Todd, to see in what condition the school reserve at Lake Goldsmith was, and finding that the fence was in bad order (a number of the posts having rotted in the ground) and the place having a bleak, cold, and deserted look, thereupon four men with a team were sent, and just the fence in repair and planted the reserve with pines and blue gums. There is still one drawback. The entrance to the reserve is secured only by slip-pickets, which are liable to get knocked down by cattle, and the trees get destroyed. The members of the Board of Advice for the West Riding ought to bestir themselves and get a gate erected, and thereby show that they take even a little interest in the school, and not tax Captain Bridges' generosity too much.

Saturday's steplechase meeting at Caulfield proved a very successful gathering, the weather being delightful, the attendance of visitors large, and the racing of a unusually interesting kind. The chief interest centred in the Caulfield Grand National Steplechase, which is over a four mile course. The fine field of 18 horses started for this race, and the winner was Mr George Russell's Buscos, who ran second for the Flemington Grand National Steplechase a few weeks ago. Buscos was favorite, but Bister was also very much fancied. The latter, however, was out at the first fence, through Bolton swerving across and falling, this catastrophe bringing the fence and three horses and jockeys all to the ground together. Corrigan and Catey, who were on Bister and Bolton were not much hurt, but Eastman, who was on Knight, sustained a rather severe concussion. Beggar Boy, a Queensland horse, led nearly all the way in the Steeplechase, but Buscos, who was admirably ridden by Mr J. E. Brewer, caught him and defeated him easily enough at the finish. Mr D. Yates' Schoolboy, who jumped splendidly and ran well throughout the race, being third. Of the other races, Galliard, won the Sapling Stakes from Fada, Azim, and a large field. Yabbo, a Queensland horse, won the Hurdle Race, after a great contest with Montrose II and Ixion. Bridgegroom easily won the Selling Race from his only opponent Dauntless, and finally Churchill won the Blueclava Stakes from Australia and Steeltrap.

Ararat (says the Courier) is to be honored by becoming the summer residence of vic-regally, as we understand that His Excellency the Earl of Hopetoun has purchased the Woodlands estate, and will take up his quarters there for at least three months in the year. The object of his Excellency's visit to Ararat a few days since was for the purpose of inspecting the estate, and he was so well pleased with the climate of the district that he determined to make the change from Mount Macedon, which it is considered will be more conducive to the health of the countess. Another reason given for the removal from Macedon is that it is becoming too crowded for a quiet summer retreat. It is stated also that His Excellency intends to take an active interest in station pursuits and stock breeding, and will manage the estate personally.

A very enjoyable evening (writes a correspondent) was spent in the Public Hall, Middle Creek, on Tuesday evening last, when a concert and lecture was given in aid of St. George's Church of England. Mr W. H. Elliott, of Beaufort, took the chair, and made a short speech, dwelling chiefly on the object of the gathering, which was to liquidate the debt that is at present on the church. The hall being crowded to the door, appeared to him that the people of Middle Creek were determined to achieve their object. The first item on the programme was a pianoforte duet, by the Misses Townsend, which was very nicely played. During the evening there were two other pianoforte duets, given by Miss and Master McDonald, which must have been very pleasing to all, especially to their tutor, Miss Cowens. Mrs Foster sang "The Golden Shore" very feelingly, and Mr Brierley "Our Jack's come home to-day," repeating the last verse as an encore. There came a very instructive lecture from the Rev. R. Hosken, entitled "Robert Bruce," followed by a song by Miss Foster, entitled "Hard Times come again no more." Miss Lhotellier sang "Jessie's Dream," and received a vociferous encore, and repeated the last verse. Then came the gem of the evening, a song by Mrs Foster, "Dear Mother, I've come home to die," which charmed her hearers that she had perforce to re-appear, giving as a response a duet with Mrs Baulch, "It was a dream." Mr Brierley sang "Thy voice is meek" very nicely, followed by Miss Lhotellier's song, "Love not," this item being well selected, and the singer's voice splendidly. Votes of thanks were given to the chairman, lecturer, singers, and Mr and Mrs Townsend for the use of the piano. A really good entertainment was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

Particulars of a serious affair which disturbed the generally quiet little village of Lexton on Wednesday night, reached us (says the "Leader") on Thursday. It appears that after the Council meeting a good number of contractors and others remained, and about nine o'clock a quarrel arose between a well known farmer and a contractor residing at Waurba, which terminated in the arrest of the former by Constable Loton, but he was subsequently bailed out. The serious part of the unfortunate affair commenced at 11 o'clock, when, in consequence of the disorderly conduct of another well known farmer, who resented the arrest of his relative, the constable—who is the only one credited with Lexton—proceeded to run him in; also, Loton is a powerful young fellow, and stuck manfully to his captive, but sustained some very rough treatment before he succeeded with assistance in placing him in the lock-up. Yesterday morning Loton was far too fit for duty, his voice having been used in the Police Station Constable's Hall, and Constable Glauville at once proceeded to Lexton, and found the constable had apparently received internal injuries. Dr Cunningham will visit Loton to-day. Constable Glauville was left in charge of the station, pending the recovery of Constable Loton. Yesterday John McDonald was before Mr W. Goodshaw, J.P., but in consequence of Constable Loton being unable to attend the court, he was remanded till 8th September. Bail was accepted, the defendant in £300 and one surety in a like sum.

We again remind our readers of the farewell social to be tendered Mr and Mrs Thomas in the Primitive Methodist Church on Tuesday evening. The Royal Beaufort Lodge M.U.L.O.O.F. celebrate their anniversary with a social in the Societies' Hall next Wednesday evening, when a pleasant and successful gathering is almost certain to result. No pains have been spared to make the affair a success, and lovers of the "light fantastic" will find it worth patronising.

A committee meeting of the Beaufort Cursing Club was held at the Camp Hotel on Tuesday evening; Mr T. Walsh in the chair, Mr T. Tindale, Correspondent, Mr T. Tindale, writing to Lang-Kal-Kal estate, wishing to know the names of the committee of the club, and if the persons cursing last Wednesday were members of the Beaufort Club, before he would grant the request of the club to hold a meeting there. After a heated discussion, it was moved by Mr Walsh, and carried, that they proceed to the next business. It was resolved to add L3 to the stakes, making the same L7. The secretary informed the meeting that Mr E. H. Austin had accepted the position of president of the club, and that they were at liberty to hold meetings on his estate. It was decided to accept Mr Austin's kind offer and hold the first meeting at St. Enoch's. The meeting was advertised elsewhere.

TWO MEN WRONG—ONE MAN RIGHT. "You will be in kingdom-come in less than twelve months!" "You can't live three years!" "You are not going to live!" These prophecies were addressed to the same man. The last one had the most comfort in it yet he couldn't tell which had the most inspiration.

Here's the story. It isn't pleasant reading at first, but it "comes out" all right, as the children say.

Perhaps it's better to let our friend tell it himself. We all like the pronoun "I," it's why an autobiography is never dull. The reader is a butcher of a student, and his style is so clear and good, it needs no editing.

He says: "Some five years ago, when I was a quarter of five, I noticed a remarkable sore on the small of my back. I called a doctor, gave up business, and took to my bed. He prescribed a lotion to be rubbed in around the region of the kidneys. This was done, and I remained in bed several days, suffering as during agony. At last, having examined the kidney sections, the doctor said 'You have Bright's disease, and will be in kingdom-come in less than twelve months.'"

"Never believing I had Bright's disease, I thought, however, it would be well to insure my life. On examination, the company's physician refused to pass my life insurance, saying, 'You can't live three years.'"

"About three months afterwards I was again seized with a severe attack, and was about more dead than alive. Finally I broke down and again took to my bed, as was supposed, for the last time. I sold one of my businesses so as not to leave too many affairs for my wife to settle, made my will, and explained to my wife what to do in case of my death. I can well remember her listening with tears in her eyes to what she believed were my last instructions. I then lingered for some weeks, waiting for death to free me from my sufferings—taking whatever medicines were prescribed, but deriving little or no relief.

"One evening a friend called, and we talked over my case and the very serious turn it had taken. Presently he said, 'I have something to tell you. Have you tried Seigel's Syrup?' "I confessed that I had not. In fact I had religiously followed the instructions of my medical advisers. Mr. Seigel then advised me to try Seigel's Syrup, and I began at once, taking twenty-drop doses according to the directions. In about a week I felt a little more life in me, and after having continued the use of Seigel's Syrup I was convinced that improvement had fairly set in. I continued taking the Syrup until I had consumed ten bottles, then went downstairs to work again, still using the Syrup. After having taken from eighteen to twenty bottles altogether, I found myself entirely well. It is now four years since I took my first dose of Seigel's Syrup, and I have suffered no symptoms of kidney complaint since."

(Signed) ROBERT HUTCHINSON, Butcher, Wellington Street, Auckland, New Zealand.

We print Mr Hutchison's statement as he wrote it, yet it is not probable that his malady was actually Bright's disease, as that is a generation or destruction of the substance of the kidneys, and difficult, if not impossible, to cure. What he really suffered from was no doubt, a debilitated state of the system, originating in indigestion and dyspepsia, with severe kidney symptoms, as is often the case. When we remember that nearly all malades, including rheumatism, gout, consumption, liver complaint, heart disease, &c., are due to poison in the blood, arising from fermented food in the digestive tract, we can see how Seigel's Syrup is a virtuous over-dose, great a variety of apparently diverse diseases. And because of the one source of these complaints, serious and often fatal mistakes are made in the diagnosis and in the treatment. The point to emphasize is this: Heart disease, consumption, and Bright's disease are much rarer than they are supposed to be. Government what seems to them is a group of symptoms of indigestion and dyspepsia. It is always best to take the advice of Mr Hutchinson's friend when he says, 'You are not going to die, try Seigel's Syrup.'"

CARNHAM NOTES

An act of wanton destruction was committed here a few nights back, when about 10 chains of fencing, the property of Mr H. Lewis, of Northport, was thrown down by some evil-disposed person. As Mr Lewis has always been on the best of terms with his neighbours, he is at a loss to know what motive anyone could have had for such a malicious action. However, our local guardian of the peace (Constable Bourke) has taken the matter in hand, and the criminals will be clever indeed if they succeed in eluding this vigilant officer.

At last the Shire Council seem to be going about the matter of tree-planting in Snake Valley in something like a systematic manner, as an unsightly block of ground on the three chain road, opposite the Church of England, has been ploughed up and fenced off, and a number of valuable trees planted thereon. About 200 of these have been generously presented by the Hon. Philip Russell.

A striking example of the improvement effected by the planting of a few trees is shown in the local State school reserve. A few years back the late teacher, Mr T. Flynn (now at Braybrook Junction), with the assistance of the boys, planted about 100 trees. These have grown with astonishing rapidity, and are already admired, and promise soon to be an ornament to the locality. Mr Flynn could not possibly have left a more suitable or lasting memento of his good taste behind him.

The Carnham Brass Band gave us a taste of their quality last Saturday evening, when they paraded the town street, playing several selections in a manner reflecting the greatest credit on themselves and their able master, Mr Wendt. It is to be hoped that they will give us many more such treats, and that the public on their part will generously assist the concert which is being organised in aid of the ward funds. HOPETOUN GOLD MINING

About twenty of the promoters shareholders of the Hopetoun Gold Mining Co., Poverty Point, Beaufort, met at Loft's Railway Hotel on Monday evening. Mr W. Edward Nickols, who was voted to the chair, briefly explained the object of the meeting, and called on the original shareholders to give particulars of the working of the mine. The mining manager, Mr T. Cunningham, stated that since they commenced the shaft they had driven to the boundary and blocked out 15 or 16 sets the shaft for 700z. of gold. The shaft required to be sunk deeper and a cross-cut put in, and in 6 or 7 weeks they would be on good gold. The old shareholders had not been able to do this work. All lawsuits had been settled. The receipts for the gold obtained since 16th May, amounting to 229z, were produced for inspection, and the gold obtained for the past week (7oz 11oz) exhibited as a sample. Mr VanderSteele said that excepting £1200 of the old company would pay all outstanding debts. Mr G. Wotherspoon, who holds a bill of sale on the plant, pointed out that L165 was the actual cost of it, and as some L70 had been spent on it since, plenty of money was left for it now. He agreed to take L120 from the new company, on bills of 3, 6 and 9 months, at 10 per cent. interest, renewable as often as they liked. Mr Andrews desiring to know what the plant consisted of, Mr VanderSteele gave a description of it—the usual mining outfit—said in addition offered for the price paid some bargains in rails, lamps, &c., secured by him at the sale of the Waterloo company's plant. The holders of the ten paid-up shares would be liable to call just the same as the other shareholders. There was an agreement with Mr Chapman to pay him L5 for surface damage to his paddock. He had received L5, and any further damage the new company would be liable for. The gold on the table belonged to the old shareholders. He spoke of the good prospects of the mine, and said as soon as the shaft was opened out to make room for additional picks (one only having been at work so far), there was not the slightest doubt but that the returns would well repay them for what they were laying out. It was decided on the motion of Mr Andrews to purchase the mine from the co-operative party on the terms of the prospectus, free of all liability excepting the L120 owing to Mr Wotherspoon; also on the motion of Mr Blackmore, that the seven shares not taken up be held in trust for the company by the mining manager, and that he be authorized to dispose of them for the company's benefit. L82 was subscribed for the shares in the room. Mr Andrews moved, that Mr H. H. Jackson seconded, that the company be registered under the style of The Hopetoun Gold Mining Company (No Liability), in 3,000 shares at 10s each. Carried. Mr J. Humphreys was elected legal manager at a salary of L1 per week, on the motion of Messrs VanderSteele and Iredale; an amendment by Messrs Blackmore and Chellier, that 10s be given, being lost. Mr Jackson moved that the holder of the scrip be qualified to become a director. Seconded by Mr Krueger, and carried. The following were nominated as directors—Messrs Nickols, Wotherspoon, Flynn, A. Stuart, Iredale, VanderSteele, Jackson, Andrews, Blackmore, & Cougle; the four last mentioned declining. The voting resulted as under—Wotherspoon, 21; VanderSteele, 12; Nickols, 14; Flynn, 14; Stuart, 11; Iredale, 13. The first five were elected. A deed of association submitted by Mr Humphreys was adopted with the necessary alterations. A call of L1 per promoter's share was made due and payable that night, with 7 days' grace. This concluded the general business. The directors afterwards appointed Mr T. Cunningham mining manager at a salary of 10s per week in addition to his ordinary wages. He was instructed to clean out the boilers at once and proceed with the sinking of the shaft. The directors arranged to meet the following Friday evening at 7 o'clock, and every alternate Friday.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Diseases of the Skin. Universal approbation has been awarded to this famous Ointment for its efficiency in removing diseases of the skin, such as scabies, scurvy, scald heads, and all eruptions of the skin, no remedy can equal it.

In this class of maladies, an improvement rapidly follows the first dressing with the Ointment. It must not only be applied to the wound or sore, but be bricked rubbed in around the diseased, swollen or painful parts.

Rheumatism, Gout, Stiff Joints. Every one suffering from these painful affections should use this Ointment, as it has relieved thousands from torture, after every other means had been tried.

GLANDULAR SWELLING, BRONCHITIS, SORE THROAT, AND QUIZ. To combat these diseases with success, penetrating remedies are necessary. Such are Holloway's Ointment and Pills.

ASTHMA, SHORTNESS OF BREATH. In these complaints the Ointment should be rubbed upon the chest and between the shoulders, in order to make it penetrate to the lungs and air passages, and thus effect a permanent cure.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases: Bad Legs, Corns, Bunions, Itching, Eruptions, Scabies, Ringworm, etc.

THE Ointment and Pills are Manufactured only at 179 New Oxford St. (late 533 Oxford St.) London; And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World.

PURCHASERS should look to the Label on the Boxes and Bottles. If the address is not 179, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

CHEST COMPLAINTS.

No diseases are more frequent, few more dangerous, than affections of the respiratory organs. The first symptoms of these may always be relieved by Holloway's Pills.

Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. These organs are frequently getting out of order, and require a specific medicine to regulate them. Holloway's Pills effect this object with wonderful certainty.

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS. Whoever is afflicted with these complaints, should at once have recourse to Holloway's Pills. They act most energetically on the exhalant and absorbent systems, purify the blood, and impart a vigour which age or other causes may have temporarily taken away.

Disorders Peculiar to Women. There is no medicine equal to Holloway's Pills for correcting the ailments incident to females. They may be taken with safety for any irregularity of the system.

INDIGESTION, BILE AND SICK HEADACHES. No organ in the human body is so liable to disorder and serious disease as the liver. Holloway's Pills regulate every erring function, give strength to every enfeebled organ, and remove all causes of indigestion, bile and sick headaches, and thus effect a permanent cure.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases: Ague, Bilious Complaints, Dropsical Swellings, etc.

THE PILLS and Ointment are Manufactured only at 179 New Oxford St. (late 533 Oxford St.) London; And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World.

After recovering from a long continued attack of eye disease, which threatened to make me blind, the last I can do is to write and thank you for recommending the Egyptian Eye Salve as it is to this wonderful ointment that I owe my cure. The doctors could do me no good and considered my case hopeless, but I began to get better directly I used the salve and am now quite well. Mine has been a remarkable case, and if you choose to print this for the benefit of other sufferers, you are at liberty to do so. (Signed) P. F. O'GRADY, Meehan, Queensland. AGENT FOR BEAUFORT.—Mr A. EGYPTIAN EYE SALVE. TRADE MARK. SASSOON LUMLEY & CO., Cairo.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps's as provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor's bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame. See article in the "Civil Servant Gazette." Made simply with boiling water or milk.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD. This preparation has gained a world-wide celebrity for its soothing power in curing Stomach, Bile, Inflammation, Ophthalmia, Weakness, and all diseases of the eye. It is prepared by a delicate and expensive process from a small plant growing on the borders of the great Egyptian Desert, the extraordinary healing properties of which have been known for hundreds of years. In its nature it is a powerful remedy for the most distressing complaints, and like the rest of Nature's remedies it is never known to fail. Those who have once used it declare that it is worth its weight in gold.

To our Readers and Patrons.

THE PROSPERITY OF A DISTRICT DEPENDS chiefly upon the support and encouragement that is given by the population to local enterprise and industry. Every venture is to a more or less extent speculative, but each, whilst aiming at the success of the Promoter, must offer certain returns to those whose support is necessary to achieve certain advantageous results on both sides.

Therefore, Support Local Industry and Local Enterprise.

The law of exchange is never satisfactory in its working; thus it was that the custom of buying and selling, using a standard currency, was introduced. (The form of that currency is known as "paper money," and of paper money there is more than one kind. All kinds are useful, but not every kind retains its original value. The "paper" money most valuable to a newspaper proprietor is that which "pays him by" "Subscribers and Advertisers," and he will do his utmost to entice him to good share of it.

"The Riponshire Advocate" is the Advertising Medium for all Contracts, and notifications of the Shire of Ripon, and the ONLY NEWSPAPER That is Printed and Published within the boundaries of the Shire.

And as the advocate of the interests and for the welfare of the district it has a claim for a considerably greater amount of support, and has a greater scope for extended usefulness than any other journal or journal within a given radius of the Shire Office.

The Circulation of the Riponshire Advocate is Steadily Increasing.

And the Proprietor, recognising the increased support in this direction, will use their utmost endeavors to merit and sustain the patronage secured them by giving the Latest possible Local and General News, and the most interesting and instructive information.

"The Advocate," PUBLISHED EVERY DAY MORNING. CIRCULATES in the following districts:—Beaufort, Stoney Hill, Lake Goldsmith, Salford's Gully, Main Road, Hazlet, Christchurch, Waterloo, Erambaheen, Bunzer, Middle Creek, Shirley, Trawalla, Burrumbidgee, Learmonth, Sreatham, Skipton, and Carriagah.

With every issue of the Paper is given a FOURTEEN-COLUMN SUPPLEMENT, Containing an Interesting Serial Tale, Amusing Anecdotes, Pastoral News, Poultry Farming, Agricultural Intelligence, Recipes, Gardening Items, Etc., Etc., Etc.

Business Men, Read It. It was Benjamin Franklin who wrote—"What steam is to machinery, advertising is to business."

And another writer has said—"He who in his 'biz' would rise, Must either 'bust' or advertise."

And advertisers cannot do better than make the Riponshire Advocate their medium for their announcements.
