NOTICE.

THE Proprietor of the "Riponshire Advocate," in thanking his numerous patrons for past favors, respectfully solicits a renewal of support, and desire to state that increased attention will be given to all matters of local and general interest. He has resolved to REDUCE the subscription to the "ADVOCATE" (with which is published a 14-column supplement containing well-selected reading matter) to 3s 6d per quarter, and trusts that this concession will be largely taken advantage of.

The Advertising Rates have also been considerably reduced, and advertisers will find it to their benefit to avail themselves of the columns of the "Riponshire Advocate," which is the only newspaper that is printed and published within the boundaries of the Shire. As the advocate of the interests and welfare of this district, it has a claim for a considerable amount of support, and has a greater scope for extended usefulness than any other journal or journals within a given radius of Beaufort.

ART, BEAUTIFUL ART

HOMES

PRETTY and ARTISTIC

THE FINE ART CO. OF LONDON have now completed arrangements for issuing in the Colonies their LOVELY CHASTE, ARTISTIC and CULTURED PHOTOGRAPHIC SUBJECTS, after such celebrated and renowned artists as Sir F. Leighton, P.R.A., Marcus Stone, R.A., and other Royal Academy Artists. The subjects which the Co. produce and intend introducing into Every Home in the Colonies appeal direct to that instinct for beauty inherent in every human being, and when fostered by the production of Works of Art at popular instances, and it has been our aim to select such subjects only, whether Historical, Rural, Sporting, or Genre, which shall prove at once intensely interesting and picturesque, and from the marked favor they have received wherever introduced we claim our object has been grandly achieved.

It has hitherto been impossible for the public to get a proof of really Popular Subjects by eminent Artists unless at prohibitive prices, as much as three and five guineas each being charged for good engravings, but modern methods and machinery have altered all that, and we can now offer extraordinarily low prices without at all sacrificing the quality of the work, and to those dealing in premium pictures.

We have given a few illustrations of some of the Works we send out. Of course they can only convey a bare idea of the subject they represent. Each Picture is superbly printed on Extra Heavy Toned Paper, measuring 30in. x 20in., and we guarantee them to be such as are purchased at Art Stores at Three Guineas a Pair. OUR PRICES for the FULL SET of FIVE COMPANION PICTURES illustrated is ONE GUINEA, postage 1/6 extra. The cost of a Single Picture is 6/6, post free. TWO Sets are sent for 3/4, Three Sets for 1/2s, Four Sets for 2/3, and Six Sets (2 Pictures) for 4/6, postage in all cases extra. Send for a Set and you will be surprised and delighted. Storekeepers and Canvasers liberally dealt with for Cash only.

THE Riponshire Advocate

Published every Saturday Morning.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19, 1893.

Probate was granted on Wednesday to the will of James Robertson, of Mount Mitchell, Lexton, near Ballarat, grazier, who died on the 28th May last.

The meeting of the Beaufort Charing Club, to have been held at Vowles' Camp Hotel on Tuesday evening, was so sparsely attended (only four members were present) that it was deemed advisable to postpone it till Thursday next.

The following yields of gold were obtained for the week ending Saturday, 12th inst., at Ding-Dong, Beaufort:—

Wright and Cheesman, 2oz. 31dwts.; E. Tromp and party, 2oz. 31dwts.; ...

The Melbourne correspondent writes: "Free libraries are likely to come under the ruthless knife of retrenchment."

The board of directors of the A.N.A. has declined to sanction the carrying out of the annual gala hitherto organised by the metropolitan committee, while it contains provision for an art union.

Messrs John Humphreys and J. W. Brown having been nominated for the office of local auditor to the Shire of Ripon, an election will be held on Thursday, 24th inst., at the following booths:—

Shire Hall, Beaufort; State schools, Raglan, Waterloo, Nerring, and St. Mary's; Public Hall, Middle Creek; Court-house, Snake Valley, and Skipton.

A magisterial inquiry touching the death of Ebenezer Jones, aged 12 months, was held at Mr E. Wilkinson's, 23, on Thursday last, by Mr Andrews, J.P., when the following depositions were taken:

Richard Wilkinson, deposed: I am a grazier, residing at Trawalla. The mother of the deceased child has been in my employ as a housekeeper for the past six months. The deceased, I believe, is the illegitimate child of Jane Jones. The child had been ailing for some days. He took a fit last Friday, and never recovered entirely from it. I helped the mother to recover it on the 16th, and she afterwards gave me some honey, vinegar and lemon juice, to cut the phlegm in the chest. On Monday I got some Steadman's powders. These have since been given to the child. It was subject to a cough and was never strong, and died on Wednesday morning. The night before they were suspicious of its getting the measles. I went into the bedroom on Wednesday morning and saw the child. It appeared to be alive then. The mother was in to see it about 20 minutes afterwards and found it dead. I then reported the matter to the police at Beaufort.

Jane Jones, the mother of the child, gave similar evidence to last witness, and in addition said she did not consider the child ill enough to consult a doctor, as the weather was cold, she thought it might have done him more harm than good to take him out.

Dr Adam made the post-mortem examination, and owing to the late hour of the day it was arranged to take his evidence at Beaufort. As the doctor, however, was called away into the country yesterday, this had not been done up to 6 p.m.

We ascertained that the cause of death was imperfect development of the heart and lungs, and the feeding will be accordingly.

BEAUFORT POLICE COURT.

MONDAY, 14TH AUGUST, 1893. (Before Messrs Cushing, F. Beggs, and Leadbeater, J.S.P.)

M. Flynn v. Geo. Welsh.—Defendant having gone insolvent the case was struck out.

Same v. E. Welsh, senr.—Goods sold and delivered, £2 9s 5d. Order for the amount with 5s costs.

Crown Lands Bailiff v. John Keating.—Cutting timber on Crown lands without a license.

Complainant, sworn, said that whilst on duty in the Trawalla state forest on 7th July he found that posts had been cut and snaked through defendant's paddock. The son said they had bought them from a man named Scotty, whom he afterwards found was one of the unemployed employed by defendant.

He heard defendant cutting on the opposite side, and he told the man Scotty not to give his name, and said these were too many d.—Government officials proving absent.

Defendant said he was not aware that he was trespassing on Crown lands. He had been 25 years in the district, and had never split a post before, nor would he have done so then had his money not been locked up in the bank. He did not think a license was required. He was not impudent to the bailiff.

Mr Orde said there were actually three of them working in the forest. He valued the timber at 10s.

Defendant thought it was a very hard case, as he was only cutting the timber to put up a boundary fence on his land, as required by the Act.

Fined 10s. Same v. Louis and Thomas Willox.—No appearance of defendants.

The Crown Lands Bailiff deposed that on 20th ult. he found defendants removing timber from Crown lands without a license. They told him that they had not actually the money to get a license at the time, but as they got them out immediately afterwards, and usually kept them well, he did not wish to press the charge.

Fined 5s each, in default distress. Same v. William Connor.—No appearance of defendant.

Mr Orde said defendant was in company with the Willox Bros., he being a regular woodcutter, and had since got a license.

Fined 5s in default distress. Alice Burton complained that Goff, who had bowed with her, had assaulted her and threatened to take her life, and as he was an annoyance to her she wished to get rid of him. He had taken the key of her horse, and might go back at any time.

Senior-constable Downey said that Goff's version of the story was altogether different. He said it was only a love quarrel.

The bench pointed out that they could do nothing in the matter, and advised complainant to give Goff notice to stay away from her place, and if he molested her to give him in charge of the police; or else to issue a summons against him for what had already happened.

THE CRICKET MATCH, AUSTRALIANS V. ENGLISH.—The Australians were defeated by the English by 4 runs, the score being:—All England, 483; Australians, 91 and 349.

Holloway's Pills.—Nervous Irritability.—No part of the human machine requires more constant supervision than the nervous system.

After the question-list had been disposed of, the whole sitting of the Assembly yesterday (says Wednesday's "Argus") was devoted to the consideration of the Lands Settlement Bill.

Mr McIntyre met the objections of the mining members by an amendment exempting from the bill, and then he got along rapidly and pleasantly until he reached the clause which gives power to make advances by way of loan to needy settlers of sums not exceeding £10 to each.

Mr Henry Wilson pointed out that if it was intended to place destitute persons on the land the sum was utterly inadequate, nor would the state afford to make any sum which would be sufficient to enable such persons to remain on the land. Although the bill provided that the money was to be used only for the purpose of building upon and improving the land there could be no guarantee that the money would be so expended.

The Minister replied that the money would be advanced in sums of 10s per week, or at the most 13s 6d. This brought up Mr Peacock in horror to protest that members should be requested to visit the Lands office to see the weekly instalments are duly forwarded. He besought the Minister to make the advances in sums of not less than 15s at a time. Mr Trenwith moved an amendment that the amount to be advanced be increased to £30, which Mr McIntyre opposed on the ground that it would limit the number of persons he could assist, as only £20,000 is set apart for the purpose of the bill. Finally he moved an increase to £15; and the amendment of Mr Trenwith being altered to £20, was defeated on a division. No amendments of importance were made in any other portion of the bill, which was passed through committee, the House adjourning at 20 minutes past 11.

BEAUFORT RIFLE CLUB.

The half-yearly meeting was held at the Mechanics' Institute on Thursday evening. Present—Messrs Orde (president), Brooks, F. Troy, McKeich, G. Loft, A. Tromp, Allison, W. Hill, Dolan, Vale, Cameron, Archard (captain), E. F. Thompson (secy), Pedder, and Parker.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr J. Lilley, asking to be paid 7s 6d extra for marking at butts for 10th and 11th competitions for "The Austin Trophies" and battle firing.—To be informed that the club do not recognise the claim, and that they are not disposed to pay him more than half-a-crown per half day; and in the event of his not agreeing to this, the secretary to secure another marker.

During the course of a discussion on the above, Mr Allison said the club should go back to the old arrangement of two half days, as the members were more satisfied with it. They called the club the Beaufort District Rifle Club, but under the present arrangement the name was out of place, and it ought to be the Beaufort Town Rifle Club, as no consideration was shown to country members. They knew very well that in the past the country members had been good supporters of the club, and in addition to this, nearly all the trophies came from the country. The town members should show a more generous spirit and enable the country members to come in and participate in the pleasures of shooting. Everything went satisfactory till recently.

The President then ruled Mr Allison out of order, and intimated that he must bring it up under general business.

From Captain Jenkins, D Co, Victoria Rangers, (who had forwarded a cheque by Sergeant-Major Gray of £3 5s towards the prize fund), intimating that it was given as a slight acknowledgment of his appreciation of the unvarying kindness in which the club had treated the D Co, and expressed the hope that the cordial relations existing between them would continue.—A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Captain Jenkins, and the secretary instructed to convey the same.

From Head Quarters, forwarding flat of clubs who had not forwarded complete returns, this club not having sent the musketry course and balance sheet, and stating there would be no free ammunition, railway passes, or other privileges till the returns were sent in.—Received.

Another circular was received relative to obtaining passes to attend reception to the New South Wales cavalry team and Ripper's wood battery at the Exhibition buildings on Thursday next.

From T. A. Archard, resigning his office as captain. It was decided to accept the resignation, although he had endeavored to do so.—Received.

REPORTS.—The captain reported as under:—

GETTINGMEN.—I beg to state that during the past half year we have had six matches for "The Austin Trophies" and one friendly match with Ballarat club, the result of which are as follows:—March 4th and 8th, "Austin Trophy" won by D. Nicholson, 2nd "leg"; March 22nd and 25th "Austin Trophy" won by F. Minchin, 2nd "leg"; April 22nd and 26th "Austin Trophy" won by J. McKeich, his right to name being presented to the club; May 24th, friendly match with Ballarat club, which resulted in a defeat by 21 points; May 31st "Austin Trophy" won by W. Hill, 1st "leg"; July 5th, "Austin Trophy" won by A. Tromp, 1st "leg"; July 26th, "Austin Trophy" won by A. Tromp, 2nd "leg". For the highest score during the last half year Mr McKeich came top with 63 points; Mr Allison still leading with 64 points.

Mr Allison also stated that competition on 24th and 25th inst. was a great deal of unpleasantry through myself and committee not awarding "leg" to Mr Allison. During the half-year twenty members have attended two battle firings, the result being that your club has had a visit from L. A. Price, he holding a battle firing game last Tuesday. Seventeen members turning up for inspection, the average for same being 97.80 not so good as previous firings. Those members who have assisted me during the past half-year. Wishing the club a pleasant and prosperous time during the ensuing half-year, I remain, yours truly, THOMAS A. ARCHARD, Captain.

Received and adopted.

The balance-sheet was then read, showing the receipts to have amounted to £55 17s 10d and the expenditure to £15 3s 5d, thus leaving a credit balance of £40 14s 5d. The assets were estimated at £94 2s 5d and the liabilities at £4 12s 6d.—Received and adopted.

The following report by the secretary was received and adopted:—

GENTLEMEN.—In presenting to you my half-yearly report, I beg to state that your club is in a very good financial position. As will be seen by the balance-sheet just read, you have a credit balance of £40 14s 5d, which, considering expenses, etc., is extremely satisfactory. There are 40 paid up members on the books, which is a slight increase since last general meeting owing to several members having left the district. Six committees meetings have been held and attended as follows:—Messrs Brooks, Loft, Vale, and A. Tromp 6 each; T. J. Orde, F. J. Chapman, B. Minchin, T. J. Orde, and Nicholson 5. Three new members have joined the club for the half-year, all young shots, and should develop into first-class marksmen. The entries for the monthly matches have been fairly good, the "Austin Trophies" competition being still unfinished. Your little notice has been taken by some of the members with regard to the motion that all subscriptions are to be paid within one month from half-yearly meeting, and as these members do not pay until the last moment it is the cause of much inconvenience to the secretary when winding up the half-year, and I hope in future the members will take into consideration the labors of the secretary and help him in no small way by paying their subscriptions in advance. All your officers retire by effluxion of time, but are eligible for re-election. In conclusion I must thank the officers and members of the club for the friendly services which have been shown to me during the last six months.—I am, yours obediently, B. F. THOMPSON, Hon. Secy.

Received and adopted.

The captain intimated that one account had been forgotten. He had arranged to pay Mr Frusher a few shillings for the use of his paddock for battle-firing. It would be 5s or 1s 6d for six times, and would come before the next meeting.

The auditors (Messrs J. R. Wetherston and G. Loft) reported having examined the books and vouchers and found them correct in every particular. They congratulated the club on its financial position and thought the secretary deserved hearty thanks for the efficient manner in which he had performed his duties.—Received and adopted.

The averages for the year were then read, the principal ones being as follow:—J. McKeich, 4,104; A. Tromp, 3,815; F. Minchin, 3,711; A. Allison, 3,548; T. A. Archard, 3,5; F. Kendall, 3.

GENERAL BUSINESS.—Mr Allison said an amicable feeling should exist between the members of the club, and the town members manifest a generous spirit by not denying the country members the privilege of competing for prizes. By giving them this opportunity it would no doubt strengthen the club, and cause a better feeling amongst them. It should be more like a mutual admiration society instead of being divided into a clique. He moved that in future competitions they revert to the original arrangement of shooting on Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr Dolan inquired as to whether there had been any particular object in altering the arrangement from two days to one, and whether it had been beneficial to the club.

The President said the alteration was made on the score of losing money by the two days shooting, as so few members shot on a Saturday. He seconded the motion, considering he was justified in doing so, having opposed the alteration in committee. The amount lost was very trivial. The club had always been well backed up by the country members, who had stood to it through thick and thin. By altering the competitions to one day it debilitated the country members from shooting, and if they were going to block the country members, they should also block the trophies, as during the past four years all the trophies had come from the country.

Mr Dolan, in supporting the motion, said the country members took a keen interest in the club, and it was reasonable that facilities for competing should be given them.

Mr A. Tromp moved as an amendment that the club stick to one day's shooting. The President knew that a lot of bother was caused through the Saturday's shooting. He was sorry that Mr Allison should think there was any petty feeling, and other country members having made it completely clear that they were not swimmingly since the change. With the two days it was always a bother to get anyone to take the scores, and this was unadvisable.

Mr G. Loft seconded the amendment. The motion was carried on the casting vote of the President, the voting being as follows:—For the amendment—Messrs Tromp, Loft, McKeich, Brooks, Hill, and Vale. For the motion—Messrs Allison, Dolan, Parker, Troy, Orde, and Cameron.

Captain Archard and Mr Thompson did not vote, and Mr Pedder had left the meeting.

Mr Parker thought it advisable to draw up rules and regulations for the guidance of the club. Much of the unpleasantness during the half-year had arisen through there being no rules, and if the experienced members would frame rules the unpleasantness of the past would be averted. They should strive to work in harmony. He moved that a sub-committee, consisting of Messrs Orde, McKeich, and Archard—the latter declining to act Mr Allison was substituted—be appointed to draw up rules and submit them to a special general meeting for approval. Seconded by Mr Brooks, and carried.

Mr McKeich referred to the musketry course being omitted by an oversight in reading the rules. The members would lose their marksmen's badges, but they might get free ammunition. He asked how would it affect free travelling.

Captain Archard said he had related the circumstances to Colonel Price on his visit, and he was satisfied with the explanation that it was thought that battle-firing had taken the place of the musketry. The members would get 50 rounds of ammunition and free passes having been granted they would not get any if they wished to fire a friendly match with another club.

Mr Allison moved that the captain's explanation be accepted as satisfactory.

The President did not think a motion necessary. The secretary said that nearly all the club's had made the same mistake.

Mr Allison moved, and Mr Parker seconded, that the usual bonus of £4 is to be voted to the secretary. Carried.

SELECTION OF OFFICERS.—Mr McKeich moved that the retiring captain, Mr Archard, be re-elected. Seconded by Mr Loft.

Mr Archard declined the honor. His busy time was coming on, and he could not devote the necessary time to the duties. He pointed out that the mistake had been made all through of appointing young members to other offices, and they could not expect to find old heads on young shoulders.

The President and Mr Dolan endorsed this remark.

I Messrs A. Tromp and the secretary asked Mr Archard to reconsider his decision, the former stating he had filled the office exceptionally well, and the latter promising to take the scores for him on Saturdays, and remarking that Mr Archard had given him a lot of help, in fact had done half his work. Mr Archard said it was impossible for him to give two days to the shooting. They were all friends now, but he could not accede to their wishes. He was especially sorry over Mr McKeich's trouble

A medical officer in the French army originates the latest "cure" for obesity, which is certainly simple. The firm of diet is simply a restriction to what dish at each meal, irrespective of what that dish may be; this must satisfy the desire for food at each meal, as no supplementary dishes are allowed. One single dish, and that taken plain, it is claimed will satisfy the appetite much sooner than a variety of dishes, even if quantity was smaller.

PRACTICAL JOTTINGS.

BY THOMAS LANG & CO., Nurserymen and Seedsmen, 435 Bourke Street, Melbourne.

CALENDAR OF OPERATIONS FOR AUGUST.
Spring, with its genial warmth, is spreading over hill and dale, and wherever it comes is welcomed by the dormant vegetation which bursts into life at its approach.

Vegetable and flower seeds are more easily raised in this and the succeeding months than in the colder months, requiring only to be planted out, and kept free from weeds and insects.

It is a disgrace to our farmers, who, with every convenience at their hand, do not keep their families supplied with vegetables and fruits, there being but few exceptions.

Artichokes, Jerusalem.—Plant 2 in 3 ft. apart between the sets and rows. 3d per lb; postage up to 2 lbs, 3d.

Beet, Silver.—Sow 1/2 in deep, thickly, in rows, and sow when 6 in high; also allow to grow full height in rows 2 ft 6 in and plants 6 in apart, breaking off the leaves and leaving plants grow fully 2 ft high.

Cucumber.—Sow 1/2 in deep in a hotbed; sow 2 or 3 seeds in 3-inch pots. Let the strongest grow, leaving only one in each pot.

Herbs.—Each variety 6d per packet. Sow 1/2 in deep in rows 18 in apart.

Lettuces.—Sow 1/2 in deep, either in rows or broadcast and transplant, rows and plants being 1 ft apart. 1 oz will sow 200 ft.

Melons, Rock and Water.—Sow 1/2 inch deep, 2 or 3 seeds in small pots, which place in a hotbed, allowing only one plant to grow in each, so that when transplanting the ball of soil will not be broken.

Pumpkin.—Sow 1/2 inch deep, 2 or 3 seeds in small pots, which place in a hotbed, allowing only one plant to grow in each, so that when transplanting the ball of soil will not be broken.

Radish.—Sow 1/2 in deep, in rows 1 ft and plants 2 in apart. 6d per 1/2 oz; sow 80 ft in rows 18 in apart, and plants 6 in apart. 6d per packet, sowing 40 ft. Very delicate flavour.

Spinage.—Sow 1/2 in deep, in rows 1 ft and plants 6 in apart. 1 oz sows 120 ft. 6d per packet.

Tomato.—Sow 1/2 in deep in box placed over hotbed. Plants sown earlier should be kept in a cold frame, allowing all the sun and wind to reach them, removing the glass when days are warm enough. Tomato plants can be supplied from the middle of the month, posted for 1s 6d per dozen. Carrying easily.

Vegetable Marrow.—Sow same as Melons. Sow 1/2 inch deep, 2 or 3 seeds in small pots, which place in a hotbed, allowing only one plant to grow in each, so that when transplanting the ball of soil will not be broken.

Flower seeds could be planted as soon as the weather is warm, such as phlox, stocks, annual chrysanthemum, mignonette, nepenthes, etc.

A GENTLE HINT.

The greatest aid you can give your newspaper is your printing; if you do not feel able to run an advertisement, surely you can afford to give the newspaper your cards, dogtags, bill-boards, letter-heads, envelopes, and all business printing to execute. The newspaper man needs it, and it helps him to pay his printers for setting up the thousand and one free notices he gives you and your town; but don't give it to the printer or job printing office that can give you no such return, and is spending neither time, money, nor brains in helping you to build up your town. The time may come when a newspaper can live simply upon the revenue derived from advertising and subscriptions, but no ordinary newspaper in any ordinary town can exist without the auxiliary support derived from job printing. Therefore, if you want a good newspaper—one that can still further help you and your town—give it your job printing.

A WHISKEY SPONGE.

A neat trick was played upon me by an old toper the other day, writes a publican. The toper brought in a bottle, and asked for two shillings' worth of whiskey. I drew it, and along to the bottle while he went through his pockets after the silver. Presently he put on a look of dismay, and said he had lost his money.

What do you think I found? Why, the old rascal had forced a sponge as big as my clenched fist into the bottle, and this had soaked up my whiskey when I filled the bottle.

An Economic Light.

A GAS Light equaling the electric light in brilliancy but much softer and steadier, which can be produced at half the cost of an ordinary gas jet should commend itself to the public in these days when economy is more than ever a virtue.

The Rajah Gas Light Company claim, and give visible proofs in support of it, that the light they are now introducing to the public has all the advantages already enumerated. A few months ago when the invention was discovered in Melbourne a trial was made at the Flinders street railway station. Being in its infancy the machine needed in connection with the splendid light was not by any means perfect and of course the best results were not obtained until recently.

Now, after several months of experiment by Mr. A. J. Duncan, C.E., and Mr. G. George, the machine has been made simply perfect, and the result is marvellous. The Brighton platform at Flinders-street Station, the St. Kilda Station, the Johnston-street Tramway Engine House, Monaghan's Buildings in Swanston-street, and the private residence of the Hon. J. A. Wallace, are now lighted by the Rajah Light, and unbounded satisfaction is given.

The Railway Department and the Tramway Company have each given very flattering testimonials as to the many advantages of the clever invention. The light, which is as brilliant, but softer and steadier than the electric incandescent light, is produced by a simple automatic machine, to which is attached the water and gas mains leading into the house or building. This machine mixes the gas by means of the water pressure with air in the proportion of from six to eight parts of air to one of gas. The mixture thus produced is then consumed in perforated gas platinum burners, and a most beautiful light is the result.

Not only is this, but a saving of 75 per cent of gas is effected. In country towns where gas is 20s. per 1000 feet, this saving is of vital consequence. The saving, it will be seen, is effected by pressing the oxygen of the air into service. As the machine is automatic there is no more trouble with it than there is with an ordinary gas meter. A tap has simply to be turned on. Amongst the other advantages besides that of economy is the fact that no fatal results can follow an escape of gas where the Rajah Light is used. The gas is made so poor through admixture with air, that it can be inhaled without the slightest inconvenience.

Another point is that no smoke is thrown off, and valuable pictures and furniture are not injured in the slightest by its use. At present gas does considerable injury in this direction. On a hot day, also, the machine can be utilised to cool rooms by throwing jets of cool fresh air into them. This would be a great boon in the summer months. A machine that will light the largest building in Melbourne only costs £12 12s and it will last for a life time.

Mr. R. S. Waipole, of Melbourne Chambers, Little Collins street, Melbourne, is the Agent, and all particulars may be obtained from him. As the machine is now perfect the Rajah Company intend offering the light to the public in these hard times every householders desire to economise.

To our Readers and Patrons.

THE PROSPERITY of a DISTRICT depends chiefly upon the support and attention to local enterprise, using a standard of comparison to a more or less extent, and it is the duty of each, whilst aiming at the prosperity of his own district, to be necessary to achieve certain advantageous results on both sides.

Therefore, support Local Industry and Local Enterprise.

The law of exchange was never satisfactory in buying and selling, using a standard of comparison, known as "paper money," and of paper money there is more than one kind. All kinds are useful, but not every kind retains its original value. The "paper" money most valuable to a newspaper proprietor is that which is paid him by "Subscribers and Advertisers."

And he will do his utmost to entice good state of it.

"The Riponshire Advocate" is the Advertising Medium for all Contracts, let, and notifications of the Share of Money, and is the ONLY NEWSPAPER That is Printed and Published within the boundaries of the State.

The Circulation of the Riponshire Advocate is Steadily Increasing.

And the Proprietors, recognizing the increased support in this direction, will do their utmost endeavors to meet and sustain the patronage accorded them by giving the most personal Local and General News, and the most interesting and instructive items.

"The Advocate," PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY MORNING, CIRCULATES in the morning at 10 o'clock, before 9 o'clock, and is the only paper published in the State before 9 o'clock.

With every issue of the Paper is given a FULL PAGES SUPPLEMENT, Containing an Interesting Serial Tale, Amusing Anecdotes, Pastoral News, Agricultural Intelligence, Accidents, Gardening Items, Etc., Etc., Etc.

Business Men, Read! It was Benjamin Franklin who wrote—"What steam is to machinery, advertising is to business."

And another writer has said that—"He who in his 'biz' would rise, Must either 'bust' or advertise."

And advertisers cannot do better than make the Riponshire Advocate the medium for their announcements.

ART. BEAUTIFUL ARTS HOMES PRETTY and ARTISTIC.

THE FINE ART CO. OF LONDON have now completed arrangements for issuing in the Colonies their LOVELY CHASTE, ARTISTIC and CULTURED PHOTOGRAPHIC SUBJECTS, after such celebrated and renowned artists as Sir F. Leighton, F.R.A., Hercules Stone, appeal direct to that instinct for beauty inherent in every human being, and which is fostered by the production of works of Art at popular prices, that for Beauty of Design, Chasteness of Subject, and Completeness of Execution, at once draws out our latent artistic instincts, and it has been our aim to select such subjects only, whether Historical, Rural, Sporting, or Genre, which shall prove at once interesting and picturesque, and from the marked fact that they have received whatever instruction we deem our object has been grandly achieved.

It has hitherto been impossible for the public to get a goodly selection of such subjects, but modern methods and machinery have altered all that, and we can now offer extraordinarily low prices without at all sacrificing the quality of the work, and to those dealing in art or wishing for some auxiliary to increase and boost their business we have correspondence on the methods and uses of our premium pictures.

We have given a few illustrations of some of the Works we send out. Of course they can only convey a bare idea of the subject they represent. Each Picture is Superbly Printed on Extra Heavy Toned Paper, measuring 10 in. x 8 in., and we guarantee them to be such as are purchased at Art Stores at Three Guineas a Pair. OUR PRICE for the FULL SET of FIVE COMPARISON PICTURES illustrated is ONE GUINEA, postage 1/6 extra. The cost of a Single Sample Picture is 6/6, post free. Two Sets are sent for 3/6. Three Sets for 5/6. Four Sets for 7/6. and Six Sets for 9/6. postage in all cases extra. Send for a Set and you will be surprised and delighted. THE Proprietor of the "Riponshire Advocate," in thanking his numerous patrons for past favors, respectfully solicits a renewal of support, and desires to draw increased attention will be given to a matter of local and general interest. As a record of news he will always endeavor to make his columns as comprehensive as possible. In all departments, in fact, he will aim at improvement, and, therefore, confidently appeals to the public for increased support.

He has resolved to REDUCE THE SUBSCRIPTION to the "ADVOCATE" (with which is published a 14-column supplement containing well-selected reading matter) to 3/6 per quarter, and trusts that this concession will be largely taken advantage of.
The Advertising Rates have also been considerably reduced, and advertisers will find it to their benefit to avail themselves of the columns of the "Riponshire Advocate," which is the only newspaper that is printed and published within the boundaries of the Shire. As the Advocate of the interests and for the welfare of this district, it has a claim for a considerable amount of support, and has a greater scope for extended usefulness than any other journal or journal within a given radius of Beaufort.

Job Printing, plain and ornamental, of every description, is executed with neatness, accuracy and despatch, and on the most reasonable terms.
ARTHUR PARKER,
Proprietor.

MAORILAND HO I Nature's Enchanting Wonder Isle. A Weird and Entrancing Romance, BY AITHA WESTBURY.

Te Huna still remained unmoved, and kept his eyes fixed on madam with a piercing look that made the lady feel exceedingly uncomfortable. "In spite of what you say to the contrary, I believe that this lady is very easily affected by the power I have referred to. My I test you?"

A chorus of voices pleaded with her to submit to the ordeal, and smiling disdainfully Madam Elsie consented. To Huna placed her, seated somewhat apart from the rest, but in full view of all. Then taking from his tamsa a small piece of shining metal about the size of half-a-crown, he dolefully looked at it steadily. "Do not think me so presumptuous as to imagine I can absorb the thoughts which predominate in this good lady's mind at this moment," said he, slowly, and appearing to the others with an ecstatic gleam in his eyes, though he did not remove his glance from madam's face. "I assume nothing but to guide, with my will, whatever idea has possession of the mind of my subject at the moment, that is all."

For several minutes there was a deep silence in the apartment. Little by little the assertive smile faded from Madam Elsie's face, her eyes began to dilate, and her hands trembled forward. "I am overpowered by drowsiness," she murmured. Suddenly she started, and with a look of surprise and indignation, she exclaimed: "What is the matter with you?"

"Every place is haunted," said the Maori, quietly. "Sit down and say what has happened." "I obeyed, at the same time feeling somewhat ashamed of my companion. "What a clock is it?" was his next question. "Time! thirty-seven minutes after one by my watch."

"Good," he cried. "Has my pakaha friend courage to put out the light, and sit with me here in the dark?" "For what purpose, Te Huna?" I asked, suspiciously. "Not because I want to rob or murder my pakaha friend," said he with a lofty air. "If such a thing had been my object, I have done it long ago."

"What do you see, madam?" he said, presently. The subject struggled to speak; then in a voice, strong and hollow, which startled those who were listening to her, answered, "This is not Pinfalls! What has happened? What strange place is this?" "Describe what you see," cried Te Huna.

"This is a lovely peak, from which I can see the hills and valleys of the Patata, and the Maori Raunges. Beside me stands the form of a giant, whose face is hid from view. Now he turns, Oh! Heavens! that man—it is—it is—myself! With a piercing shriek she fell back on the sofa senseless, while the rest grouped round her in terror. "Stop! stop! for mercy's sake," cried Grace Weldon, seizing the Maori by the arm.

"Of which," said Grace, merrily, "Vane is far too generous to deprive me of my own papa's favourite—and I am sure you are it. Auntie always says everyone does."

She had opened the volume, and now pointed to the title, "When other lips," Vane's countenance, as he read it, became troubled; he stepped quickly, like one experiencing a sudden pain. "Yes," he said, "I know it, Miss Weldon, but I could not sing it. It is too precious to pleasurable memory, for his voice dropped low. Grace's face changed; her gentle eyes, full of sympathy, were raised to his as she murmured inaudibly to all but him, "Oh! forgive me, I am so sorry I have made you suffer!"

Temple gazed down into the face so expressive of regretful contrition, and as he gazed ran through his frame, strong man as he was, for a moment he felt weak as a child. He was angry with himself for clouding her gentle features, even for a second, and eager to atone, exclaimed, "But you may have another here more fortunate. If you will, I shall really like to see you."

She looked up; then spoke her gratitude, and then the two sides by side, their heads together, and sang, and the music began to utter the notes. Fenton, leaning by the window, saw the picture of two young men—the tall, broad-shouldered, red-crowned bearded man—the slender, graceful, bright girl—and glanced towards Major Weldon.

"Is this Pinfalls Station?" cried a voice from the other side of the force. "Yes; this is Pinfalls," replied the major. "Thank you. Would it be asking too much to beg Major Weldon to stop this way. I have a message for him," said the speaker.

"I am the very personage, sir," cried the master of Pinfalls in a friendly tone. "Whom have I the honor of addressing?" "Lieutenant West, of Pitt's Rangers, at your service," responded the voice. "I have a letter for you, sir, from our commander, Colonel Pitt."

"Glad to hear it. Step this way. How many men have you with you, Mr. West?" "A dozen, rank and file, sir," answered the other as he joins the major, who, leaving the rest of his companions to follow at their leisure, leads the way to the house.

In a very short time the rank and file are dismissed to find quarters among the servants, while the young officer is brought into the well-lit drawing-room, and presented in due form to the family and visitors. Lieutenant Harry West is a tall, dark, handsome man—the very best ideal of a soldier. He has an easy flow of small talk, can sing and play, and tell most wonderful anecdotes about himself.

"I do not know at all," she replied. "I do not think I have heard it before. Perhaps it is some night bird who keeps round to the wood's gorges of the hills. Will it come again?" "Let us go a little nearer," said Fenton Howe.

"They stepped down into the garden, and moved noiselessly along the path not to startle the bird—if it were that. "If there were bushrangers near," said Grace, "we might think of them. I hear they sometimes use birds' cries as signals."

"And are there not?" Vane asked. "No," shaking her head. "While the goldfields yonder (extending her hand to the profile, they find too much work to do."

"They do not trouble you, then?" said Fenton. "Only in occasionally bringing very rough-looking characters past the station on their way to them; and as they take care to time their arrival about sundown, as a matter of course, they beg a supper and a night's shelter."

"Of course," answered Grace, simply. "How could it be a nuisance, when to do so would compel their sleeping out in the bush."

"They had reached the scrubby by this time, and advanced a few yards along one of the paths. While doing so there was a slight rustle among the bushes, then silence. "Did you see a bird?" exclaimed Grace.

"Did you not hear it? We have startled it away." As they returned to the house they looked up to one of the first floor windows, where burned a faint light. It was partly open, for the night was hot and heavy with the storm which had not yet broken.

Behind the muslin curtains lay poor Nita, unconscious of all about her. That day, however, she had been better, and they had hoped that the doctor would on the morrow speak favorably. Vane turned and looked at his partner, who at that moment was endeavoring to enter the sitting room, for the two had started awhile on the verandah to speak of Nita, letting Grace Weldon precede them into the parlor. The light from the lamp shone on the young fellow's face, and a suspicion of the truth flashed upon his friend.

For a second a brighter expression came over his own features, then he gave place to one hard and scornful, as if the thought which had caused the former had been ruthlessly, sternly crushed out. "Madman! idiot!" he muttered, between his teeth, following Fenton. As they entered Madam Elsie appeared, coming from her duty as nurse. "How is she now, Auntie?" inquired Grace, anxiously.

"I am sure, on the whole, better," replied Madam Elsie. "She was sleeping, at almost usual calmness, until a few minutes ago, when she became restless, and started up in her bed wild and scared. It was with some difficulty I could soothe her to lie down; all the while, below her breath, she kept whispering with troubled brow, 'but I must! You do not know. I must.'"

"A sudden yell rent the air, followed by quick, heavy footsteps advancing along the verandah. All started to their feet, but before they could more than dive in amongst them the gaunt form of Te Rangia, the Maori, appeared. "You confounded ape, what is the matter?" cried the major, at the same time grasping the culprit and shaking him soundly. "Speak, sir!"

"Ugh!" cried the Maori; "bush-rangers." "Bush-rangers?" echoed several of the company. "Yes, bush-rangers," repeated Te Rangia. "They are coming here. I saw them by the stockyard; a dozen or more, Ki Kauri. They are all armed, and will surely kill us—every man of us. I have spoken."

"A party of diggers, most likely," said the major, looking at his daughter. "With your permission I will go and ascertain, sir," cried Vane, taking up his hat. "Nay, thank you; I will go myself, but you may accompany me if you will," answered the major.

"Why not all go?" says Grace. "Very well, I don't believe a word of what this idiot has said. No bushranger dare show his face at Pinfalls. Come along."

The whole party went out along the verandah, and descending to the broad gravel path beneath, betook themselves to the other side of the garden. Here they were startled to find a body of men drawn up two deep, and in uniform. "Is this Pinfalls Station?" cried a voice from the other side of the force.

"Yes; this is Pinfalls," replied the major. "Thank you. Would it be asking too much to beg Major Weldon to stop this way. I have a message for him," said the speaker. "I am the very personage, sir," cried the master of Pinfalls in a friendly tone.

INFORMATION COLUMN.

NATURALISTS say that a single swallow will devour 6,000 flies in a day. Two little islands furnish four-fifths of the clove consumed by the world. The islands are Zanzibar and Pemba; and a little white Arab found it very profitable to bring slaves from the African lake region to the coast, and smuggle them in the night over to Pemba to work on the clove plantations.

An Indian Fakir, wearing nearly five pounds of iron chains and bands on him, recently left the cantonment station, Meerut. The railway authorities declined to allow him to travel as a passenger, but sent him as goods by night, in spite of his argument that native women were never charged for their anklets and bangles.

BAMBOO shooting is a new Chinese manufacture which is extending in the province of Yenchow. The cane is split up so as to form a sheet, which after being soaked in boiling water, is pressed out flat. The sheets are used for veneering, making of trays, fans, screens, and carved fretwork. Specimens of the product can be seen at Museum No. 2, at Kew Gardens, London.

The following appeared recently in the official Military Gazette in India: "W. A. Cole (deceased) is granted general leave in India from August 23rd to October 1st, 1891, inclusive, under Rule 15 of the regulations of 1893. *Date of decease." Poor Apothecary Cole gets six weeks' leave of absence.

The diving apparatus is one of the latest objects to which the ingenuity of man has been applied. A short of copper is used in place of one of the glasses in the helmet, and to this a telephone is fixed, so that the diver, when at the bottom of the sea, has only to slightly turn his head in order to report what he sees or to receive instructions from above.

An interesting discovery is reported from Gellygery, where excavations are now being made in the rocky gardens. Gellygery is the site of an ancient Roman encampment, and during the excavations in the rocky grounds a number of urns containing ashes have been discovered. The date of the fourth century. Further excavations are now being made.

SAYS the eminent physician Dr. Andrew Wilson: "When you feel faint in a public place bend down and bring your head well between your legs. Drop your head on the floor if you wish to avoid attracting attention, and take a long time in picking it up. This lowering of the head sends the blood to the brain, and will often avert a faint altogether."

WET glass will not look clear unless washed in very hot water, but does not require soap. If it is in any way blurred or tarnished, it must be cleaned with a soft brush dipped in whiting, and then polished with a soft piece of newspaper. This gives it a brilliant, clear appearance, and no lint remains, as when rubbed with a linen towel.

SEALTS are said to be good weather prophets. They will tell you when it is going to rain, for they seem to smell the rain coming, and get very active, climbing up large, cool leaves, etc. If the rain is to be long and heavy they will lie on the underside of the leaves, but if gentle and warm they lie on the outside. Some kinds are yellow before and blue after rain, while other kinds show, by various marks on their bodies, that bad weather is at hand.

FEAT OF A TEXAN RANGER.

SCARCELY had the news of the ratification of the treaty of Gaudalupe Hidalgo reached the American army in Mexico, accompanied by orders for the disbandment of the volunteer corps, which had covered themselves with glory, and given a new lustre to their national character, than his ever restless but enterprising spirit who had during the war filled the ranks of the Texan Rangers began to look about them for other employment. The camp and the ride had become a necessary existence, and only at the expense of danger and daring could they feel at home.

They had reached the Rio Grande frontier, therefore, in obedience to the general orders, and these men had formed their plans for future action. They knew that as soon as the American army was withdrawn from Mexican territory, trade, which had been driven from the country by war, would be again revived, and that the greater facilities, now that the Rio Grande was opened to them, would be seized upon for the universal Yankee nation for smuggling large quantities of American and English goods into the country across the stream. The more reckless of the banding rangers now offered their services in this new employment, not unattended with danger and excitement they so much loved. Their familiarity with the frontier, and their reckless habits, made them indispensable to the merchants engaged in this unlawful trade, and their services were gladly accepted.

The following story, which was vouched for to me by the narrator as a fact, will illustrate the reckless character of these men, employed by the contrabandists to protect their interests on the Rio Grande:— One evening, during the winter of 1849, a train of Mexican carts and pack mules, bound from Point Isabel to the mouth of the Rio Grande, halted for the night at a spot opposite to which, on the Mexican side, was posted a picket guard, usually composed of cavalry. The duty of this guard was to watch the road, which here crossed the river, and report to the commander of a stronger force in the rear all suspicious parties that might pass below. The train was, as usual, loaded with goods to be smuggled into the Mexican territory, and was guarded by about a dozen Mexicans, who were loaded nothing so well as a fight with "grasers" or "redskins."

They had kindled their camp-fires under cover of the chapparal, and having disposed of their supplies, were now enjoying the hour. While thus pleasantly engaged, the soft notes of a bugle upon the other side of the river broke upon their ears. It was the signal for the recall of the pickets, to be replaced by the regular night guard. "Ha! there's old Cabrera's horn, waking his grasers!" exclaimed Bill Moody, one of the "McLaughlin's Boys." "The old fellow thinks we've a notion of running the river across at Jim Davis's ranch to-night, and is about to double his guard!"

"Double his fiddlesticks!" contemptuously joined in Charlie Hosmer, as he knocked the ashes from his clay pipe, and deliberately re-charged it. "I tell you, boys, the old Mexican ain't a bit to be trifled with, and quadruple his lazy guard, and there's not an old Ranger here but could whip it in a fair fight alone. And do you know, boys? I've a notion to go over and clean old Cabrera out."

Hosmer's remark set the boys to chaffing him about his brag, and they kept it up till he exclaimed:—"See here, my laughing chaps, I'll bet any one of you three months' pay, and my horse into the bargain, against the money of any one that'll cross the river, whip the Mexican guard, and capture their horses. Now, what say you, boys?" "I take that bet, Charlie," exclaimed Bill Moody. "And what's more, I agree to give you a month's pay for every Mustang you capture."

"June," replied Hosmer. "Now, lads, witness the contract. In the meantime," he continued, "let us keep quiet, and when the moon shows behind the chapparal the thing'll be accomplished. However, Charlie Hosmer's mess will be minus one mouth at breakfast to-morrow morning."

The matter being satisfactorily arranged to all parties concerned, Hosmer proposed that they should all go to sleep, and he wished to get some rest before the morning dawned, when he intended to be stirring. Just as the broad disc of the moon was sinking behind the tops of the chapparal, Hosmer crept cautiously from his blankets, and without arousing any of his companions, stirred up the expiring embers of the fire, and then examining his six-shooters, to see that they were all right, he moved stealthily to where Bill Moody was snoring, took his revolver, carefully examined and re-charged it, and placed the two braces of his belt, stole noiselessly out of the camp. He had been gone about an hour when his companions at the camp were aroused from their sleep by the sharp reports of revolvers, which were fired in a volley of command, as if leading on an imaginary host of Texan Rangers.

"Hurrab, boys! Pitch into 'em! Give 'em it! There's only a greater apiece for us I give 'em a touch of the Alamo! And all the while rattling away with his revolvers. The shouting and firing continued; but it was receding from the river, deeper into the chapparal, as if in pursuit of the retreating party. In a few moments, however, it ceased, and presently afterwards the smugglers could perceive the outlines of a solitary individual upon the opposite shore, driving and leading a number of animals to the water's edge, forcing them into it, and then, turning to clear the water of their skiff, and, driving the animals before him, struck out for the Texan bank. He had reached about midway across, when, observing his comrades collected upon the bank, he halted, and then to them: "Hillo, there, boys! catch them Mustangs as they come out of the water! I've left every one of them yellow skins afoot to-night. I say, is Bill Moody there?" "Yes," answered that individual; somewhat doggedly, of course I'm here!" "Well, then, Bill, catch them horses; they're all along to you. Boys," he continued, "don't let 'em get away for you, you know they're all engaged to that sporting Bill Moody!"

THE COLONEL'S TEMPERANCE DINNER.

COLONEL BOTTLE, as a true Kentuckian, revered the spirit of old Bourbon as only a native of Bourbon county can. One Sunday, afternoon found him in the prohibition town of Drytown, in the prohibition State of Iowa. He was dressing himself to take dinner with Major Dykes. The Colonel was both irritable and dry. "If Heaven pardons me for ever getting into such a town, I'll promise never to come here again—that is, if I don't die of a drink before I get out of it. Haven't had a drink for two days."

"Try ice water," suggested the hotel clerk. "Water!" exclaimed the colonel contemptuously. "Well, if you dine with Dykes to-night, that's all you'll get." "There must be an end to all things," said the colonel. "Think Heaven for the railroad! If I live until to-morrow, it will take me where people don't torture their throats to appease somebody else's convictions."

When he arrived at the mayor's, Colonel Bottle was warmly welcomed. "Delighted to see you, colonel," said Mr. Dykes, a first-class and rather pompous man. "Mrs. Dykes and the family will be in shortly. Charming weather we are having." The colonel replied as suavely as the arid condition of his throat permitted. When the ladies appeared, all hands adjourned to the dining-room. Soon a solemn-faced waiter, with a round filling, the glasses with ice water, and the colonel felt a chill permeate his spine. He thought of the part and claret in his collar at night, and wished he could be at his own sideboard just for one short glass, his-fish-moment.

"Colonel," said Dykes, clearing his throat apologetically, "I fear you will miss your Kentucky wines at our plain table, as I regret the fact. Yet our principles, you know, sometimes compel us to deny ourself pleasures which we would otherwise know with pleasure offer our guests." The colonel murmured something about a being of no consequence, and re-inforced his weak declaration with a convulsive swallow of ice water. Despite the efforts of his waiter, the dinner passed off rather drearily, and the colonel was not sorry when it was over.

On the way back to the parlour, Mr. Dykes drew the colonel to one side. "You are interested in horse-flesh, Colonel Bottle," said he, in a low voice. "Let me take you to the stables; I want to show you my new trotter. Regular blue grass-gal. Once at the stables, the mayor furtively pulled out a flat bottle from under the mantelpiece. "You see, colonel, although I do not approve of promiscuous drinking, there are times when a swallow of the genuine stuff is conducive to health. I saw that you did not relish our cold-water diet."

The colonel, feeling that the world was not wholly unmanageable here, had been a long time, and the two returned to the house. Charlie Dykes, a callow youth of 20 or thereabouts, nudged the colonel. "Look here," whispered he, "come to my room. I want to show you my new foaling piece." The colonel could not withstand this appeal to his hunting instincts, so he followed Charlie up stairs. But the latter, instead of a gun, produced a flask of peat brandy.

"Help yourself," said he. "I don't take much stock in the old man's prohibition notions, and generally keep a little invigorator on hand in case of an emergency. You've had a sort of dry look about you ever since you've been here. I'll do my best to hit it heavy, colonel. I'll do you good." The colonel did "hit it heavy," and it did the feeling at peace with all the world.

The girls were at their music, and the colonel entered into conversation with Mrs. Dykes. She, too, nourished a fear that something was lacking in the colonel's entertainment. Upon opportunity came she leaned toward him and said: "I suppose you did not know that I was interested in window gardening. Our great bay-window upstairs is my particular admiration. Let me show it to you." Another upstairs trip was immediately suggested. This time it was a bottle of "cordial," with such a fascinating flavour that the colonel accepted a second glass full.

"Of course you understand, colonel," said his hostess, "that, as you are from Kentucky, I have allowed myself to extract a little of a tendency to mistake two steps for one. The music had ceased. Mayor Dykes was feeling quite comfortable, and his wife knitted a pair of socks. He returned to the parlour, feeling at peace with all the world. THE THOMAS-ENSELISH ACT

When the door was closed on the girl, Mrs. Byllis lay back in her chair for a moment. "He will come, of course he will come! And he will do what I wish. Yes; I think he will do it."

Why did you look at me like that? I slipped it in my pocket. It will be rather awkward for you if you happen to have made a mistake. I don't know how it happened, but I don't think I should like to have my name in the papers."

HOW HE HUNG RED SHED. BY JOUQUIN MILLER. WHERE or how he had dug up the name of "Shed," no one ever knew. How, or where, or when he dug himself up, no one ever knew or cared, I reckon.

partly poor steers, but all men, my folks had got, and I've got to find 'em. Diddy's son, nobody? Two steers, two emigrant steers; a bald-face and a brindle. No one spoke. The man whose teeth I had been counting shut up shop for a second and I managed to get my eyes away from him and of the old lady's emigrant, who was about backing down from the scaffold to the ground. Now the way that he spoke told me that he was a sort of preacher, or exhorter at least. I whispered this to "I say, chip in here. All right, Shed, 'ch."

FROM THE HOSPITAL. "I never could depend upon the hospitality of my flock to entertain the excellent young divine, seeing that my own household is so disorganized a condition, owing to the exigencies of house cleaning. It will be only for a night or two, and we all know what is promised to those who receive the angel unwelcome?"

And Mr. Dibble rubbed his hands and looked smilingly around upon the members of the young ladies Aid Association, while a very perceptible murmur of assent rose up from the aggregate collection of caps, bangs, frizzed hair, and crimped laces. "Not a damsel in the number but would gladly have extended her gracious hospitality to the Rev. Felix Amory, who was to preach a sermon in aid of 'Home Help and Missions,' at the village church upon the coming Sunday evening."

While the other ladies looked indignantly first at Miss Lida, then at each other and whispered: "Bold thing!" "Most kind of you to promise it, I'm sure," said Mr. Dibble, and so the matter was settled, not at all to the general satisfaction. And Lida Larkspur went home and issued orders that the parlor curtains should be washed and ironed, and a pound cake of the richest nature concocted.
