Beaufort Easter Carnival

The movement inaugurated by the Beaufort Brass Band, and heartily supported by residents of the town, to raise funds by means of a sports gathering in the Park on Easter Monday and a dramatic entertainment in the Societies' Hall at night for the purpose of erecting a band rotunda, bids fair to be an unqualified success.

The procession from the weighbridge at 10 a.m. promises to far surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in Beaufort before. The prizes for individual and group characters, decorated vehicle and bicycle, will be keenly competed for, and the display should attract an immense crowd of people.

A general meeting of the committee connected with the Beaufort Easter Carnival was held in the Shire Hall on Tuesday evening, Mr. J. R. Wotherspoon (chairman) presiding and about 30 members present. The chairman stated that the meeting was held to report progress and to have a final rally and give a final touch to all appointments and make sure that the positions will be filled.

The Rev. Chas. Tregear (of Wesley Church, Melbourne) gave delightful entertainments on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings, at Raglan, Waterloo, and Beaufort, respectively, to fairly large and highly appreciative audiences.

£400 in money he considered they could not have done better than that. It was decided that only the sports officials wearing badges would be admitted inside the ring.

A steam pipe having been blown out at this Conso's No. 1 tribute party's claim at Poverty Point on Saturday, the men were not able to get below the Monday morning will be washed off to-day.

DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

It is the following cases can testify:—
Hopton, 14th April, 1902.
Dear Sir, I cannot find words to express my gratitude for the wonderful, special cure of Dr. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY in my severe case of Rheumatism. I was under medical treatment for twelve months, and was under medical treatment for the whole of the time and tried all the remedies that were recommended to me, but was unable to walk without the help of crutches, and was unable to get out of bed. I had some relief from the use of the medicine, but it was not until I had used your medicine that I was able to get out of bed and walk without crutches. I have now been cured of my Rheumatism, and I feel that I owe you a great deal of thanks for the cure. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

An advertisement is a paper man's marketable commodity, and it is quite as much so as a side of bacon, a pound of butter, or a ton of flour. No man can afford to give away the things he sells for a livelihood, and the man who does so in order to get business is generally in a bad way. Don't try to put the paper man in a bad way. But exercise a little human nature. Support him; he needs encouragement and support; but do it in the legitimate way. If the printer gets a few pounds worth of printing orders from you, he is not in a position to give you a pound's worth of advertising for nothing. And you have had value for the printing already. Go into a grocer's or draper's for 1/3 worth of goods, and the grocer's man or draper will not show in gratitude worth of something else that you may ask for. Try him; you don't believe us.

SUPPORT LOCAL INDUSTRY.

AND SUBSCRIBE TO THE LOCAL PAPER, THE RIPONSHIRE ADVOCATE.

We ask that our efforts for the district's good shall be recognised. An increased circulation means still greater usefulness on our part. When a neighbour or friend asks for the loan of the local paper, tell him or her that for the small sum of 3s per Quarter it is obtainable direct from the office regularly.

In addition to striking and impartial reports of all local meetings, an interesting 14-Column Supplement is presented to Regular Subscribers.

ORDERS FOR Plain and Ornamental JOB PRINTING

Executed with Neatness and Despatch.

Bear in mind that ALWAYS PAYS.

Business men should note that as the Local Paper is extensively read in the district, it therefore affords a splendid advertising medium.

It is notified for information that applicants for Mining Leases are required, within seven days previous to lodging the application, to insert in a newspaper published in the district where the land is situated, or in such newspaper; then in one published nearest the district, an advertisement of notice in the form marked "A" in the schedule relating to Mining Leases.

It is a real specific for Gout and Rheumatic Pains.

It removes the cause from the Blood and Bones.
The world-famed Blood Purifier and Restorer is warranted to clear the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scoury, Eczema, Ulcers, Bad Legs, Skin and Blood Diseases, Itching, Pimples, and Sores of all kinds, its effects are marvellous. It is the only real specific for Gout and Rheumatic Pains. For the Blood and Bones. As this Mixture is pleasant to the taste, and warranted to clear the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising, it is the most delicate constitution of either sex, from infancy to old age, the Proprietors solicit sufferers to give it a trial, to test its value. Thousands of wonderful cures have been effected by it, such as the following:—

Mr. James Balcombe writes:—"I suffered when in the Army from a severe case of Abscess of the Hospital, and was one of the worst cases known in the hospital, where I remained eight months, but when nothing more could be done for me, and I was discharged and sent home, I tried other doctors, but they could not stop the discharge, which was very painful. I was on my bed for several months, and I was in a very bad way. I had a slight skin disease, and was obliged to see a doctor, who told me it was Eczema. I was under his treatment some time, but it got no better. I then saw a friend of mine who had used your medicine, and he told me to try it. I bought a bottle, and I was cured in a few days. I am now perfectly well, and I can thank you for the cure. I have now been cured of my Rheumatism, and I feel that I owe you a great deal of thanks for the cure. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

YOU CAN AFFORD IT. Very few are too poor now-a-days to take their country paper, and it is false economy to try and get along without it. Hardly a week passes that something or other does not appear in its columns that will be of financial benefit to the subscriber, and by the end of the year he had made or saved or won twenty times the subscription paid for it. The city papers don't take the place of the country ones, though some people appear to think they do. The city papers are all right in their way, but they do not give you that in which you are most interested—your country news. You cannot learn from them when and where your country meetings are to be held, who are dying or who are marrying, who are moving in or who are moving out, court proceedings, who wants to buy or sell farm or land produce, in fact hundreds of things of which it might be of particular importance for you to know. If you can afford to take only one paper, by all means take the one that is published in the country or district where you live. It will cost you less, and thereby you will be assuring yourself and keeping the money in the district.

NEWSPAPER LAW. 1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary in writing, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions. 2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their newspapers, the publisher may continue to send them until arrears are paid. 3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their newspapers from the post-office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they settle their bills, and ordered the newspapers to be discontinued. 4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, the subscribers are responsible. 5. The court has decided that is refusing to take periodicals from the post-office or leaving them uncalled for, "prima facie evidence of intentional fraud." 6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.

A country paper kindly supplies this beautiful simile:—"You might as well try to amputate an elephant with a thimbleful of soap as attempt to do business and ignore advertising."

To our Readers and Patrons. THE PROSPERITY OF A DISTRICT DEPENDS chiefly upon the support and encouragement that is given by the people to local industry and commerce. Every venture is to a more or less extent speculative but each, whilst waiting for the success of the venture, is a source of support to the promoter, and it is necessary to achieve certain advantages to both sides. Therefore, Support Local Industry and Local Enterprise.

The law of exchange was never satisfactory in its working; thus it was that the custom of buying and selling, using a standard currency was introduced. One form of that currency known as "paper money," and of paper money useful, but not after, certain returns to the issuer support is necessary to achieve certain advantages to both sides. Therefore, Support Local Industry and Local Enterprise.

"The Riponshire Advocate" is the Advertising Medium for all Contracts, and notifications of the Shire of Ripon, and the ONLY NEWSPAPER That is Printed and Published within the boundaries of the Shire, and as the advocate of the interests and the welfare of this district it has a claim to considerably greater amount of support, has a greater scope for extended usefulness any other journal or newspaper within a radius of the Shire of Ripon.

The Circulation of the Riponshire Advocate is Steadily Increasing, and the Proprietor, recognizing the increased support in this direction, will use his utmost endeavors to merit and sustain the patronage accorded him by getting the latest possible Local and General News, and the most interesting and instructive information.

FARM DRAINAGE

The Only Practical Method of Permanently Improving Wet Lands.

Where water after rains stands for a long time in the furrows and slight depressions in the ground, and on lands where the shoes of the farmer, except in periods of drought, are habitually clogged with sticky mud, and the hoofs of animals as they sink into the same soil make a mess, sometimes holding water for days, sometimes holding water for weeks, the necessity for drainage of some kind is too clearly indicated to admit of any doubt. For the drainage of the soil conditions, wherever the lay of the land will permit, open surface drainage is often resorted to at first.

While such drains are useful in some cases in the matter of a permanent improvement of the soil they amount to but little and are liable to be the cause of impoverishment in the soil itself by carrying off fertilizing matter into the creeks and streams. Where the ground can be led off from the surface in the same clear line in which it descended from the lands, the soil receives no injury from its escape, but it is only under occasional peculiar conditions that this will occur.

This is so well understood that most cultivators that other methods have come into use. One formerly more common than at present, was to throw the wet land into high and wide ridges in the fall and leave it in that condition until spring. When cultivation is about to begin these ridges are further widened and flattened out, affording a series of rather wide spaces, much better fitted for cultivation, but with very undesirable process of water throughout the entire season. While such a practice will not draw fertility away from the soil, it conveys a considerable portion of it to no purpose and is otherwise objectionable in many respects.

The only real and practicable method of improving wet farm lands by which the condition is permanently changed for the better, says the agricultural editor of the New York World, is by the use of underground drains, for which tile is the most common and best material. Where these are placed at proper depths and in due distance apart, varying greatly according to the compactness of the soil to be drained, and with a slight fall toward their outlets, whatever elements of fertility the surface water may contain will be strained out with the excess of the roots of plants in its descent through the drains. Furthermore, the level of the ground surface sinks below the level of the drains, and the benefit of this form of drainage is realized by the soil above them becoming favorably changed in its general character and earlier and better fitted for crops.

Protecting Silos Against Frost and Rot. The general verdict, according to testimony received at the Wisconsin agricultural experiment station, is that freezing, so far as the silage is concerned, is more an inconvenience than a serious loss. When the frozen silage is mixed with the hands, and is apparently relished as well as if it had not been frozen. It is advised, however, that all types of cement silos be made frost proof, to prevent the cement from cleaving off, but with wood silos the structure required to prevent the silage and to protect the frame from weather appears to be sufficient to prevent any serious freezing during all except protracted and extreme cold weather.

The surest safeguard against rats, according to the authority quoted, appears to be covering the bottom of the silo with a layer of small stones, or gravel, before the cement is applied. When the cement is applied directly upon the ground the action of the acids soon softens it to such an extent as to permit the rats to penetrate it without difficulty. The rats usually enter by burrowing under the foundation walls. Their destructive effects result from the admission of air to the silo.

Petroleum and Coal Tar. Petroleum and coal tar are frequently recommended and used to render posts durable, but their value for this purpose is doubtful. Coal tar applied hot may be made to form an impervious casing, shutting out air and moisture, but of course, not preventing it from entering above. Bottled up in this manner it will promote decay. With different conditions it may prove a useful application, says Country Gentleman. With a brush apply it differently, being wholly opposite to the rain and air. Apply the petroleum by dipping the shingles in it in a tub of the oil, and allow a few hours for it to soak, and then lay them in the usual way. It may be applied last perfectly to the shingles after they are laid, using a coarse brush for the purpose, and it should be renewed once in seven or eight years. It affects the rain-water only for a few weeks. In applying it to the roof cover the points of the brush into the crevices between the shingles.

Things Told by Beekeepers. President Cooper, of Iowa, in an address before the North American Beekeepers' Association, emphasized the importance of the honey bee in its relations to agriculture. At a recent beekeepers' meeting the all query, "How far do bees fly for honey?" was also agitated. The general opinion favored a distance of at least three miles apart, though bees do not generally fly more than two miles in their pursuit of honey and often only 14 miles.

James Hodson expressed the opinion of the Michigan beekeepers' convention that "it is possible to breed a nonswarming strain of bees." He thinks that there were less than 100 swarms past to be able to have a stop swarming would be one of the greatest advances that beekeeping has ever made.

At the Missouri state beekeepers' convention the question, "Shall grades of honey be established by law?" was decided. The majority present did not think the plan practicable.

CHAMBERLAIN'S ALWAYS THE RESULT of a neglected cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will not cure catarrhs, but will cure colds and prevent that disagreeable croupy cough. This remedy not only relieves the irritation of the throat and lungs, but removes the cause of the disease. It leaves the system in a natural healthy condition. It always cures and cures quickly. J. IMPROVING WORNOUT SOILS

How This May Be Done With Commercial Fertilizers and Green Crops.

A Missourian, in a letter to Prairie Farmer, says that one way to help run down land so that profitable crops can be grown is by using commercial fertilizers. These, if properly applied, will often materially increase the growth and yield of the crops, but it is questionable if they add any appreciable permanent fertility to the soil. There is one way, however, by which the use of this class of fertilizers can be made an advantage, and that is by increasing the yield of the crops, a larger amount of feed is secured, and this affords an opportunity of making more manure, and the more animal manure that can be secured the better the chance for building up the soil.

Clover is one of the best materials that can be used to build up the soil, and wherever clover can be grown the land is not past redemption. But some soils will not grow clover. It is also devoid of vegetable matter that the clover plant will derive out, and in this case either of two plans can be followed. One is to use commercial fertilizers, and the other is to seed to rye and as soon as a reasonably good growth is secured plow under and sow buckwheat. It is not to be expected that land so poor that it will not grow clover will have sufficient available plant food to grow even a fair crop of rye, but the plowing in of even a light growth will supply some vegetable matter and generally sufficient to make a crop of buckwheat secure a fair growth.

One advantage in sowing buckwheat in summer is that it makes a quick shade in the soil, and this during the process of nitrification. The buckwheat can be plowed under early in the fall and rye sown again, and in the latter part of February or the first part of March clover can be sown over this and usually will stand, and if plowed under will afford a sufficient amount of plant food to grow a crop. Vegetable matter is necessary in the soil, and this growing and plowing under of green crops is one of the surest ways of securing it. Land that is not so badly run down but that it will grow good crops of clover can be built up with less cost, as clover can be sown with small grain and the first crop be out for hay and the second be plowed under as a fertilizer. In this way the cost of building up may be greatly reduced.

The Best Breed. No question is asked any oftener than "Which is the best breed?" The average poultry keeper—especially the beginner—has an ambitious yearning for a general purpose fowl. Long as its advent has been expected, and frequently as it has been announced, the perfect combination breed remains an unknown quantity. There are some breeds which are fit to lay eggs, and they do it. There are others that at almost any age make a toothsome delicacy, but to find a fowl that will at one and the same time suit the broiler, the roaster and the egg specialist is a little outside of nature. There are, however, breeds which, when properly handled, come near enough to the all around ideal fowl to meet the requirements of a large class. For the benefit of this class will be given the opinion of several authorities on this vexed question of best breed. The editor of Farm Poultry says:

The best breed to raise is one that is difficult to answer. Among the best breeds we rank the Langshans, Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes, but the Langshans are black feathered and dark skinned, hence less desirable for table use (to sell in market). Probably the best breed for all purposes fowl, as they are the best of poultry and are very large. For crosses Brown Leghens, male on Plymouth Rock females give brown or white Leghens, combined with great laying qualities.

J. K. Felch, after 80 years' experience with the various breeds, advises the selection of "Light Brahms, Leghorns, Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks as paying the best for extra care, for all practical purposes." A correspondent in the Country Home says: "The nearest general purpose fowls are the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes." An American Cultivator says: "Our American breeds, the Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes, are much alike in qualities and perhaps come nearer a general purpose fowl than any others."

The well known English authority, Tegetmeier, writes in a London exchange: "If both eggs and fowls are kept, Minorca hens may be desired. They will lay their first and second laying seasons in a tub of the oil, and allow a few hours for it to soak, and then lay them in the usual way. It may be applied last perfectly to the shingles after they are laid, using a coarse brush for the purpose, and it should be renewed once in seven or eight years. It affects the rain-water only for a few weeks. In applying it to the roof cover the points of the brush into the crevices between the shingles."

Relative Merits of Long and Short Oats. It has been shown conclusively that the short, plump oats like Welcomes, Clydesdales, etc., are less digestible than the long, thinner oats with thinner husks or palems. It is also a fact that the long oats, which weigh less than the others per bushel, have heavier kernels and are more nutritious than the shorter ones. The market, however, demands heavy oats. If, then, we raise oats for market, the Welcome class should be selected. If for our own stock, then the long, slender oats should be preferred, says The Rural New Yorker.

See Buzzings. Beekeeper Doollittle favors comb honey in the house apiary and extracted in out apiaries, leaving the honey all on the out apiaries till the season is over. Crinson clover, or scarlet clover, has been highly praised as a forage and honey plant. Fremont Hickman of the Ohio experiment station says that it does not succeed as far north as Ohio.

Beekeepers have generally settled down to the use of the 4 1/2 section. Dr. C. O. Miller, Marengo, Ill., is president of the North American Beekeepers' association for 1898; Frank Benten, Washington, is secretary. Some idea of the immense amount of labor involved in compiling the federal electoral rolls may be obtained from the fact that it is anticipated that fully 1,700,000 names will be registered in all the States.

Carrington Turf Club.

ANNUAL RACES.

The annual meeting of the Carrington Turf Club was held under very favorable circumstances on Easter Monday, although the weather during the afternoon was showery and inclined to be cold. The attendance was very good, the gate receipts amounting to £58. The racing on the whole was very interesting, and there was several of the races were close and exciting. Splendid entries had been received, and although the scratching pen was used, there were, for the most part, large fields to face the starter. Several slight accidents occurred. The rider of Venus, in the Trial Stakes, received a bad fall through the horse stumbling, and was a good deal shaken. An amateur rider was trying his equestrian abilities previous to the Cup being run, when the horse he was riding suddenly took off with him, the rider being unable to control his mount, the rider threw himself off and escaped with a few slight bruises. The principal race of the day, the Carrington Cup, was annexed by the Bunsford mare, Miss Fisher, two lengths separating her from the runner-up, a well bred gelding, named "There were several big makers in attendance, but the prices laid were either short or odds against, which were not at all tempting to the public. Throughout the day the Carrington Turf Club presented a most attractive and interesting scene. The Carrington Brass Band discoursed sweet strains of music under the baton of Band-leader, Mr. W. J. Douglas, who afforded considerable pleasure to lovers of music. Mounted Constable Stephen and Constable Rogers were in attendance, but the crowd was most orderly and well behaved. The publican's booth was in charge of Mr. J. Williams, and the refreshment booth, the whole of the stewards worked hard to ensure the success of the meeting. Cr. J. S. Douglas faithfully discharged his duties as judge. Mr. A. Rodda acted in his old capacity as starter. Mr. W. Martin rendered good service as clerk of course. Mr. V. W. Wood had charge of the scales, and carried out his duties with his usual promptness. Messrs Murray, Mark and McIvrae had charge of the gates. The majority of the stewards were present, and rendered valuable assistance in getting the events run off up to time. The following are the details of the racing:

A curious feature of the break up of the protracted and devastating drought in Australia, according to the London Daily Chronicle, was the number of miniature volcanic explosions in various parts of the Commonwealth. The ground had become so parched and dry that it cracked, and the fissures thus formed became the receptacles of heated water. When the long protracted drought of rain came at last the water met the hot air in these fissures, and the result was a series of small explosions, resembling those of steam engines, and causing much damage to property. Many farmers, hearing explosions and seeing columns of steamy stuff arising from the earth, wondered what new plague had come to afflict them, and whether they were out of the frying-pan into the fire. Is this meant for a joke?

The Irish Department of Agriculture, in an official circular, strongly advises breeders of cattle to dislodge their calves, when not over nine days old, by means of caustic potash. The directions of the department are to clip the hair from over the budding horn when the calf is from two to five days old, slightly moisten the end of the stick of potash, and rub the tip of each horn firmly for about a quarter of a minute. This should be done from two to four times, at intervals of five minutes. It is a little blood should be on the centre of the horn, only a very slight further rubbing will be necessary. It is advised that care should be taken to not round the sides of the horn, and not round the centre of it. The potash should be rolled in a stout paper, to prevent contact with the operator's fingers. From which it will be gathered that the Irish Department of Agriculture is more intelligent than the legal authorities in Victoria.

Snake Valley News.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Whit Mr. W. W. B. Blacksmith, of Skipton, was removing the shoes from a horse on the Carrington Racecourse on Easter Monday, the animal reared up and caught a projecting nail from the shoe in the calf of his leg, the result being that Mr. W. was received a very nasty cut, which was several inches in length. Mr. J. W. Harris, chemist, of Beaufort, bandaged the wound and advised the sufferer to seek medical aid and have the wound stitched.

Constable Stephen, of Snake Valley, arrested four men at Carrington on Tuesday afternoon on the charge of assault and battery. From particulars to hand it appears that about Mr. Jacob Skelton of Carrington, was coming into Snake Valley at a late hour of Monday night he was accosted on the road by four men who asked him for a man. Whilst feeling in his pockets for the money, while the other three waited in turning out, others waited themselves in turning out, others waited themselves in turning out, others waited themselves in turning out.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Whit Mr. W. W. B. Blacksmith, of Skipton, was removing the shoes from a horse on the Carrington Racecourse on Easter Monday, the animal reared up and caught a projecting nail from the shoe in the calf of his leg, the result being that Mr. W. was received a very nasty cut, which was several inches in length. Mr. J. W. Harris, chemist, of Beaufort, bandaged the wound and advised the sufferer to seek medical aid and have the wound stitched.

Constable Stephen, of Snake Valley, arrested four men at Carrington on Tuesday afternoon on the charge of assault and battery. From particulars to hand it appears that about Mr. Jacob Skelton of Carrington, was coming into Snake Valley at a late hour of Monday night he was accosted on the road by four men who asked him for a man. Whilst feeling in his pockets for the money, while the other three waited in turning out, others waited themselves in turning out, others waited themselves in turning out.

THE BRIDE'S WELL.

On what is locally called a Ramp, that is to say the refuse thrown out of a quarry, and left to decay or become covered with mud, was in a certain parish, a long white washed thatched cottage. It occupied a peculiar position, its back was against a steep oak wood, out of which shot up Scout fir, and the portion of ramp it occupied was of very old standing, and was a good way from that portion of the quarry on which workmen were engaged.
