

'Twixt Love and Gold. PART 10. A HIGHLY SENSATIONAL ROMANCE OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By J. Hammer Quail, Author of "The Cup Winners," "His Madeline," "Fenton Friars," &c., &c.

CHAPTER XIII Continued.

"What am I to do?" asked Wylla in a perplexed tone, as she handed the telegram to Lady Cameron. The message ran— "Come to London by first train. Matter affecting your money very urgent. Bewildered."

CHAPTER XIV.

Mr. Bexfield received a terribly indignant letter from Lord Kilkerran, informing him of the complete failure of their plans affecting Wylla, and of the way in which she had been forcibly carried off to Westleigh House, as Lord Kilkerran's ghostly outrage, as Lord Kilkerran termed it, in connection with the subject of the matter he decided that the best course for him would be to invest himself in the matter of the shares of the company and had allowed his name to be used in connection with the matter.

know where the money is as well as I do. I know that you have defrauded me of that money by a foul and cruel trick, but I'll shake you, cur that you are. Take that."

CHAPTER XV.

At an early hour in the morning after her arrival in London from the North Wylla repaired to Mr. Bexfield's office to ascertain the nature of the business about which he wanted him as she naturally assumed that he would be harsh and unkind, but remember not a word about this to a soul, not a word.

Mr. Bexfield looked Lord Kilkerran's scornful words and his attack upon her with a determination that he had done as a declaration of war, and he would not be drawn back from his position for all. With this thought upon his mind he went to the office of Westleigh House was a mere incident. Wylla was still free and she still had her money. She was an attempt to sell her to him so she would try again. As far as he would try again. As far as he would try again. As far as he would try again.

Mr. Bexfield was sitting at his desk in his private office, looking over some letters which were ready for despatch by the night train when Mr. Simon Bingley, a well-known stock and share broker, entered the room. Mr. Bexfield should be shown that Mr. Bingley, accompanied by a young man of about twenty-five entered the room.

"I tell you plainly you have swindled me. It has been plot and I have been the victim of it," Lord Kilkerran said in a loud and excited manner. "Oh come, come, that is unreasonable. You had a magnificent chance to gain her consent to be married—well, you ought not to blame me," said Bexfield.

MARVELLOUS CURES MADE BY RADIUM.

The discovery of radium which has already been fully described in our columns, created a furor of interest and astonishment; but this mysterious metal of wonderful and almost inexhaustible power has now caused scientists to view it with awe. At first radium was treated only as a new toy possessed of great interest, and peculiarities of great profit. Now but of little material value. This view has been changed, and the metal is displaying new and useful powers with every step in its development.

SHORTENS LIST OF INCURABLE MALADIES.

There are men who affirm that radium eventually will cause a general revolution in surgery and medicine; that it will cure maladies now regarded as incurable; that, in fact, this yellow atom, so insignificant in appearance eventually will prove one of the greatest boons to all mankind that ever was discovered.

At the Middlesex Hospital in London two cases of lupus are under treatment, by means of radio-activity—that subtle, imperceptible emission of sparks that goes on continuously without affecting any change in the metal itself. The progress in each case has been reported, reports the hospital authorities, "but it is too early to predict a full and complete cure."

BURNS OUT DISEASED TISSUES.

In such operations the radium used is enclosed in a case, which in appearance is compared to a pepper-grinder contrivance usually seen on the tables of French restaurants. At one end is a small glass dish, behind which a few sparks of radium may be discerned. This end is applied to the affected parts, and the rays, which fly off at the rate of eight or ten million per second, penetrate the glass, light or a second, penetrate the glass, and eat into the flesh. The result requires a considerable time to heal—at times several months.

SIGHT RESTORED BY ITS USE.

Even more remarkable than these are the cures attributed to a Russian scientist, Professor Lunden. It is claimed that by the application and use of radium he has restored sight to two blind boys. They were 11 and 13 years old, and had been blind since their first year. They were taken into a dark room where the treatment was given. A tube containing radium was held near their forehead and eyes. At the same time an outline of familiar objects was thrown on a screen illuminated by radium. By associating the pictures with articles known through sense of touch, the boys were able to recognise a number of articles. It is affirmed now that they have learned the Russian alphabet.

TRIED IN MANY ILLS.

Nasal troubles have been treated by small tubes containing radium, which are inserted in the nostrils. It has been used in cases of persistent neuralgia. It has destroyed the bacilli of typhoid, cholera and bacillary tharax. It is said to be as potent to kill as to cure.

METAL'S VAGARIES WORK WONDERS.

There is, in short, no end to the vagaries and wonder-working effects of the metal. The scarcity and dearth of radium retards a more general research into its possibilities. At present it is sold in Germany at $8 a milligramme. At this rate one pound of it, if such quantity were obtainable, would cost over $200,000. It is announced however that a company has been formed to extract the element from a great deposit of uranium ore in Grand County, Utah, United States of America.

Before purchasing a thermometer, the instrument should be tested by inverting it and allowing the mercury to fall to the end of the tube in a solid stick. If it separates into small columns the tube contains air, and will not register accurately.

CRIMES PREVENTED AND DISCOVERED BY DREAMS.

Many years ago at Holytown, a butcher had on a certain day to go to a neighbouring town to purchase cattle. A few nights previous to his setting out on his journey he dreamed that he was stopped at a certain point on the road by two men in blue clothes, and there murdered for the money he carried. He mentioned the dream to his wife, whose appreciation—or want of it—manifested itself in a laugh.

THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY.

The most interesting and vital portion of Russia's great 4,000-mile railway is the steam ferry across Lake Baikal, in Central Siberia. The lake has an extent of over 13,000 square miles, and is more than twice as wide as the English Channel. In places it has never been plumbled. It is surrounded by some of the hardest mountains which a railway engineer could encounter.

The official plan of the Trans-Siberian railway includes a railway round the southern end of the lake, but this is at present unfinished. To link the two ends with a steam ferry which would be able to take the ice that covers the lake from the middle of December to the end of May was suggested by the excellence of the "Yermak" ice-breaker of the Baltic.

JAPANESE HEROISM.

In the semi-historical legends of ancient Japan a story is told that a daimio, or prince, was sorely pressed in battle, with some 2000 surviving followers, every man of them a member of the stanch, brave, old samurai, (the fighting men of Japan).

"FOLLOW ME!"

Down along the ranks the order was repeated. A few moments later the daimio leaped over the cliff and went to instant death. Before his body had struck the rocks below hundreds more of his men were in the air. Within a few seconds the last man of the command was on his way to death. Not one had stopped to question the order. It was a command, and that was all there was to be said. Such instant obedience was sprung from the calmness that induced by the good-nature induced by the "jū-jitsu" students by "jū-jitsu" instructors.

THE EMPIRE OF KOREA.

The Empire of Korea, which is the position of a nut between a hammer and an anvil, possesses an army, but, though the inhabitants of this Hermit Kingdom number only thirteen millions, the army consists of a normal ten thousand militiamen who, although their younger officers are not being instructed by Japanese, artillery possesses eighteen guns, of which six are mounted in forts, six are field guns, and six are mounted in batteries. In addition the Korean Government last September ordered six field guns in Japan, and four field guns and eight Maxim guns in England. The cavalry consists of one hundred and fifty more or less mounted men, and the navy of an old merchant vessel, armed with eight guns, which the Koreans bought of Japan last April. On the whole, though it is the bone of contention between the two great Powers, Korea has perhaps, acted wisely in deciding to remain neutral.

THE EMPIRE OF KOREA.

Curious ceremonies are witnessed in Siam when one of the sacred white elephants die. It is given a funeral grander than that accorded to princes of Royal blood. Buddhist priests officiate, and thousands of devout Siamese men and women follow the deceased animal to the grave with offerings representing some thousands of pounds are buried with the elephant.

There are few papers in Holland. A tract of public land containing 5,000 acres is divided into six model farms, to one of which the person applying for public relief is sent. Here he is taught agriculture, and is subsequently permitted to rent a small farm for himself. Holland has also a forged labour colony, where vagrants are sent to do farm and other work, whether they like it or not.

A PIG IN A POTATO FIELD.

A farmer was greatly annoyed by his neighbour's pig getting into his potato field and harvesting on his own account. Whenever he drove his aggressor out he was forced to lay down a parcel of the fence, as bacon in the conscious state is always careful never to betray the place where it enters a bonanza by going out there, unless he is very hard pressed by dogs. The farmer had diligently searched for a defect in the fence, but failed to find one where the pig could get in. He concluded to watch and see the satisfaction of seeing the thief enter the end of a crooked, hollow log, which made a part of the fence, one end being in his field, and one in that of his neighbour. After driving the burglar out, he changed the position of the log, so that both ends were in his field, and he soon had the pig watch the result. Scarcely the pig came along and went through the log, as usual, but upon searching for potatoes he found only pasture grass, and after some little delay he seemed to arrive at the conclusion that he had not gone through the log at all, so he went through again, and upon emerging into the pasture field, seemed more mystified than ever, but after a more protracted search for potatoes he never before seemed to conclude that he had not really gone through the log, so he went again and out into the pasture field; but this time he stood still as a statue for about half a minute, and slowly the burglar's eyes began to stare out of his head, and with two or three tremendous sniffs he set off at the top of his speed for the house of his owner and never afterwards could be induced to approach that part of the pasture field.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Berlin has 25,769 cellars inhabited by human beings. Monday is the favourite day for committing suicide. There are no poor-houses in Serbia. Even the poorest people own property. The population of Ireland, which, some fifty years ago, was over 8,000,000, is now less than 4,500,000. Australia has 62,000 square miles of coal-bearing land in the eastern portion of the country. Cremation is on the increase in Germany. Last year 861 persons were cremated—an excess of 200 over the previous year. The most thickly populated island in the world is Malta, which has 1,360 people to the square mile. Barbados has 1,054 people to the square mile.

UPPER GOULBURN.

When a young woman of the Philippines marries, her husband's name is added to her maiden name. If she becomes a widow, the husband's name is discarded. Only one-third of the world's population use bread as a daily article of food. Nearly one-half of the people of the world subsist chiefly on rice. The fish-hooks used to-day are precisely the same form as those of two thousand years ago. The difference is in the material; then, they were made of bronze, now they are of steel. The oldest building in the world that has been uninterruptedly used for church purposes is St. Martin's Cathedral at Canterbury. The building was originally erected for a church, and has been regularly used as a place of religious gatherings for more than 1,500 years. Recent experiments in France have shown that the yellow and green colours of the silk spun by certain silkworms are due to colouring matter derived from the food and passed through the blood of the spinners. By impregnating leaves with artificial colours the experiments caused some species of silkworms to produce silk of bright orange-yellow and fine rose hues. In the forests of Central India a tree has recently been discovered which has most curious characteristics. The leaves of the tree are of a highly sensitive nature, and so full of electricity, that any person who touches one of them receives an electric shock. It has a very singular effect upon a magnetic needle, and will influence it at a distance of even 70ft. The electrical strength of the tree varies according to the time of day, being strongest at mid-day, and weaker at mid-night. In wet weather its power disappears altogether. Birds and insects never approach it. The Empire of Korea, which is the position of a nut between a hammer and an anvil, possesses an army, but, though the inhabitants of this Hermit Kingdom number only thirteen millions, the army consists of a normal ten thousand militiamen who, although their younger officers are not being instructed by Japanese, artillery possesses eighteen guns, of which six are mounted in forts, six are field guns, and six are mounted in batteries. In addition the Korean Government last September ordered six field guns in Japan, and four field guns and eight Maxim guns in England. The cavalry consists of one hundred and fifty more or less mounted men, and the navy of an old merchant vessel, armed with eight guns, which the Koreans bought of Japan last April. On the whole, though it is the bone of contention between the two great Powers, Korea has perhaps, acted wisely in deciding to remain neutral.

Beaufort Warden's Court.

Thursday, 2nd June, 1904. (Before Warden H. M. Murphy.) James Guthrie applied to have the lease known as the Sons of Freedom Extended Company, Reglan, declared void.

At the outset Mr. Gill contended that counsel could not appear for any party unless represented. Mr. Young could not appear for two parties. The defendant companies were unrepresented.

Mr. Young then elected to appear for the Extended Company, and claimed the privilege of dealing with the business of the Central Company.

Mr. Gill said the lease was granted to the Extended Company on 1st July, 1901, the rent being 4s. 2s. 17s. and the rent 2s. 17s. 6d. per annum, payable half-yearly.

The labor clause set forth that the company were to employ 6 able and competent miners for the first 6 months, and not less than 18 afterwards.

The extended claim had been abandoned 16 months ago, and the plant had been sold piecemeal. During that time the land had been absolutely vacant.

The original leaseholder, but the lease was issued to the Extended Company. Subsequently the ground was worked by tributors. On 26th May the applicant had visited the Mines Department in Melbourne, and could not trace any transfers from the Extended Company.

The Central Company had no right to work the ground till they got the authority from the Minister of Mines. James Guthrie deposed that he knew the ground, and had often been over it. The lease was issued in 1901, and the ground was taken up to work the Sons of Freedom lease.

The sinking was about 150 or 160 feet. With a co-operative party £500 would go a long way. He would deny that any work was being done on the surface, but could not say anything about below.

There were an old boiler and a whin on the lease, but he did not consider they were machinery. James Grant deposed that he knew the ground all his life, and had been over it frequently. Part of the lease was scrub country.

There was no sign of any work going on the lease, and it was about 16 or 17 months since any work had been done on the lease—since the Extended Company ceased operations. The Extended plant was sold piecemeal and all that remained of it was an old boiler and a whin.

He was not aware of the underground workings, as he was never down below. The tributors could not make the claim pay. To Mr. Young the lease was granted on 1st July, 1901, to the Extended Company. The labor covenant stipulated that from 6 to 18 men were to be employed.

There were 50 men being employed. Later on the claim was let on tribute, and afterwards was sold to the Central Company. The tributors gave it up because they could not make it pay.

On 20th October, 1903, the company obtained a license, and authority to transfer from the Government. The transfer was effected on 7th January, 1904. The original lease, in the name of the Sons of Freedom, had been found out while the lease was being taken to transfer the lease.

Owing to the loss of the lease the transferee had been hung up ever since. The company had put a reef drive through the Extended ground, and had done a lot of work below. The Central shaft was in a splendid position to work the ground, and men were working in it.

Joseph Skewes, mining manager of the Sons of Freedom Central mine, deposed that the Central shaft was about 1000 feet from the Extended boundary. The machinery was powerful enough to sink the Extended ground, and they had no trouble with the water.

£500 would be sufficient to sink a shaft. They had reached the Extended boundary about 12 months ago, and were driving a reef drive from the surface. They had stopped operations till the transfer was obtained on January 7th, 1904. Several drives had been put in the Extended lease. Only a prospect drive was being put in now.

Could not say how long they intended to work the ground. James Henderson, chairman and manager of the Sons of Freedom Central Co., deposed that the Extended lease had been purchased by the Central for £100 about six months ago. The Central Company were in a position to work the ground, and had put a reef drive right into it.

They could work it for thousands of feet. There was a good stream of water coming from the Extended ground, which was being drained. The Central Company were in a sound financial position, having paid 17s. per share in dividends.

This concluded the evidence, and the Warden said he would forward his recommendation to the Minister in the usual way, copies of which would be forwarded to those interested.

THOSE DIRTY GUTTERS.

From Dr. Badie, health officer, reporting seven cases of typhoid fever in Beaufort for the month. Received.—From the secretary Public Health Department, asking for a report from the office of health for the district on the condition of the premises and of the gutters, food, and water supply in connection with 11 cases of typhoid fever reported from Beaufort. Special reference should be made to the probable source of outbreak, and measures adopted to render innocuous. Letter to be forwarded to the health officer.

THE ABOVE-EXTRACT IS TAKEN FROM THE REPORT OF THE RIPONSHIRE COUNCIL MEETING OF THE 6TH INST.

Indulgence for sufficient space in which to bring it prominently before the notice of the ratepayers generally, and the representatives of the North riding in particular. On the same day we have in local health officer's report several private promises about the township, and it strikes us that whilst the North riding members are giving this matter their consideration, it would be opportune to ask them to also consider the advisability of putting their own houses in order. I refer particularly to "those dirty gutters" that you believe I am right in saying that not one of the occupants of the dirty premises referred to in the report have been victims to typhoid, whilst I know that two of the cases (which came particularly under the writer's notice), were distinctly traceable to the said dirty gutters, and in both cases the disease contracted by the occupant of the town. We are told that there are not sufficient funds available to make new drains. If this is so, does it not seem a farce to send 10 per cent. of the shire revenue away in charitable votes. Should not charity begin at home? Prevention is surely better than cure. If the present revenue is not sufficient for the township's needs, cannot the rate be raised for a year or so until such time as our town is cleaned up, and one can venture out without fear of contracting the fell disease of typhoid. Failing this, will the council adopt the suggestion to have a number of cheap calico signs printed (large black letters preferred), and stuck up along the routes of the drains that wander about our principal streets, bearing the device, "This is a fever spot?" Then the unwary would be warned of the danger of inhaling a breath anywhere between the railway station and the State school, and the responsibility would be shifted from the shoulders of the North riding members. Thanking you, Sir,—Yours, &c., E. H. MENZIES, Beaufort, 8th June, 1904.

That there is something powerfully convincing about our had of doing business. ARE YOU ONE OF PAYNE'S CUSTOMERS? If not, we respectfully ask for your patronage, and if afterwards you do not think we are worthy of it, we are perfectly willing to lose it.

Whatever is done here is done properly. Whatever we sell you is "Right" in the full sense of that word.

Give your orders for JOB PRINTING to the newspaper in your district, because it prints thousands of reports and notices for which it receives no payment whatever. It is always spending its time and money to benefit and improve the prospects of the place through which it circulates. It gives you value in return for your printing.

An advertisement in a paper man's marketable commodity, and it is quite as much so as a side of bacon, a pound of butter, or a ton of flour. No man can afford to give away the things he sells for a livelihood, and the man who does so in order to get business is generally in a bad way. Don't try to put the paper man "in a bad way." But exercise a little human nature. Support him; he needs encouragement and support; but do it in the legitimate way. If the printer gets a few pounds worth of printing orders from you, he is not in a position to give you a pound's worth of advertising for nothing. And you have had value for the printing already. Go into a grocer's or draper's for 15 worth of goods, and the grocer's man or draper will not throw in gratis 11 worth of something else that you may ask for. Try him; you don't believe us.

A Safe Remedy for all Skin and Blood Diseases.
If you suffer from any disease in any part of the Blood, from whatever cause arising, you should test the value of Clarke's Blood Mixture, the world-famous Blood Purifier and Restorer. This medicine has 40 years' reputation, and is today more popular than ever, the reason of this being undoubtedly because this remedy cures every blood disease it professes to do—It cures skin and blood diseases permanently.

Clarke's Blood Mixture
IS THE FINEST BLOOD PURIFIER EVER DISCOVERED.

It is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For SCROFULA, BAD LEGS, BLOTCHES, ECZEMA, BLACKHEADS, PIMPLES, RINGBORN, ULCERS, SKIN AND BLOOD DISEASES, OF ALL KINDS, IT IS A SAFE AND PERMANENT REMEDY.

It is the only safe specific for Gout and Rheumatic Pains, for it removes the cause from the Blood and Bones.

NOTICE.—This mixture is pleasant to the taste and warranted free from anything injurious to the most delicate constitution of either sex, from infancy to old age, and the Proprietors solicit sufferers to give it a trial to test its value. Thousands of wonderful cures have been effected by it.

TRIED MANY THINGS WITHOUT BENEFIT UNTIL I TOOK CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE.
Mr F. E. Lewis, 48 Bridge Street, Row, Chester, writes:—"I feel it my duty to inform you of the great benefit to my health I have received through taking your famous 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' I have been a sufferer from eczema and an irritating skin trouble since the age of thirteen. While an out-patient at one of the big London hospitals a doctor informed me that my disease was the result of looking after foreign horses. I have had as many as thirty horses under my care, and I am now completely cured, and suffering and being discharged for several years. I am able to follow my employment, and am very pleased to think there is such a valuable remedy obtainable for such a little trouble. I should be pleased to answer any inquiries concerning my case."—Oct. 17, 1903.

ANOTHER PERMANENT CURE OF BAD LEGS AND ABSCESSSES.
Mr James Waring, of Clay Coton Lodge, near Rugby, writes:—"I feel it my duty to inform you that I wish to tell you of the benefit I have derived from taking 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' For a long time I suffered with bad legs, and abscesses. I was under a doctor for five months, and not getting much better, I went as an out-patient to the best hospital for skin diseases. The doctor then told me to stop taking medicine, and to get some cod liver oil, and to get inside before he could do anything for me. I went in and stayed for thirteen weeks, and after undergoing two operations I got a little better. Before I had been out of hospital a week, before I was worse than ever, so my wife told me to try 'Clarke's Blood Mixture.' I did so, and after taking five bottles and using four tins of your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' I was completely cured. I have had twelve months to see if my legs broke out again, but, thank God, they have not. I have ever been in my life. You can make what ever you like of this letter."—Oct. 17, 1903.

IMPURETIES IN THE BLOOD.—"We have seen hosts of letters from all sorts and conditions of people, in which the writers acknowledge the benefit they have received from Clarke's Blood Mixture, which as a curative agent cannot be too highly estimated, since it cleanses and clears the blood from all impurities, and restores it to its normal condition. This is a good testimony from the Family Doctor, the popular medical weekly, which goes on further to say:—"It is certainly the finest blood purifier that science and skill have brought to light, and we can write the utmost confidence recommend it to our subscribers and the public generally."

Sold by all Chemists and Patent Medicine Vendors throughout the World.

Ask for Clarke's Blood Mixture, and beware of worthless imitations and substitutes.

RE MINING LEASES.
It is notified for general information that applicants for Mining Leases are required, within seven days previous to lodging the application, to insert in a newspaper published in the district where the land is situated, or if no such newspaper, then in one published nearest the district, an advertisement or notice in the form marked "A" in the schedule relating to Mining Leases.

Justices' Fixtures.
The local J.P.'s have arranged to attend the Beaufort Courts of Petty Sessions as under:—Second Tuesday, Messrs F. Egges, J. R. Witherspoon, and Rear-Admiral Bridges. Fourth Tuesday, Messrs M. Flynn, G. Topper, and T. Egges.

THROAT AFFECTION AND HOARSENESS.
All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be greatly surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Trochoc." These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable chemists in this country. People troubled with throat and chest affections, such as whooping cough, croup, and bronchitis, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic Affections, and that the words "Brown's Bronchial Trochoc" are on the Government Stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN L. BROWN & SONS, London, U.S. European Depot, 35, Farringdon Road, London, England.

Business man—"You remember that 'ad.' I had in your paper, and took out two months ago? Well, I want to have it put back again." Editor—"Why, I thought you said no one noticed it while it was in." Business man (humbly)—"They didn't seem to until I took it out." The mere fact of your advertising lets people know you are still in business; also that your business is sufficiently important to stand advertising. If you are in business you cannot afford to do without advertising, as it is too much of an admission to the world at large. Extract from an interview with a man who has profited by newspaper advertising. The greatest aid you can give your newspaper is your job printing; if you do not feel able to run an advertisement, surely you can afford to give the newspaper your cards, ledgers, bill-headers, letter-headers, envelopes, and all business printing to execute. The newspaper man needs it, and it helps him to pay his printers for setting up your thousand and one free notices he gives you and your town; but don't give it to the printer or job printer office that can give you no such returns, and is spending neither time, money, nor brains in helping you to build up your town. The time may come when a newspaper can live simply upon the revenue derived from advertising and subscriptions, but no ordinary newspaper in any ordinary town can exist without the auxiliary support derived from job printing. Therefore, if you want a good newspaper—one that can still further help you and your town—give it your job printing.

YOU CAN AFFORD IT.
Very few are too poor now-a-days to take their country paper, and it is false economy to try and get along without it. Hardly a week passes that something or other does not appear in its columns that will be of financial benefit to the subscriber, and by the end of the year he had made or saved or won twenty times the subscription paid for it. The city papers don't take the place of the country ones, though some people appear to think they do. The city papers are all right in their way, but they do not give you that in which you are most interested—your country news. You cannot learn from them when and where your country meetings are to be held, who are dying or who are marrying, who are moving in or who are moving out, court proceedings, who wants to buy or sell farm or land produce, in fact hundreds of things of which it might be of particular importance for you to know. If you can afford to take only one paper, by all means take the one that is published in the country or district where you live. It will cost you less, and thereby you will be assisting yourself and keeping the money in the district.

NEWSPAPER LAW.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, in writing, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their newspapers from the post-office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they settle their bills, and ordered the newspapers to be discontinued.
3. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, the subscribers are responsible.
4. The court has decided that it is refusing to take periodicals from the post-office or leaving them uncollected for "prima facie evidence of intentional fraud."
5. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.
6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held in law to be a subscriber.

HINTS TO FRIENDLY READERS
You want to see the local paper a successful institution.
Talk about it wherever you go.
Mention it to the tradespeople with whom you do business.
If they don't advertise in it, try and induce them to do so.
If you are induced to buy anything from what you have read in its advertising columns mention the fact to the tradesman.
Don't lend your paper to any person who can afford to become a subscriber but is too mean to support local enterprise.
A country paper kindly supplies this beautiful simile:—"You might as well try to shampoo an elephant with a thimbleful of soap as attempt to do business and ignore advertising."

FLORIDE.—FOR BERT TRENK AND BEATH—A few drops of the Liquid "Floride" sprinkled on a wet tooth-brush produces a pleasant lather, which thoroughly cleanses the teeth from all parasites or impurities, hardens the gums, prevents tartar, stops decay, and gives the teeth a peculiar pearly-whiteness, and a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth or tobacco smoke. "The Fragrant Floride," being composed in part of Honey and sweet gum, is delicious to the taste, and the greatest toilet discovery of the age. Of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale Depot: 35 Farringdon Road, London, England.

To our Readers and Patrons.
THE PROSPERITY OF A DISTRICT DEPENDS chiefly upon the support and co-operation of its inhabitants. A standard currency is introduced. One form of that currency known as "paper money," and of paper money there is more than one kind. All kinds are useful, but not every kind retains its original value. The "paper" money most valuable is a newspaper proprietor is that which is sold him by "Subscribers and Advertisers" and he will do his utmost to enable him to be good share of it.

SOME INTERESTING INVESTIGATIONS.

"Harper's Magazine" has a very interesting article from the pen of Ray Stannard Baker. It deals with the researches of Professor Nobbe as to the growth of plants. Says the writer: "Tharant, in Saxony, Professor Nobbe has carried out his investigations for over thirty years, in a little village, set picturesquely among the Saxon Hills, some half hour's ride by railroad from the city of Dresden. Here is located the Forest Academy of the kingdom, with which Professor Nobbe is prominently connected, and here also is the agricultural experiment station of which he is the director. He has been for more than forty years the editor of one of the most important scientific publications in Germany, the 'Zeitschrift für Landwirtschaftliche Biologie,' and is chairman of the Imperial Society of Agricultural Station Directors, and has been the recipient of many honours. But the greatest of all his work is his remarkable discovery of a method for inoculating the soil with bacteria to make it fertile, and this method has been widely adopted. In times past, culture devoted of soil attention largely to studying the composition of various kinds of soil, to the improvement of fertilizers, and in suggesting new systems of drainage and water supply. Professor Nobbe has gone a step further in advance, declaring that plants will grow under fair conditions, just as well without soil as with soil. At first glance this may seem strange enough, but when you see the results, you will be struck by the accuracy of his theory. He has found that ten inches of soil, growing in clean water without a sign of soil of any description, they stand in rows just back of the Forest Academy and near Professor Nobbe's greenhouse. Each tree is suspended in a large glass jar containing a solution of potash, phosphorus, and other elements. There is one of these cylinders for each section of the machine, each cylinder being capable of 'sizing' 2,000 to 3,000 plants per day. After leaving the automatic feeders the ground is mixed with 'puddle' a thick muddy water, which flows out of the washing pans, clear water being added constantly. This mixture then flows into a revolving cylinder covered with perforated steel plates having holes 1 1/2 in. in diameter, all lumps larger than the holes passing out at the end of the cylinder, and being carried by a water-driven pan conveyor to crushing rolls for further treatment. This mixture is carried around the holes of the screen, and is then passed to the outside, and the lighter matter flows out at a discharge in the inner rim; hence it goes through a screen, and is finally carried away by an endless chain of buckets to the waste heap. All the pans are fitted with patent extractors, by means of which the diamonds deposited are removed every two hours. The entire gear is driven by means of three 225-volt electric motors. Suitable motors have been installed at various points, and the drives so arranged that one motor drives two pans. The coarse rolls and the fine rolls are also arranged to be driven by separate motors. The various conveyers, screening cylinders, etc., are treated there is obtained what is called concentrated deposits or 'concentrate.' This concentrate is sent in covered trucks to what is known as the 'pulsators,' where it is divided into various sizes by passing through a cylinder covered with steel sieving with holes 1-16 in. to 1/2 in. in diameter. Through these five sizes of the pulsators the full and pass through small hoppers located above mechanical sorters called 'greasers,' or grease tables.

TREES AND MOISTURE.

A single oak of good size is said to lift 123 tons of water during the months it is in leaf. This moisture is evaporated, and rises to form rain clouds. All the trees are busy doing the same thing, and the rank ferns and mosses and deep mould of the forest depths, acting as reservoirs for the rain which falls upon them, in their turn feed the springs and brooks. From this estimate of the labour of a single oak we can gain some idea of that immense force which the forests exert in equalising the evaporating and precipitation and preventing periods of inundation and drought.

A GOOD PARLOUR GAME.

A measuring contest makes a good game for an evening party. Procure an accurate yard stick, and if possible a reeled tape-line. Then if you do not wish the competition to be severe, fasten a foot-rule upon the wall, so that every one can see it. Next hand sheets of paper and pencils to the contestants.

Begin with the longer distances, and do not divide inches with these. If the door, for instance, is 84 1/2 inches high, call it 85; if 84 1/4 call it 84. As the different objects are called out, each contestant judges its height or length, as the case may be, and jots it down upon a slip of paper. Ask for the length of the room, the width, the height, the height of another man. On, on, all of which will be reckoned in feet or inches, according as one is accustomed, but must be put down in inches, for convenience, on the paper.

Coming to smaller objects it will be well to allow fractions of an inch to be included, at least quarters so that a bottle may be estimated to be 8 1/4 inches high, and a book 5 1/2. The following list of objects is merely suggestive: A teapot. A candle in a candlestick. A bottle. Different sized books. A glass and a tumbler. A cup. A lead pencil. The diameter of a plate. A tumbler. A spoon. A knife. A match. A top hat.

When all the answers are written down and the slips signed and collected, begin the measuring. Two, at least, in the above-named list will prove very misleading—namely the teapot and the top hat. Even simpler objects, such as the match and lead pencil, will cause considerable trouble, and the great difference in some of these guesses will give great amusement.

VERSES FOR RECITATION.

Johnny made a lot of snowballs. Made them nice and round and hard. Then upon a box he piled them in a corner of the yard. Saying: 'Wait Willie Watkins comes around this way again—Oh, I'll make him sorry! He told teacher on me then!' Through the night they lay there freezing. They became as hard as rocks; In the morning Willie Watkins chanced to see them on the box Johnny had not risen early, Johnny was a sleepy-head; Willie Watkins took the snowballs While their maker lay in bed.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Six hard boiled eggs, one raw egg and half, and a handful of parsley, three cups of broth in which a raw egg has been beaten. Cut the egg into thick slices, dip each slice in the beaten egg, and roll in breadcrumbs which should be seasoned with pepper, salt and parsley. Fry in the butter until a light brown, turn them from the front over them boiling hot, and send to table.

SIR HIRAM MAXIM'S LATEST.

It is stated that Sir Hiram Maxim is to furnish the scientific novelty of the year. He is working at it in strict secrecy at his house in the London suburb of Chelsea, where the new invention has been constructed and tested in his front garden. The idea embodies the aerial railway and airship principles. First there is a mighty tripod of steel as high as a house. From this rises a steel column half as high again. The upright is the bases of a framework like the inverted mechanism of an enormous umbrella. From the upper and outer extremities of the 'ribs' depend rods of steel, to which are attached the airships. The whole framework revolves at a prodigious pace around the standard and the boats swinging outward suggests the strangest sensations for passengers. The boats themselves have torpedo-shaped prows. The whole structure is to be removed piecemeal to the Crystal Palace, and there set up as the chief open-air attraction of the summer. The price paid by the Palace Company is, it is understood locally, £10,000. Hundreds of people gather daily in the streets to catch from various vantage grounds, a glimpse of the monster in full blast.

NOT MUCH GOOD TO TAKE.

A little boy was told at Sunday-school that when he died he would leave his body on earth. After returning home he was much troubled in regard to it, and questioned his parents. His mother explained by saying: 'You will take all the good with you and leave all that is naughty here below.' The boy thought for a minute, then he looked up and said: 'Well, I'll be awfully thin when I die.'

to set free a prisoner. "Isaiah!" cried Ludovico, turning pale with rage.

"Nevertheless," resumed Von Brunt, "our work must not be done. We demand the person of—"

"I have him not," said the duke, speaking before his time.

"Have not whom?"

"That dog of a Vendome. You will have to seek elsewhere for him."

"Ah, my lord duke, you anticipate too much," replied the stout Saxon, with a smile.

"It is not Orlando Vendome that we are now in search of. I think, however, that you have been expecting some slight return from the person of that gallant champion. Is it not so?"

"It matters not what I have expected," answered Manfred, clenching nervously at his sword-hilt.

"Never mind," continued Von Brunt. "When you hear from Vendome, the message will come from an open door."

"But another person is meant. We demand of you Rosabel of Bergamo."

"Death and perdition," yelled the duke, stamping his foot till the very walls rang.

"I am I, and I shall not be called the duke in my outrageous intrusion! De Castro, call in my guard! Bid my men-at-arms attend me here. I'll teach these dogs a lesson!"

"Easy, my lord duke," said the Saxon, unsheathing his sword as he spoke.

"You see we have the advantage here. You cannot move, save at our pleasure."

"Frederic Von Brunt speaks truly," spoke another of the knights, advancing from his companions.

"Alfonso of Modena, is it you?"

"Yes, Manfred," replied the count.

"Then," cried the duke, moving back a step, "I perceive you are the whole of you."

"Down, down, base men—down upon your knees! You are in the presence of the Pope!"

"Upon being thus introduced, John XVII. approached and spread out his arms towards the intruding knights.

"Not now," said Von Brunt, coolly waving the pontiff back.

"The presence of the Pope cannot move, save at our pleasure."

"As John moved slowly away, the duke turned and whispered to one of his attendants, who immediately afterwards slipped off his side door."

"My lord duke," he said, "I once more demand of you the princess Rosabel. If you will, I shall send for her."

"Wait—wait," replied Manfred. "You shall have your answer soon enough."

"Just then the attendant, who had gone to fetch the princess, returned, pale and trembling.

"By the Lord of Lords," gasped Manfred, clenching his fists, and stamping upon the floor.

"This is some base conspiracy! I have been gulled here! I have to cut the cord with my own sword. Stand back, dogs! Stand back, I say!"

"I see we are to have little choice in this matter," said Von Brunt. "Where is Gaspard?"

"Here, Sir Frederic," replied the Saxon esquire, stepping forward.

"Go and call the armorer, and bid him follow you with a score of his men."

"As Gaspard went out, the Saxon knight turned again to the duke.

"If you resist, my lord, when they see how well we are working to their own disadvantage, they will be sure to desert you, and then you will be left with many bitter curses."

"When this had been done, Von Brunt turned again to the esquire, who presently introduced into the apartment Hippolita and Cinthia. When de Castro saw his bondswoman with the wife of the armorer, he broke out into a muttering of curses, but no words were said to him.

"Now," said Sir Frederic, addressing the women, "we will have the princess. Do you find her and bring her hither."

"By the fangs of darkness!" exclaimed Ludovico, "I think I have a right here!"

"He would have spoken farther, but de Castro plucked him again by the sleeve.

"Keep quiet, my lord," the captain whispered to her, "bring her to your own disappointment. When they have her here they shall find that she is your wife, made so by the Pope himself."

"The prince stood back, and Hippolita and Cinthia left the apartment."

princess added, looking up, and trying to stand without assistance, "what is this strange thing which has happened?"

"Nevertheless," resumed Von Brunt, "our work must not be done. We demand the person of—"

"I have him not," said the duke, speaking before his time.

"Have not whom?"

"That dog of a Vendome. You will have to seek elsewhere for him."

"Ah, my lord duke, you anticipate too much," replied the stout Saxon, with a smile.

"It is not Orlando Vendome that we are now in search of. I think, however, that you have been expecting some slight return from the person of that gallant champion. Is it not so?"

"It matters not what I have expected," answered Manfred, clenching nervously at his sword-hilt.

"Never mind," continued Von Brunt. "When you hear from Vendome, the message will come from an open door."

"But another person is meant. We demand of you Rosabel of Bergamo."

"Death and perdition," yelled the duke, stamping his foot till the very walls rang.

"I am I, and I shall not be called the duke in my outrageous intrusion! De Castro, call in my guard! Bid my men-at-arms attend me here. I'll teach these dogs a lesson!"

"Easy, my lord duke," said the Saxon, unsheathing his sword as he spoke.

"You see we have the advantage here. You cannot move, save at our pleasure."

"Frederic Von Brunt speaks truly," spoke another of the knights, advancing from his companions.

"Alfonso of Modena, is it you?"

"Yes, Manfred," replied the count.

"Then," cried the duke, moving back a step, "I perceive you are the whole of you."

"Down, down, base men—down upon your knees! You are in the presence of the Pope!"

"Upon being thus introduced, John XVII. approached and spread out his arms towards the intruding knights.

"Not now," said Von Brunt, coolly waving the pontiff back.

"The presence of the Pope cannot move, save at our pleasure."

"As John moved slowly away, the duke turned and whispered to one of his attendants, who immediately afterwards slipped off his side door."

"My lord duke," he said, "I once more demand of you the princess Rosabel. If you will, I shall send for her."

their immediate attendants, were removed from the apartment, and preparations were made for such a celebration as was fitting to the occasion.

"I—I think I'll go by the door," I stammered.

"I hoped he was only joking."

"What! Don't you always come and go by way of the chimney?"

"Can't always," he answered.

"Can't be possible that the story-books are mistaken on this important point? It is cruel to rob us of our childhood's fancies. I think," and Bob held the muzzle of his gun close to my ear—"I think, Santa Claus, we are going to the old custom. Oblige us by climbing up the chimney in your own airy fashion."

I hesitated. Another glance at the muzzle of the gun decided me. I said: "All right, gentlemen, I'll not make much trouble about a little thing like that."

"I drew off my coat. George caught it up and tossed it into the branches of the Christmas tree. I stuck my head into the chimney. It was a tight fit when it came to my shoulders, and I started to draw back."

"I set my teeth together and squirmed the muzzle of Bob's gun prodding me. I set my teeth together and squirmed myself out of the top of the chimney and stood on the frosty roof in my stocking-foot. I was as black as a cinder, my nostrils were clogged with soot, and I was nearly tired to death."

"When I had pulled myself together, after a fashion, I slid down to a convenient landing on the frosty roof in my stocking-foot. I was as black as a cinder, my nostrils were clogged with soot, and I was nearly tired to death."

"I had the chance before me even that I should have frightened him to death, or that he would have taken me in charge for an escaped convict."

"I was not in after times, the Seal of Rome was a first-class burglar; but on that night I met with a painful adventure, which I will endeavour to describe."

"On the night of which I have been speaking I removed a pane of glass from the kitchen window of a mansion in a fashionable neighbourhood. Then I turned back the catch, raised the window, and entered the house, without taking the trouble to send up my card."

"There, in the darkness, I adjusted my mask and lighted my lantern. Then I started to make a tour of the premises. I was not long in finding a quantity of things which I desired to possess."

"I immediately began gathering them up, preparatory to carting them away. While I was standing on tiptoe in order to reach the top shelf of the china cupboard something remarkable happened. Somebody behind me spoke. It was a man. He said: "George, here's Santa Claus."

"I turned about and reached for my revolver. The next moment the ugly muzzle of a gun was poked into my face."

How a Bachelor Was Caught.

George Rowland was a bachelor, and what is more, he said he meant always to remain one.

His father had endowed him with education, and money enough to have set him up in any profession he might have preferred.

On the whole, George Rowland considered that he had brought the arrangements of his household to as near perfection as circumstances would admit of.

It is one of the things that I am going to relate now, that was a rather war, Paddy was ploughing in the field, and George was sitting in his library engaged in theoretical agriculture.

There was nothing contained in the letter, as George distinctly recalled, that she meant to regard it as "her."

Accordingly, on the following afternoon he stood on the steps of Miss Coutts' residence, and he held the ball somewhat impatiently, for he was already late and desirous of continuing his journey.

But if she was surprised, he was no less so, for, instead of the ancient maiden of his imagination, there stood before him a young and blooming maiden clad in muslin and pale pink ribbon.

"I don't like a fellow to domineer over me," said the young man, with a patting of the hand.

Important to Applicants for Mining Leases.

Applicants for leases within the district governed by The Riponshire Advocate are advised to peruse the following regulations.

The New Mining Regulations require that when a lease is marked out the applicant shall insert in a newspaper published in the district where the land is situated, or in no such newspaper, then in the one published nearest the district, an advertisement of notice in the form marked A in the schedule prescribed.

The word "district" in the regulations has been defined by the Crown Solicitor to be any locality, and not an mining district, and the law should therefore be advertised in the paper nearest the land for which application is to be made.
