Bear in mind that advertising always pays, and an "ad" in the local paper, which circulates extensively throughout the district. cannot fail to draw business. It is worth your while to consider little as to what really is the best means for reaching the people you want to convert into customers. Some business men are rather in clined to be conservative, and follow the course this year that they did years ago. Because they have never tried an advertisement in the "Advocate," they are not inclined to consider this means of reaching the people a safe proposition. ADVERTISING.

Mr. Business Man!

Keep your new learning continually before the public through the medium of an accomingment in the "Riponshire Advocate." Bear in mind that advertising always pays, and an "ad" in the local paper, which circulates extensively throughout the district, cannot fail to draw business. It is worth your while to consider a little as to what really is the best means for reaching the people you want to convert into customers. Some business men are rather inclined to be conservative, and follow the course this year that they did years ago. Because they have never tried an advertisement in Advocate," they are not inclined to consider this means of reaching the people a safe proposition. The "Advocate" is read by all the family, and lent to friends; and an advertisement still continues to attract attention long after the date of the publication

Your local Printer spends his money with you, as also does his staff; so indirectly money spent with him, or portion of it, must assuredly, through different channels of circulation, find its way back to your own coffers. Bear this in mind, and when you require anything with printers' ink on it, don't forget to support local industry. Bear in mind that money sent to Melbourne printers is absolutely losi to the town and district, and has no possible chance of ever returning, even by the most roundabout channels of circulation. Then would Lyle's thoughts turn to that day of days when she had said Life was perfected in Love; and then, too, would Nora shudder and grow pale at memory of that frenzied passion burnt now to cold grey ashes, ashamed and bitterly regretful, yet capable still of proving Love's existence. They never spoke of girlhood's romance now, never mentioned those false and disappointing fairy princes whose advent they had once believed would ennoble and glorify existence. Alas! it is given to few fairy princes to do that. The glamour of youth and its dreams no longer obscured their eyes, but they would be none foregone illusion. Sometimes Lyle watched the skyline and thought of far off lands and grown more merciful now to men's faults and failings. She had read and thought and in a measure lived since those days of indignant jealousy. She would have been able now to say those words for which he had once vainly pleaded : "I forgive you, Derrick." She could also have added: "Because I understand you."

But the sky-line came no rearer, and the far seas stretched their tossing width between her longing and yet by sure degrees that love may outlive anger, and outlast hope.

There will never be anyone else, she told herself, "never! I know that. I wish I had been a little kinder when I had the chance."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The spring was fading into summer warmth A buzz of mescuitees roused Sir Anthony from placid dreams of the stones of Venice and long blissful hours amidst the storied treathere were mosquitoes. It was time to issue marching orders. The girls pleaded for one

THE REWARD OF KINDNESS.

Dr. Chalmers Mitchell, F.Z.S., the secretary of the Royal Zoological Society, has had many strange experiences with animals.

Recently he related the story of an African lynx, a species of wild cat, that used to sleep on his pillow, and when it wanted to get off politely pushed its master's face with its

Some years ago the police asked Dr. Mitchell to take charge of a bear whose owner had been sent to prison for ill-treating it. All the time Dr. Mitchell kept the animals it sulked and whined.

But directly the master was released from prison and came to claim his property. Mester Bruin clasped him in his arms, and kiesed and licked him in the delight of remnion.

It was an exceptionally rough cross ing. An icy wind was also blowing and the steward was much surprised therefore, to find appone on deck. Here Mr. Younghird leaned across a rail, desparate in attitude and expression.

"Is there anything I can get you, sir ?" inquired the steward sympathetically. "ОЬ !" 'Get me a small island, will you?'

PLANT THAT EXPLODES.

It is well known that you cannot grow the same crop in a field year beings existed, and they set out to devise ways of ensuring that their seeds always fell upon fresh ground. Some, like the thistle and the dandelion, developed seeds provided with balloons of down, by means of which they are carried for miles. The sycamore and the lime grow little parachutes, which send their seeds twisting through the air for long distances. The burrs resolved to make use of animals to do the work for them. They grew rows of tiny hooks designs ed to catch in the coats of animals, which carry them away and then rub them of against bushes. The poppy perfected an efficient form of sprinkler. When the dry heads are shaken by the wind, seeds are shot out in all directions.

The tropical sand-box tree was the first inventor of explosives. Its seedpods are filled with gas, which expands until such a pressure is reached that the sheath bursts with a noise like a revolver shot, and the seeds are distributed over a consider-

THE OATH.

Amusement was caused in a recent law case when it was stated that a Chinaman usually took the oath by wringing the neck of a chicken. What really happens is that a witness in a 'hinese court strangles a fowl saying : "If I do not speak the truth, may the gods kill me as I kill this

Similar oaths are taken in many parts of the world. A Siamese Buddhist says : "If I lie, may I be cast into purgatory, and there be made to carry water through fire in a wicker basket."

In Assam a witness stands within a coil of rope and says: "If my words are false, may I perish by this," while in New Guinea men swear by the sun, calling upon it to burn them up if they do not speak the truth.

Savages in various parts of the world usually swear either by beasts of prey, upon whom they call to deyour them if they are lying, or by weapons, which are invited to strike them dead if their evidence is false. In our courts, anyone who has a religious objection to taking the oath is allowed to substitute a solemp affirmation for it.

A third-class smoking carriage was occupied by five or six persons, of whom two men were sitting in opposite corners at the same end of the carriage. The man facing the engine objected when the other lowered the window to its fullest extent, but he received no courtesy whatever. When, at the next station certain passengers alighted, the man facing the engine took his place at the other end of the carriage, and lowered the other window to its fullest extent. "What the dickens are you playing at, man?" demanded the fresh-air enthusiast. "Draughts, and it's your move," was the quick reply.

How to CLEAR DECANTERS AND CRUETS .-The best way is to wash them out with a little pearlash and warm water, adding a spoonfu or two of fresh slaked lime if necessary. BED-ROOM FLOORS.—Some mistresses make practice of ordering the floors of bed-rooms to be frequently washed. I wish to guard both mistresses and servants against this practice. It is most dangerous to the health of the person who occupies the bed-room, to wash it or scour it, unless the weather be very fine or warm, in order to allow the window to ine or warm, in order to allow the window to be opened for thoroughly strying the room before night. STACK MEASUREMENT .- To find the contents of an oblong stack with perpendicular ends, multiply the length by the average width (between bottom and caves) and the product by the height from the ground to the eaves. For the top multiply the area at the eaves by half the height to the right. The weight may be ascertained very accurately by measuring the cubic con tents of a truss, and from this calcu lating the height at the top.

To-morrow or to-night, maybe, you will lose something that you prize highly. Nearly everybody loses something at one time or other, but in earth, and boil all together. When cool, cover the scorched linen with this mixture, and let is dry. Wash the linen, and the scorches will disappear, if not so bad as to in the "Riponshire Advocate." It's easy to mail an ad. to the " Advocate, or just call at the office and tell us vour trouble.
