To the Lady of the House.

Dear Madam.-

You'd be surprised at the places you could go, the pleasure you could have, the things you could do, and the time you could save, if you only had a FORD.

In bad weather, or when they are likely to be late, you could take your children to school; also call for them after school. You'd always be sure that they are safe then.

You could go over and call oftener on your friends, and liven up those "lonesome" nights. Your friends would then begin to repay your calls—and you know just how evenings fly when friends

In good weather you could drive the family out on Sunday afternoons to the lakes, the parks, or the groves, and places where the gladness of living abounds.

It would be easier for you to get your husband to go oftener with you to the cinemas, to shows, to parties, and other places that have the kind of fun—that keep you happy—and help you get so much out of life that you just seem to forget to grow old.

You could go oftener to town—and pick out the things you like for yourself and children. You could add so much more to your daily life if your family only had a FORD, that it is surprising you haven't just made a way to get one. You probably don't know on what easy terms you can buy a FORD, otherwise you just would have had one

"I am my own servant, to-day," who was questioning film. He would be said, with a laugh. "My man gladly have changed the subject had reply will be sent by return mail. "The explanation is very simple." packed him off. Let us start at once; probing into Fothergill's secrets.

It was on the tip of Annandale's tongue to say, "Your acquaintance was not too slight to prevent your coming all the way from Clifton to Rodney to call upon her?" But at that moment Fothergill stepped to the window.

"Ah!" he said. "Here is Lady Derbarough's carriage. Ten minutes late, of course! I fear I must leave you, Mr. Annandale. By the way, you have not reproached me yet. Shall I give you the chance? Take pity on an unfortunate man who loves not the English Sunday, and dine with me to-morrow night, I will show you the only place in London where one can get an eatable dinner."

Hubert debated in his mind whether he ought to accept any hospitality from a man who had no suspicion that his every word was being weight. The relation of Tottenham Court Redding with a severy action was the state of Tottenham Court neighbours will be mostly of reigners; mostly politic. "The painter's eyes flashed. "Yes," he said. Dear Madam.

You'd be surprised at the places you could go, the pleasure you could have, the things you could do, and the time you could save, if you only had a FORD.

In bad weather, or when they are likely to be late, you could take your children to school; also call for them after school. You'd always be sure that they are safe then.

You could go over and call oftener on your friends, and liven up those "lonesome" nights. Your friends would then begin to repay your calls—and you know just how evenings fly when friends drop in.

In good weather you could drive the family out on Sunday afternoons to the lakes, the parks, or the groves, and places where the gladness of living abounds.

It would be easier for you to get your husband to go oftener with you to the cinemas, to shows, to parties, and other places that have the kind of fun—that keep you happy—and help you get so much out of life that you just seem to forget to grow old.

You could go oftener to town-and pick out the things you like for yourself and children.

You could add so much more to your daily life if your family only had a FORD, that it is surprising you haven't just made a way to get one. You probably don't know on what easy terms you can buy a FORD, otherwise you just would have had on e ong ago,

CHAPTER XXIX.-OUT OF THE JAWS OF DEATH.

When he came to himself his only complete idea was that his chin was tickling. He tried to move his left hand to rub it, but a sharp pain in his chest warned him to desist. He tried his right hand. That hurt a little, too; but he contrived to reach the point of irritation; but when his fingers came in contact with a luxuriant growth of hair he muttered audibly "Good Lord!" and conelse had grown a beard. Which was papers described as standing close to "And I don't want her to be told. the worse alternative he had not strength to think.

He was awakened again by whispering voices close to his bedside. "Will he pull through, doctor?" "Yes. He's all right now."

"Bless my soul! What a constitution!" said a man, and a woman answered : "Oh! Thank God! Thank God!"

"But he'll be a shocking wreck for months yet. Look at him, though, sleeping like a lamb!" He opened his eyes and said :

"The deuce you are! Then just you come out of this, my dear young lady!" "Oh doctor, let me stay !"

"Not for the world !" Hubert looked up. By his bedside stood a stout man and a girl. "I've seen that girl somewhere thought the invalid, and instantly remembered who she was.

"By George !" he said feebly, bu aloud, "Angela! Here! I say!" But the only answer was a whisk of skirts through the doorway. "What a shame !" thought Annandale, and promptly fell asleep once

Those panels were so arranged that they swung open at need, and led into a passage, which communicated directly with the river. They had a boat moored there. For some reason or other the river police were late in getting to the rendezvous, and these men must have rowed right past them. It was a foggy night." "But how came Fothergill to be

FEATS OF ARMLESS SOLDIERS

MARVELS OF INGENUITY AND PERSEVERANCE.

There are several thousands of soldiers who have lost an arm during the war, but has it ever occurred to you what extremely difficult times each one has to pass through in order to adapt himself to the handicapped state?

Let me give you an example or two. How does he manage to wash the remaining arm and hand of his? Just in this way-(at least this is how I do it). #### A Fair Warning

ONE THAT SHOULD BE HEEDED BY ALL. Frequently the first sign of kidney trouble is a slight ache or pain in the loins. Neglect of this warning makes the way easy for more serious troubles—gravel, serious kidney disease. 'Tis well to pay attention to the first sign. Weak kidney generally grow weaker, and delay is often dangerous. Residents of this locality place reliance in Donn's Backache Kidney Pills. This tested remedy has been used in kidney trouble for years, and is recommended all over the civilised world. Read

Mrs. F. Yates, High Street, Beaufort, says: "A member of my family had trouble with his kidneys. They were more or less disordered, and this had the effect of making back weak and painful. He was also subject to dizzy attacks, and often used to feel so tired and weary that he had no energy for anything. After suffering in this way for some time be was advised to take a course of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills. He did so, and I am pleased to tell you they cured him, and he has had no they cured him, and he has had no return of the complaint since. He always keeps Doan's Pills by him now, and takes them occasionally, and I am sure they do him a lot of good. The kidneys need a tonic sometimes, and a better one than Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cannot be bought.

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 2/9 per bottle, or will be posted on receipt of price by Foster-McClellan Co., 15 Hamilton Street, Sydney. But, be sure you get DOAN'S.
