FOR MEN.

MANY men have the impression that a Savings Bank Account is suitable only for women and children, and that it is neither convenient nor dignified enough for business men. Certainly those business men who have many payments to make ever a considerable area need cheque accounts, but even those, in common with all other men, will find the Savings Account a most useful and convenient aid to money accumulation. There is nothing undignified in the transaction of Savings Bank business, but there is interest profit to be earned on such monies as would
