MELBOURNE OPTICIANS' VISIT.

The eye is the organ of vision. That is to say, it is the organ which receives the light reflected from objects, and excites in us a sensation which is conveyed to the lobes of the brain, which in turn reveals the presence of these objects to us. In perfect eyes a perfect image of this object is formed. In defective eyes the image is imperfect. By the wearing of spectacles to correct the eye defects, the imperfect image is rectified. If your eyes are defective, then consult a qualified optician at once, and you cannot do better than consult Coles & Garrard, Melbourne's Master Opticians, of 370-372 Bourke St., on their next visit to your district. Coles & Garrard will be visiting Beaufort on Monday, January 13th, at the Mechanics' Hall, from 1 p.m. till 4 p.m. An ap-Watts, 100 yds., 1; R. Lake, 90 pointment may be arranged with

She joined the Sydney Repertory Society with Gregan McMahon, and, as Mollie, the Irish maid in "Old inglish," made her professional debut at four pounds a week. By the time Miss Appleton was cighteen, she had played Moira Loney in Barrie's "Little Mary." Sylvia in Shaw's "The Philanderer," Ann in Galsworthy's "The Pigeon," and Margaret in the Wil-liamson production of Barrie's "Dear Brutus" in Sydney. Her work in "Dear Brutus" established her as a leading lady, and in this play she was seen in Melbourne and in Brisbane. In Shaw's "Get-ting Married" she again toured; in "Pigs." "The Wrecker." Lap of the Gods" (by the Austra-lian author, Louis Stone) and in other plays. WEDDING.

The marriage of Miss Joyce Mary Johnston, eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs Andrew Johnston. to Mr Bryan Jack O'Connell. elder son of Mr J. and the late Mrs O'Connell, of Moonee Ponds, was celebrated on Saturday, December 21st, at the Methodist Church, Raglan, by the Rev. E. H. Coltman. The church was tastefully decorated by the girl friends of the bride. The bridal gown was heavy crepe satin, made on bouff cut lines, with a deep, sweetheart shaped neck line, and the bride wore a triple strand of pearls. The embroidered lace veil was lent by Mrs Norman Lyttle and held with a coronet of orange blossom. The bride carried a sheaf o Christmas lilies. She was attended by her sister, Miss Audrey Johnston, and Miss Kathleen Smith, both frocked alike in coral pink crepe. Mr Kevin O'Connell (brother of the bridegroon) was best man and Mr Robert John ston (the bride's brother) groomsman. On leaving the Church, lucky horse shoes were placed on the bride's arm by Alison Wilkinson, Sheila Maher and Geoffrey the bride wore a cinnamon suit with white accessories. The bride groom's gift to the bride was a seautiful ring, the bride's to the groom a chrome cigarette case and the groom's to the bridesmaids a dress ring. The newly weds' future home is at East India Avenue, Nunawading.

He will resume his former position of Director of Variety for the A.B.C. The months spent in London have been for him a non-stop collecting of new ideas and impressions, and of continuous hard work. The greater part of his time has been spent at Alexandra Palace, the B.B.C.'s headquarters of television, producing television variety programmes. This has been an experience full of interest.

Television, of course, is nothing new to Harry Pringle. He was in England in 1936, when it was being born, and worked on it in its early days. He has found that since the television revice re-opened, it has made rapid programs. At present it has a racine of about 50 miles, though unofficially, Cr. Guthrle said the gush in the E.R. would come up in the engineer's report. The work would cost £155.

Cr. Watkin drew attention to a report in regard to forest grazing, and said it was one of the best he had ever read. He read a few extracts of the principal features in regard to forest, soil, and water, which were an inseparable trinity. Uncontrolled forest grazing had caused great destruction. It was recommended that the Forests Commission be the sole authority to control grazing on forest lands. A regional committee was suggested to implement the broad policy of the Commission in respect to a region. It would be a good idea if the councillors would read it, as it was a matter of grave national importance.

Cr. Schlicht: If the Forests Department decided not to lease the forest to anyone, they would be doing a greater service.

The recent petrol shortage was discussed by the Ripon Shire Council at Monday's meeting. and a course of action decided cent petrol shortage. It was too (awful, he said, to contemplate what would have happened, had there been a bush fire. The pool should be asked to supply a surplus to bush fire brigades.

The president: The Bush Fire Brigade the other morning did not have enough petrol to go four miles.

Cr. Hannah: It was bad management from down below. He amount of petrol to use in case of fire.

Cr. Kirkpatrick agreed with Cr. Hannah. He understood that He suggested that the proper officer contact Mr Daw by phone.

Cr. Guthrie supported the suggestion; Skipton and Linton having been out of petrol. Normal supplies did not come for ten days. He wired Messrs. Hyett and Moreton, and a 40-gal. drum was sent to Skipton. He thought the whole thing was engineered. A strong protest should be sent where it would be taken notice of, as the position was appalling.

The president said Mr Duke rang Mr Schreenan, and petrol came up next day.

Cr. Hannah: Each captain and lieutenant should have a supply at his place. He moved that each brigade in the region apply to the Country Fire Authority for three drums, and that it be left to the brigades to allocate it; and also that members of Parliament be written to and their attention directed to the grave fire danger, and that they be urged to see that the petrol shortage did not happen again.
