COLD FLAME REFRIGERATOR

This magnificent Resigerator has already found a happy welcome in thousands of Australian homes. Operated by a tiny kerosene flame, it is entirely independent of outside power supplies, and brings all the benefits of modern refrigeration even to the most isolated localities. There are no moving parts to wear out, the action being chemical and not mechanical.

VICTORY BY A POINT. Winning in the ruck, and outmarking Mininera League in the vital closing stages of the game at the Eastern Oval, Ballarat, on Saturday (reports the "Courier"), Bungaree Association won the Beaurepaire Shield and the country football championship of the Ballarat district by one point. In a low scoring game, in which the backs on both sides excelled the forwards, Bungaree held Mininera goalless in the third term, and scored two goals in five minutes in the last to head its rival, and hold out, despite Mininera's fighting

A Time for Truth

There would be less industrial unrest if a new effort were made to give the true facts of economic and industrial matters to the public, states the "Review" of the Institute of Public Affairs. This calls for a much more careful and conscientious approach by those who form public opinion -business men and trade union leaders, politicians, journalists, radio broadcasters, economists and statisticians. These leaders of thought carry a terrific responsibility on which they would do well to reflect long and deeply. Industrial harmony and economic progress would be immeasurably advanced if they were henceforth to display a greater scrupulousness in the application and interpretation of the facts used to support their arguments.

Fact finding is frequently such an exasperating and prolonged process that in arguing a cause there is an ever present temptation to use short cuts. Here lies the trouble with much present day advocacy.

If the public mind must continue with propaganda, then let it be infused with a high and conscientious regard for the truth, without exceeding the legitimate limits of exaggeration. In the present uncertain state of the world, "the most unsocial act which anyone can commit is to speak or write anything without good reason for believing it to be truth. To put forth irresponsible words, because patriotic or party feeling or public sentiment seems to demand them, though it has become a habit, is none the less for that a stone flung at human happiness. The words are John Galsworthy's and they are to-day infinitely more pertinent and significant than when he wrote them 30

THE AUSTRALIAN POLITICAL SCENE."

In a contributed article to the "Review" of the Institute of Pubic Affairs, Professor K. C. Wheare, Gladstone Professor of Government and Public Administration at Oxford, and Victorian Rhodes scholar, 1929, writes:-In Australia federalism has been modified and supplemented by a process of intergovernmental cooperation, especially through such institutions as the Premiers' Conference and the Loan Council, and these modifications constitute a great advance in the working of federal government. In Canada and the United States they have not yet been able to achieve this degree of co-operation, and in my opinion Australia is in advance of these two countries in its adaptation of federalism to the needs of modern society. It seems to me that a development of these co-operative institutions and the preservation at the same time of the federal principle are the best lines on which Australian government could advance. . . It is preferable to unification because it preserves the advantages of independence in the States while at the same time it gives plenty of opportunity for unified and unitel action in those matters and at those times when unity is essential.

The Riponshire Advocate

USSR AND USA

There is need for objective comparisons between economic conditions in Communist Russia and "free enterprise" U.S.A., states the "Review" of the Institute of Public Affairs The Institute quotes from reports made recently by delegations of Norwegian trade unionists to both countries. The Norwegians reported that the average wage level in Russia is sufficient only for purchasing absolute necessities. Most people subsist on simple foods such as bread and potatoes. Prices of meat, butter, canned foods, etc., are beyond all but the elite. Little is left for clothes and footwear, which are particularly expensive. Partly because of the insufficiency of their husband's earnings, women are forced to work on dock, road and construction projects. The Norwegians refer to the low level of rentals in Russia, but comment: "The shortage of housing is frightful, and therefore the majority of the population can draw no great advantage from low rents. The Norwegians were appalled by the general standard of living in Russia, but they praise the reconstruction of such cities as Stalingrad and Leningrad. Despite a background which would certainly not predispose them towards free enterprise, the Norwegian labor leaders state: "The American worker to-day is the best paid in the world. The high level of income and production have in large parts of the country resulted in a standard of living which far exceeds anything we know in our hemisphere. The American standard rests on high production. It has become clear to the American worker and employee that the future of their country depends on their ability to produce."

Inequalities of income in Russia are possibly greater than in any country in the world. Top party men, writers and actors, earn 10,000 - 20,000 roubles per month plus special extras and priorities; professors, doctors and technicians from 1000 - 3000 roubles, while white collar and industrial workers get 500 - 1000 roubles a month. Shock workers on incentive systems receive as high as 14,000 roubles monthly. Russian trade unions cannot engage in wage disputes. since the entire wage structure is planned by the Government. The Norwegians candidly admit that the great American unions, the A.F.L. and the C.I.C. support free enterprise.

SIR ALBERT DUNSTAN MEMORIAL APPEAL.

A State-wide appeal has been aunched to raise funds for the establishment of a memorial to commemorate 30 years of unparwhere. For Prices, Write the alelled service rendered to the State of Victoria by the late Sir Albert Dunstan, K.C.M.G. The memory of no other citizen, states a circular received, is more worthy of perpetuation than that of the late member for Korong.

A large and enthusiastic public meeting at Charlton, and representing all shades of political opinion, set up a committee to organise the appeal. The Charlton Shire Council immediately endorsed the action of its president, who initiated the proposal, by placing the sum of £500 on its stimates for this purpose.

The memorial will embody the endowment of an annual scholarbourne and catches train to Mel ship to cover the full course at bourne at night. the Longerenong Agricultural College, and also the erection on the NESTLING behind the Sand Hill along the Espianade, and sheltered by ti-tree, "WYNN-DLAN" offers a cosy restful ho'day in completely furnished Bungalows.
