

Our 'Brand New' Flinders Street Station has been a dominating Melbourne landmark for 75 years. Completed in 1910, historic Flinders Street saw the first electric train in 1918, and hosted Royalty in 1920.

"I'll meet you under the clocks at Flinders Street" has become a catchcry from generations of Melburnians.

During the recent renovations the facade was preserved but there have been many internal improvements.

So while Flinders Street has always held her own with other famous Melbourne tourist attractions, now she can stand proudly alongside our newest stations.

And could we blame her if she even felt a little superior?
