Four seek north seat-no contest in south-

A fourth candidate has entered the race for the North Riding seat in this month's Eltham Shire Council election.
He is Mr. John Webb (43), an accountant, of Bradleys Lane, Warrandyte.

Mr. Webb declared his candidacy less than a week before nominations for the August 28 poll closed.

He lines up against retiring member Mr. Robert Marshall (30), of St. Andrews, Mr. Bert Williams (52), of Smiths Gully, and Mr. Mick Tibby (33), of Hurstbridge.

NEW RUNNE CUTS IT FINE

The four-man field for the North Riding poll is in sharp contrast to that for the Warrandyte ward seat in the Doncaster-Templestowe City Council election on the same day.

When this edition of the Diary went to press, it appeared that councillor John Scott (46), industrial chemist of Houghton Road, Warrandyte, would be re-elected unopposed.

On Page 5 of this issue, Cr. Scott looks back on the past three years in the Warrandyte ward and outlines aspirations for the next three.

On Page 6, Mr. Webb, the new North Riding candidate, explains why he is contesting the election.

Also on Page 6, the Diary repeats the policy statements of the three other North Riding candidates.

This is done to put right an error in the last issue of the Diary in which the names "Mick Tibby" and "Bert Wilwere inadvertently transposed above their respective statements.

Little lady who wandered into the meeting at the primary school couldn't believe that the local historical society had grown so fast.

There must have been 90 people there. And imagine her astonishment when they started talking sex!

Turns out she'd found the wrong room. This was a school meeting discussing sex education.

The historical society's meeting — a much smaller show — was next door.

But then sex always has been a bigger drawcard than history . . .

Then there was the conservation-minded lady who suggested that the bulldozer driver might have been a little heavy-handed as he cleared a subdivision next door.

Came back from a quick shopping trip to find part of her fence demolished and a 50-pace strip of bush flattened inside her boundary.

Says the next time they meet will be in court.

Your very own clubhouse — how's that for a status symbol?

The clubhouse at Warrandyte Tennis Club's old courts near the bridge is up for sale.

It's 6m. by 3m., fully lined and the club says it would make a fine workshop, bungalow, stable, playroom or garden shed.

Heather Briggs (844-3303) is handling the sale.

A junior member of the Smokey Joe Fan Club tells me a lot of kids in Warrandyte would love to play soccer... if they could find a coach.

Warrandyte has emerged as the focal point for the preservation of the entire Yarra Valley.

The battle to save the Koornong bushland, north of the river, opposite Jumping Creek Reserve, has gone to the highest level.

As a result of the campaign, the Board of Works has promised that it will closely scrutinise any future subdivision plans for the Yarra Valley.

Opposition to the pro-osed subdivision of the Koornong came to a head this month.

- Warrandyte Environ-ment League followed up a petition to the State Gov-ernment by sending a depu-tation to Premier Hamer.
- Representatives of the Middle Yarra Advisory Council, Eltham Shire Council, the Board of Works and the subdividers met at the Board offices.

Open Space

At Mr. Hamer's direc-tion, the board is now re-examining the possibility of buying the land in question as public open space.

And the subdividers, Laurence Investments, are looking closely at a cluster sub-division plan which would guarantee preservation of the bushland from the ridgeline down to the river.

Under the cluster proposal, each home would be on about two-thirds of an acre, but there would be no housing at all on the river side of the escarpment, although the land would be privately owned.

Laurence showed their willingness to negotiate the issue by agreeing to meet Eltham council.

MYAC representative and Eltham councillor Robert Marshall hailed the developments as an important break-through, not only for Warrandyte, but for the Yarra Valley as a whole.

"Obviously, we would prefer the Board of Works to buy the land," he said.

"But even the cluster subdivision proposal is more than we had hoped for."

The environment league drew attention with its "Warrandyte Wake Week-end" last month to the need for a protection authority for the northern side of the river between Pound Bend and the Bend of Isles.

Premier Hamer told the league's deputation that areas like the Yarra Valley should have been set aside 100 years ago.

He congratulated the league for its campaign and said that more efforts like it were needed if areas like the Koornong were to be saved.

'PARK' TO STAY RURAL

Park Orchards residents can rest easy — the rural entrance to their community is to be preserved.

Ward councillor Peter Mulcahy has announced the establishment of a commit-tee of management to preserve the heavily-treed area between Mullum Creek and residential Park Road.

Doncaster - Templestowe Council acquired the land last November following moves initiated by the Park
Orchards Ratepayers' Association to have the area zoned nublic open space. zoned public open space.

"What we are doing will provide a unique entrance to Park Orchards," Cr. Mulcahy said.

"I have already arranged a general cleaning-up of the area.

RATES: COUNCIL ACTS URGE

Eltham Shire Council will "thoroughly and urgently" investigate rating problem.

Council decided at a meeting this month to judge the findings of the inquiry before the coming year's rates are struck.

The meeting was unani-mous on urgent action.

The decision to have three-man committee (one councillor from each Riding) probe the rates problem arose from a move by North Riding representative Robert Marshall to revert outright to riding finances.

This system, in vogue in Eltham Shire until two years ago, meant that each riding controlled its own revenue.

Now, it is on an overall shire basis.

Rates raised in one riding are not necessarily spent there.

Cr. Marshall told meeting that the rates decision was the most important facing the future of the council for the next several years.

He added that feeling to-wards a North Riding sec-cession — which would be disastrous for the shire — would only gather strength if the rates issue were not resolved.

Cr. Marshall told the Diary that two things were inevitable if the council did go back to riding

- High rates would de-stroy the riding's green wedge concept.
- · The entire area would change ownership — only the rich would be able to afford to live there.

THE CLUB CARRIES

Warrandyte Social Club reminds members that the clubrooms are still open on a bring-your-own basis.

Activity gets under way at 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday at the RSL Club in Bracken-

"My own calculations thorough, but taken, admittedly, on a narrow sample — reveal this," he said.

- If the council received the same amount of dollar the same amount of dollar finance this year as it did last year, North Riding rates would go up 57 per cent, West Riding's would go down 30 per cent and Central's up 1.5 per cent.
- · If council income was up 20 per cent, North rates would go up 90 per cent, West down 16 per cent and Central up 22 per cent.

"I emphasise that this is my own research—but even if my figures were only half right, it is a frighten-ing prospect," Cr. Marshall

"Last year's rates income from each riding was about $750,000.

This year, under the new valuation, the North's con-tribution will almost double the West Riding's.

"It is imperative that we revert to riding finances,"

Cr. Marshall said.
"We cannot continue on this disaster path."

School plans on display

plans for West Warrandyte Primary School, in Harris Gully Road, are now on display at Warrandyte Primary School.

First stage of the project is two hexagonal buildings of modern design, containing eight classrooms.

The Education Departments district inspector, Mr. B. Timms, has requested that an interim school committee be formed and the WPS committee is examin-ing the best way to do this within the next two months.

Any interested people are invited to contact acting principal Kevin Mooney on 844 3537.

The WPS Association's August meeting will take the form of a film evening.

It will start with five short films made by the children themselves and these will be followed by something decidedly more adult — "Bedroom Merurica" Mazurka".

The meeting will be in the school library on Tues-day, August 17.

On Tuesday, September 7 the school association will hold a discussion which will be of particular interest to parents of children who will

West Warrandyte attend

The subject will be open-planned schools and films provided by the education department will be shown.

Local scout group struggles for survival

The scout movement in Warrandyte is 25 years old — and struggling to stay afloat.

Whether or not it does depends entirely on the com-munity, according to group leader Ron Lane.

"We urgently need lead-," Mr. Lane told the Diary

Cr. Marshall called a public meeting at North Warrandyte Community Centre late last May to discuss the shocking condition of Research Road.

The well attended meeting.

The well-attended meeting voted unanimously to take the problem to the highest authorities.

Major work at the Brenda Road corner and on the section between Stony Creek and the community centre is nearing completion.

As another result of the public meeting, a footpath has been built in the community centre area.

Cr. Marshall said that extensions to the community centre hall were finished and work would start next month on a netball court.

Warrandyte has the biggest boy membership of any group in the East Doncaster District.

But its success can only be measured by the com-munity's willingness to com-mit itself, according to Mr. Lane.

"Because of the many activities undertaken by the group, it is necessary to have one leader to every six boys.

"Warrandyte is a thinking community and all the members of our movement ask you to consider the possi-bility of becoming a leader.

"It is a very interesting and worthwhile activity.

"If you think that you, or someone you know (male or female) may be a suitable candidate, please contact me.

"I will continue to pursue this policy if I am re-elected," he said.

Cr. Scott said that projects started and finished in the past three years had included:

• Reconstruction of Park Road, Park Orchards, the first time council had accep-ted responsibility for a pri-vate street which was later to become a major road.

 New buildings for the Elderly Citizens Club and Wyuna Pony Club.

THE CANDIDATES

ROBERT MARSHALL:

I see two major problems facing the North Riding high rates and subdivisions.

This area will not be saved by people merely letting things be, but by ratepayers taking positive action to elect councillors who will protect the riding from the planning mistakes which have turned Ringwood and Greensborough into subur-

We are a green wedge and intend it to stay that way. High rates encourage subdivision, so rates must be kept low if the area is to be preserved.

I am committed not only to no rate increase this year. but also to the principle of council expenditure being tied to the needs of the community and, more importantly, to the capacity of the ratepayers to pay.

The next three years are crucial if we are to retain the character of North Riding, which will disappear under suburbia if the council gives in.

MICK TIBBY:

When people argue that politics should be kept out of local government, they really mean that Labor politics should be kept out.

After all, previous Eltham shire presidents have included a member of the Liberal Party State executive and Mr. Eric Butler, national director of the League of Rights

Exhorbitant rates must be reversed, but it should be understood that by cutting off funds from the Australian Assistance Plan, the Fraser Government will force municipal councils, including Eltham, to provide and finance out of their rates the increasing social welfare programmes.

And these programmes are badly needed in areas such as the North Riding.

Conservation issues, such as subdivision carve-ups can be seen as part of the over-all capitalist private enter-prise system in which mak-ing money is far more important than the quality

BERT WILLIAMS:

I was approached to stand for this election and I believe I could do better than the sitting member.

against excessive rates in the North Riding.

I believe the answer to the rates problem is the res-toration of riding finance, where we control our own money.

Until three years ago, rates were in line with the services provided.

Now they are not.

And services which ratepayers do not want are being forced upon them.

I have two main com-plaints about the council's attitude towards ratepayers.

For one thing, it will not go out and find out what the people want.

For another, it has a habit of talking at ratepayers rather than to them.

Another of my big conroads throughout the riding.

• JOHN VEBB:

have been resident of the North Riding nine for years and have become alarmingly aware of the situation being created by the exhorbitant increases in rates.

As an accountant and family man with four young children, I am concerned for the future of this riding.

And I would suggest other families in the riding must be feeling the squeeze with our ever-increasing rate demand.

It is now that we must take action to preserve our riding for our chil-dren and to set sensible guidelines for the plan-ning and future development by responsible use for the ratepayers' money not indiscriminate spending on unnecessary indiscriminate programs

READERS' LETTERS SPECTATOR SAYS

Over the past 12 years, I have watched the determined efforts of Doncaster-Templestowe Council to integrate their side of Warrandyte into their suburban ideal.

In this, they have had aid from the Board of Works, who don't seem particularly interested in "green wedges

Shopping around

It will be most disappointing if the new West End shopping complex (June shopping complex (June Diary) does not include a greengrocery and a hardware shop.

If it does not, then residents of Warrandyte must continue to shop in Ringwood, Eltham or other areas for the variety of fruits, vegetables and hardware items they need and which are not available here.

Naturally, while shopping in these areas, they buy other household items, thus reducing the level of local purchase of these goods.

I would have thought that Warrandyte shopkeepers should support the opening of such business ventures, particularly of a green-grocery, since these would indirectly benefit their own

Our population should now be able to support profitable trading for those considering opening a business in either of these fields.

● EDITOR'S NOTE: When this edition of the Diary went to press, ten-ancy of West End Centre had not been decided, so Mrs. Cahn's prayers could yet be answered. The centre, incidentally, is now likely to open next month.

Blooming cheek?

A new resident of Bloom's Road has removed all the small native plants and grasses — including the tiny orchids preparing for spring emergence — from the road reserve as well as his front reserve as well as his front garden, and replaced them with hydrangeas!

He told a friend he was making it a showplace for himself and his neighbours and getting rid of all the rubbish!

The shame is, that he is within his rights to scrape his own block clean.

He has no right, though, to wreck the road reserve.

Why do people who want the Doncaster manicure choose to live in Warrandyte?

Activities have snow-balled since a group of resi-dents, funded through the Australian Assistance Plan, got together to promote community involvement.

Next was a term of learning centre classes — an in-formal way of sharing skills and experience and meeting new people.

BLOODLESS

With only a few matches to go and no sides in line for the finals, Warrandyte Football Club are starting to wind down for the season.

It is the start of the "social season", with a social in the clubrooms this Saturday (August 14).

Next big event will be the presentation night at the Park Orchards Chalet on Wednesday, September 23. This is one of the highlights of the season.

Any one of several play-ers could land the best and fairest trophy for the firsts this season.

Although the Bloods did not have the best of sea-sons there are some heartening signs for next season.

Mt. Evelyn, third, found it hard to break away from Warrandyte early in their latest encounter.

quarter time, the scores were level.

However, in the second quarter, Warrandyte let Mt. Evelyn in and at half-time were four goals down.

Robert Gilbert, switched in recent games from half-back flank to full-black, was a constant worry to the Mt. Evelyn forwards and held his opponent to two goals.

Bloods small men O'Reilly and McCartin gave drive around the packs and their roving kept Warran-dyte in the game until Mt.

They're real goers at Colman Park

The management committee of Colman Park, South Warrandyte, think big — and act accordingly.

In 12 months, they have raised more than $4,000 for improvements to the picturesque sports reserve.

With subsidies from Doncaster-Templestowe City Council, it has enabled them to:

- Install electric barbecues next to the football pavilion. The committee contributed $1000, the council $500.
- Proceed with plans for netball courts, to cost $6500. The committee have already found $3000 for this project and the council has agreed to make up the Ward councillor John Scott, who has been working in with the committee, is full of praise.

"They are doing a great job," he said.
